Juries Decree Death for 2 In Attacks On D.C. Girls

Robinson, Williams Swiftly Condemned; Government Official's Daughter Testifies

Two men who raped young girls in Washington in the last six weeks were tried and condemned to death in a few hours yesterday.

Two juries in the District Court added to their verdicts the words "with the death penalty" which automatically send the men to the electric chair.

Those condemned were:

William Isaac Robinson, 34, Negro, convicted of ravishing the 13-year-old daughter of a Government official in Rock Creek Park on August 6.

Bernard Lee Williams, 21, Negro, convicted of ravishing a 17-year-old Negro girl on August 2 after beating her and her boy friend in the head with a half brick.

Meanwhile, three white men were arrested in connection with two alleged rapes in Prince Georges County. The arrests took place within a 24-hour period yesterday.

Delay Refused

Attorney David A. Hart, who was appointed by the court to see that Robinson had a fair trial, asked for delay when the case was called yesterday morning. Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue refused and proceeded to selection of a jury which was completed in 35 minutes.

Called to the witness stand first was the victim, wearing a simple wash dress, low heeled sport shoes and no cosmetics. She told her story in a clear, firm voice, without hesitation or uncertainty.

The girl said she left summer school about 10:30 on August 6 and got off a bus at Sixteenth Street and Rock Creek Ford Road.

"I was walking along whistling," she continued, "when Mr. Robinson came up to me. He caught me by my throat, hard. I screamed as loud as I could, but he kept on choking me. Then I couldn't scream any more. He told me if I did he was going to kill me.

"He carried me off to the right, toward Sixteenth Street. He was dragging me by my throat. Then he threw me down on the gravel."

The child said Robinson then assaulted her. Warning her not to tell what happened, he gagged her with her clothes, tied her hands and legs and left her.

A few minutes later he returned and repeated the outrage.

When the girl got her feet loose she ran to the riding academy, holding her clothes in front of her.

Robinson was caught two days later and the girl identified him the next day from eight men in a line-up at Police Headquarters.

Three times the victim told the jurors:

"I am positive, absolutely positive, that Mr. Robinson is the man."

Said He Was Man

Asked how she knew, she replied: "Well, he looks like the man. He talks like the man. He walks like the man. And besides that, I heard him say he was the man."

The girl's father also said he heard Robinson admit the crime the day after the victim identified him.

Acting District Attorney John W. Fihelly rested the Government's case after presenting only a dozen of the 38 witnesses he had summoned. These included Dr. John E. Fenton, Gallinger Hospital, who described the child's bruised neck, eyes bloodshot from choking, and other wounds. Fihelly did not offer Robinson's signed confession in evidence.

Testifying for himself, Robinson admitted that he served ten years in a West Virginia prison for raping a 9-year-old girl. But he denied the crime here. It was true, he said, that he confessed to the police, but

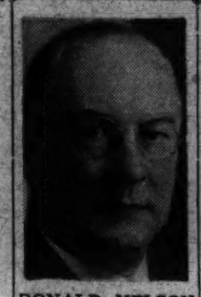
Nelson Pitches In on New Job To Break 3-Week Bottleneck

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Donald M. Nelson, appointed by President Roosevelt ten days ago to be the new head of the OPM priorities division, took off his coat last weekend and made a whirlwind descent on his organization.



DONALD NELSON

The results:

A backlog accumulated through "several" weeks of thousands of "bottlenecked" pieces of mail and applications for priority ratings was cleaned up between Saturday and Monday.

The division, back on "nearly normal schedule," will answer all mail and handle all priority applications on a 48-hour basis.

Still chuckling at Nelson's wildfire approach, OPM officials revealed yesterday that last Saturday three correspondence experts, brought in by Nelson from Sears, Roebuck & Co., of which he was formerly executive vice president, stormed through the Priorities Division, sweeping all unanswered letters and application forms from officials' desks.

In the afternoon, the officials were called into the board room of the new Social Security Building, confronted with the huge stacks of mail, and set to work processing them and sending the replies back to industry.

Some worked in the board room and others in the old police station at 462 Indiana Avenue in a determined effort to break the bottlenecks.

In a statement yesterday, Nelson

Based on Cost of Living

Gas Workers Get Sliding-Scale Pay Boost to Meet Price Rises

M. L. Sperry, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., yesterday announced a "defense emergency compensation" plan to make it easier for 1900 employes of the concern to meet increased living costs.

The plan affects employes earning less than $3600 a year and those who are not compensated by commission—except for a few salesmen in a special category.

The compensation will be distributed monthly, and will be revised every three months on the basis of statistics on changes in the cost of living in the District compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Labor Department.

The procedure is effective at once, Sperry stated, and will be applied retroactively to wages and salaries earned from July 1, 1941. The first payment will be included on the pay checks of September 12, and will comprise defense emergency compensation for both July and August.

Sperry explained that the rate of compensation will be the number of index points above 100 as shown by the quarterly publications of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The index figure of 100 is an average figure based on living costs in the District from 1935 through 1940. The number of index points above 100, taken to the nearest full point, will be the percentage of basic salaries and wages to be paid each employe in additional compensation.

Thus the first payment for both July and August will be at the rate of 3 per cent, since the latest index figure, as of June 15, 1941, is 103.2. The second payment, to be made in October, also will be 3 per cent, applied to salaries and wages earned in September.

Sperry said the company has agreed to meet the rising cost of living under this plan to a maximum of 10 per cent of basic pay. In the event of a rise over the index figure 110 in living costs, the maximum rate of compensation will be 10 per cent.

Gas Curfew Fails, A.A.A. Says; Tank-Car Shortage Reported

A series of sharp clashes over the 7 o'clock gasoline sales curfew and the availability of tank cars for transportation of gas to the east coast left the petroleum conservation program in a state of confusion yesterday.

At a hearing of the special Senate subcommittee investigating the gas shortage, the American Automobile Association urged that the curfew be eliminated on the grounds that "gasoline consumption figures are concrete evidence that the night closing of stations has not had the effect of reducing consumption."

Two spokesmen for gasoline retailers, however, took immediate issue with the A. A. A. demand. Benjamin Jacoby, head of the Associated Gas Retailers of Philadelphia, told the investigators that the curfew should be continued except for emergency service, adding that gas retailers were "happy" under the present arrangement. He estimated that the continuance of early closings would mean a curtailment of from 10 to 12 per cent in consumption.

Harry Wainwright, research director of the Gasoline Retailers of Washington, last night sent a telegram to the Petroleum Coordinator stating that "most certainly a percentage of curtailment results from the shorter operating hours, and we therefore recommend that present rationing hours be continued. The dealer's problem of selling the public less gas would certainly be doubled if the dealer were to reopen full time."

The Office of the Petroleum Coordinator, asked to comment on Mayor LaGuardia's statement yesterday that the 7 to 7 closing might soon be lifted, stated only that "there has been no change in hours or quantity that we know of."

Meanwhile, at the Senate hearing, Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, challenged the statement made by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, that 20,000 tank cars were available to move gas supplies to the East and relieve the present shortage.

Downey testified that a survey of eight major tank car owners in California, including the big Western railroads, had disclosed a "desperate" shortage there, and added that he believed the same situation existed elsewhere in the country. He read telegrams and letters from West Coast oil executives declaring that they were unable to obtain tank cars.

"The situation is serious," Downey declared. "By January, I believe, we

Conciliation Fails

Truck Strike Threatens D. C. With Tie-up of All Rail Freight

Washington faces a complete stoppage of railroad-moved freight in and out of the city by virtue of a proposed railroad embargo. Conciliation efforts to settle the trucking strike failed last night.

After a two-hour meeting between representatives of the striking truck drivers and truck companies, Frank H. Sheehan, of the Labor Department Conciliation Service, described the situation as "hopelessly deadlocked."

"It's difficult to say just when this strike will be settled," Sheehan said. "The two sides couldn't get together and they are now as far away from a settlement as when the strike was called. I don't know what the next move will be right now. Moreover, I told representatives of both sides I would be on call whenever they wanted to get together for another meeting."

Sheehan said the management presented its former compromise offer of wage increases to truck drivers from $31 to $33 a week and for helpers, from $25.50 to $27.50. This was rejected by the union, he said. The strikers are demanding $35 for drivers and $27.50 for helpers with a 44-hour week. They now have a 48-hour week.

The union was represented by Thomas P. O'Brien, International Teamsters Union; Linwood A. Trainman, secretary-treasurer of the striking unit, the Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers' Local Union, No. 639, A. F. L., and A. W. Stream.

Not a Shot Fired

By the Associated Press

London (Tuesday), Sept. 9.—Canadian, British and Norwegian troops have made a spectacular 2,500-mile round-trip expedition by sea to the Norwegian archipelago of Spitzbergen in the Arctic Circle where, it was understood, they smashed valuable coal mines coveted by Germany, it was announced today.

The raid on the group of islands 500 miles north of the Norwegian mainland was unopposed.

British ships removed some 1,000 Norwegian miners and their families, the men promptly enlisting in the Norwegian forces in Britain.

The announcement did not disclose when the expedition led by a Canadian officer was made. Nor was it revealed whether an Allied garrison was left on the islands which are icebound most of the year.

Russians Greet Invaders

Unofficially it was reported all the Allied troops were withdrawn.

Nearly all of the Norwegian population was removed. What happened to the Russian miners also living there was not disclosed.

These stolid Russians and Norwegians welcomed the raiders, members of the expedition said, and even helped them land supplies, seize and operate the island's two radio stations, and plan for the return journey.

The Russians in their communal centers, where pictures of Lenin, Stalin and other Soviet heroes were hung, passed out drinks and Russian cigarettes to the expedition's officers and discussed the war against Germany.

No Germans Present

The landing was made by troops armed for instant action, but members of the expedition said not a single follower of Maj. Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi leader, was found in the islands. Nor were any Germans stationed there.

This was the second British descent on Norwegian territory since the withdrawal before the Nazi occupation. An expedition landed on the Lofoten Islands in March and destroyed whale oil factories.

The war office statement said:

Fortress Taken

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Tuesday), Sept. 9.—The German-Finnish ring about Leningrad has been sealed and Russians fighting in the far north face the imminent peril of being cut off from their main forces, Germans said today following the high command's announcement of the capture of Schluesselburg, a key to the Baltic city's defenses.

With the capture of the ancient fortress of Schluesselburg, the high command said that Leningrad, itself under bombardment of German artillery for four days, now is cut off from land connections.

Twenty-one Miles From City

This, together with the interruption of rail traffic on the Leningrad-Murmansk line has severed major transportation facilities for supplies of munitions and food for the northern Soviet troops, the well-informed commentary Dienst aus Deutschland asserted.

[A dispatch from a correspondent of the British news agency Reuters reported it is certain the Germans have not encircled Leningrad.

[The Germans have approached fairly close only from the southwest, Reuters said, but not close enough for large-scale shelling.]

In taking Schluesselburg, 21 miles east of Leningrad on the Neva River and Lake Ladoga, the Germans were said to have reached the Neva "on a broad front."

This would place them much closer to Leningrad on the east than Schluesselburg itself, as the river runs from Leningrad to Schluesselburg.

Stukas Blast Batteries

Germans were greeted on the Neva with a "veritable hail of fire" from Russian batteries on the opposite side of the stream, War Correspondent Willi Stein reported.

Stein told a radio audience his unit was in a position on the river bank for five days during which they shelled craft plying between Leningrad and Schluesselburg. Five Russian gunboats, a government steamer and a tug fell victim to Nazi batteries, he said.

The correspondent related there were fires aboard the river craft and

Berlin Suffers Its Worst Raid On London Attack Anniversary

By the Associated Press

London (Tuesday), Sept. 9.—Berlin radio stations fell silent again last night, a hint that British bombers were back over the German capital which the R. A. F. had attacked for hours early yesterday—a raid officially termed the heaviest ever delivered upon Hitler's capital.

[The British radio said the R. A. F. bombed Berlin again during the night for the second nocturnal assault in a row.

[Like Sunday night's raid, the radio said it was the heaviest ever made on the German capital.]

It was payment, in the red, familiar coin of fire bombs and explosives, for the first mass air attack on London on the night of September 7-8, 1940, an assault of 8 hours and 18 minutes that by British count cost the Nazis 65 planes.

Twenty British bombers and one fighter plane, of squadrons of hundreds which crossed the Channel early yesterday in the white moonlight of Indian summer, were said to have gone down before German defensive fire, but this was the total acknowledged loss of a great anniversary offensive that struck not only at Berlin but at Kiel and other far separated points in the Reich and along the occupied French coast.

Four German fighter planes of those that leapt aloft to meet the R. A. F. were declared shot down.

It was by every account a thrust of mighty power sharply illustrating how Britain's aerial arm, strengthened by American-built planes, has grown from a year ago to take the offensive where it once fought desperately only to protect this island.

Berlin itself, said the air ministry in a brief communique, was left alight with a series of tremendous fires.

"We could see the place like a map," said a returning flight

Nazis Informed Of Bomb Sight, Spy Trial Told

Lang Took Details Of Norden Device To Reich, U. S. Charges

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 8.—An alleged German spy was openly accused in court today of having smuggled details of the Norden bomb sight—America's No. 1 military secret—to Germany, but there were indications that the espionage was arrested in time to retain the major secret as a key adjunct of United States national defense.

Parts Made Separately

Lang made a trip to Germany with his smuggled secrets, it was charged, returned to his job with Norden, became an American citizen the following year but continued to feed details concerning the bomb sight to German espionage sources in return for 10,000 marks placed to his credit.

Officials of the Norden Co. declined to make any formal statement, as all information concerning the bomb sight they make is restricted by both Army and Navy. But it was learned that no one employe—and Lang never held an important position—could conceivably discover more than a few details about the sight.

Different parts of the sight are made in separate factories and assembly is done at still another, with the final operation known only to a few men. The whole manufacturing setup is arranged to prevent any one employe from knowing more than a few details. If other alleged members of the German spy ring had been able to obtain employ-

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye of Japan is expected by officials here to make an "important public announcement" within a few days after Emperor Hirohito receives the Privy Council tomorrow to hear its recommendations on important matters of state.

Although no inkling of the nature of the announcement was permitted to leak out, information convinced diplomatic quarters here that Konoye's speech or announcement will have bearing on whether Japan stays in or gets out of its Axis partnership with Germany.

It was believed in some Washington circles that the anticipated announcement might be connected in some way with the world address to be delivered by President Roosevelt Thursday night.

The Konoye government was believed to be ready to disclose for the first time its attitude toward conversations with the United States to prevent the spread of war in the Pacific.

Lessening of Tension Seen

The fondest hope here is, of course, that Japan will cut its Axis ties. To support this hope, officials yesterday thought they discerned a recent lessening of tension between the United States and Japan.

Safe arrival of three American tankers in Vladivostok with aviation gasoline for the Soviet army was seen as in marked contrast to the bellicose statements made earlier

Willkie Ready for All-Out Defense at Senate Movie Quiz

By Lee Carson
International News Service Staff Writer

Brandishing a seven-page answer to Senator D. Worth Clark's resolution to investigate the motion picture industry on the grounds of biased anti-Nazi propaganda, the industry's counselor, Wendell Willkie last night laid plans to fire from the hip at the inquiry today by a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee.

Stating flatly in a formal reply on behalf of the movie industry that the cinemakers "make no pretense of friendliness to Nazi Germany nor to the objectives and goals of this ruthless dictatorship," Willkie said in a letter to Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, that if the committee "intends to inquire" into this opposition there "need be no investigation," the industry admits "as a whole and as individuals that they are opposed to Nazism."

Referring to the speech of Gerald Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, in St. Louis on August 1, the 1940 G. O. P. Presidential nominee said "Senator Nye has also accused the industry of cooperating with the national Administration in matters of national defense. If the committee proposes to investigate this charge, again I say there is no need of investigation. The industry has done all in its power to present a picture of our armed forces and their equipment, to sell defense bonds and raise money for the USO."

Willkie added that allegations that the industry had "executives of non-Nordic names" was "contrary to the American way of thinking" and as such difficult to answer.

In spite of the fact that "we insist that your committee is proceeding with doubtful legal authority in the conduct of the proposed hearings," Willkie said the motion picture industry intended to go along with the hearings because "the investigation and harassment of free expression in the United States is a procedure which, if once accepted, may be applied to the theater, to newspapers and magazines, to radio, to publications of all kinds, and finally to the right of officials and private people to speak freely."

On the eve of what promises to be one of the more colorful Congressional battles, committee member

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Men from the family estate will bear Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, 86-year-old mother of the Chief Executive, to her grave tomorrow, just as another generation of workmen did her husband before her.

Simple Episcopal services, omitting a eulogy, will be held at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) in the big, comfortable library of Mrs. Roosevelt's ancestral home. The mother who saw her only son inaugurated three times as President of the United States will be buried in the churchyard of St. James' Church, where she worshipped for more than half a century.

Heads of nations throughout the world, American officialdom, and plain, common citizens continued to tax communications facilities with messages of condolence. They began coming by the hundreds soon after Mrs. Roosevelt died at 11:15 a. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday, with her son beside her bed.

American Craft Struck by Bomb Is Second Lost On Way to Egypt

By William V. Nessly
Post Staff Writer

An American freighter, the Steel Seafarer, has been sunk in the Red Sea by an aerial bomb, the State Department was advised last night, in the face of President Roosevelt's proclamation of April 11 reopening the area to American shipping.

The sinking occurred Sunday. "All survivors are safe," the department was told by Consul Alexander C. Kirk, American Minister at Cairo, Egypt.

Word of the attack came amid persisting tension over last week's attack on the U. S. destroyer Greer by a German submarine in the North Atlantic, and while President Roosevelt was preparing to address the world Thursday night in a broadcast expected to concern grave concern over that While Minister Kirk reported that the plane that bombed the American ship was "unidentified" there was no disposition in official circles to consider the bombing in any other light than as fresh Axis aggression. Official sources, however, made no comment.

Nazi Warning Recalled

Germany formally warned on April 13 that, despite President Roosevelt's action of April 11, the Red Sea, the Gulfs of Suez and Agaba and as far south as the Tropic of Cancer was an "an operations area" and that "every ship which travels these waters exposes itself to destruction by mines or other weapons of war."

The American reply was, in effect, that "we will pay no attention to what Germany says; the President of the United States, and not Hitler, determines the war zones as far as we are concerned." This view was given by Maritime Commissioner John J. Dempsey, now Undersecretary of Interior, and the Maritime Commission shortly after announced that ships were proceeding to the Red Sea area, carrying American war supplies for the British, at a rate of one a day.

Since that time there has been a steady stream of American supplies, in American bottoms, flowing to the British through the area formerly closed to American ships under the Neutrality Act.

Second Sinking on Route

Sunday's sinking was the second of an American vessel pursuing that 14,000-mile route from the United States to Egypt, via the Cape of Good Hope.

On May 21 the freighter Robin Moor was halted by a German submarine, its crew and passengers were ordered into boats, and the War Sidelights

British Lose Two Flying Fortresses

London, Sept. 8 (AP).—Two American-made fortress bombers tonight were reported missing by the British air ministry—the first time it has been admitted any of these rugged four-motored machines have been lost.

The fortress plane, known in the United States as the Boeing B-17, has been used by the British for high-ceiling bombing operations as well as reconnaissance. The plane can fly 300 miles an hour and attain a height of 29,300 feet. Its normal crew is from seven to nine persons.

[Berlin dispatches said German chasers today shot down two of three British four-motored bombers which attacked the Norwegian coast at noon. The Germans also reported shooting down the first four-motored bomber yesterday on the Norwegian coast.]

He died Friday after being stabbed in the neck during a Nazi parade at Utrecht. The Dutch agency quoted the German-controlled Netherlands radio as authority for this repart.

Report Foe Retreats After Battle East Of Ruined Smolensk

By The Associated Press

Moscow (Tuesday), Sept. 9.—The Red army proclaimed today as its greatest victory of the war against Germany the routing of eight Nazi divisions totaling about 115,000 men in the Smolensk area of the central front.

The German formations were smashed in a 26-day battle that ended in a victory for Soviet arms yesterday when Red army units regained the town of Yelnya, 40 miles east of Smolensk, an official announcement said today.

This was the first time in more than two years of European war that Adolf Hitler's men have been driven out of any major position once they had taken a foothold.

Not only were they driven out but what's left of them now is in disordered retreat, the Russians said.

On both ends of the front, meanwhile, counterattack after counterattack by the Red forces appeared to be relieving pressure on Leningrad, Odessa and Kiev.

200 Miles From Moscow

The recapture of Yelnya dislodged the Germans from an important rail town 200 miles west of Moscow. The account of the battle there was the first official admission here that the Germans had gotten that close to the Soviet capital.

The ferocity of the struggle on the central front was matched on the north where Marshal Klementi Voroshilov's armies stubbornly were defending Leningrad, three weeks after the Germans declared the second Soviet city "under direct threat of attack."

The exact location of the fighting on the approaches to Leningrad was not given but today's communique said guerrillas were operating in the rear of the Germans in the vicinity of Luga, a rail junction 80 miles south of the Baltic city.

The Russians, broadening their aerial offensive, reported a Red air force raid on Bucharest Sunday night and repeated assaults upon German troops in the field and their airdromes behind the lines.

At the conclusion of the massive battle of Yelnya the Russians said their troops occupied the town yesterday.

The routed German divisions were identified as one SS (Black Shirt Elite Guards), Seventeenth Motorized, Tenth Tank, 137th Austrian, Fifteenth, 178th, 292d and 268th Infantry.

Leningrad broadcasts breathed defiance as workers, soldiers, sailors pledged defense to the death, but admitted that the city now is in the front line of a fierce battle.

City a Fortress

Not for a moment in more than 20 years have Soviet leaders allowed themselves to forget the peril Leningrad was in when the Germans armies drove close to the huge industrial center and port in the World War. For years they devoted themselves to converting the whole Leningrad area to a vast sprawling fortress, and from that fastness of bunkers, pillboxes and forts, augmented by thousands of newly built barricades, trenches, wire and traps the Russians fight now to save the city which, tradition says, was built upon the bones of the subjects of Czar Peter.

[The Germans in a special communique declared they had driven to Schluesselburg, on Lake Ladoga, 21 miles east of Leningrad, thus looping the city with German and Finnish steel which now reached from sea to lake on each side of the former capital.]

One raiding cavalry unit was said to have dashed to the German rear in a sweeping foray which cost the Germans 1200 in killed and 500 wounded. A staff headquarters was said to have been captured and a German general killed.

On the central front, where a series of Russian counterattacks has been in progress for many days, a new encounter in which a Russian battalion repulsed a large-scale German assault in a 24-hour battle was reported. The Germans were said to have lost 600 men.

Operations Slacken

The rather sparse reports from this sector west of Moscow indicated, however, that operations there were slackening.

In the south violent battles still raged as the Germans continued to fight along the approaches to Kiev and isolated Odessa on the Black Sea. The siege of Odessa is now a month old, while about Kiev the Germans have been held in their places since the first week of August.

that "screaming Russians jumped into the water."

Other radio accounts said the Stukas blasted bridges across the Neva and protecting Soviet anti-aircraft batteries. Wave attacks by the dive-bombers were said to have knocked out all but two of the numerous Soviet batteries.

[The German radio announced that Russians put up desperate resistance at Schluesselburg. A broadcast picked up by N. B. C. said advancing German troops found the terrain strewn with land mines. The city was captured only after a special German sapper detail had worked for ten hours removing 1800 of the mines, the broadcast said.]

German dispatches said hundreds of dive-bombers struck at Leningrad defenses to bolster ground troops and siege guns which first shelled Leningrad and Schluesselburg last Friday. An indication of the size of the air battles was given in an official announcement that the Russians lost 71 planes Sunday, including nine destroyed on the ground.

Crossing the Neva cut Russian water communications to Lake Ladoga—the first link of the Baltic to the White Sea route via the Stalin Canal.

To the northeast, Finnish troops were said to have reached the Svir River, a part of the Stalin Canal between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega.

Thus in the two actions the Germans and Finns divided important sections of the Russian navy. No Russian ship can now move from the Arctic to the Baltic.

D. N. B. acknowledged that Russians had counterattacked with reinforced strength at several points, but said the attacks had been repulsed. The Germans claimed they continued to advance in the Gomel (central) area and denied reports that the Russians had reoccupied Gomel.

Roads "Bottomless Mud"

Around Leningrad the roads were described as "bottomless mud." The Germans encountered bitter resistance at every clump of trees and on every hillock.

"In the central sector of the eastern front the Russians repeatedly tried to capture a bridgehead formed by the Germans," D. N. B. said. "Notwithstanding deadly fire the Bolsheviks sent one company after another into the battle, but all their attacks failed amidst the severest bloody losses for the Bolsheviks, who also left 732 prisoners in German hands.

"Good successes were achieved in this region despite greatest difficulties. After days of incessant rains the German troops encountered morassy roads which rendered particularly difficult the bringing up of supplies and artillery."

British Flier, Neck Stiff From Circling U-Boat, Tells How Plane Captured Sub and Crew

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 8.—The stiff-necked pilot and weary crewmen of an American-built Hudson Lockheed bomber received official credit tonight for capture of a German submarine in one of the most amazing air vs. sea battles of the war, and all of them were eager to tell about it.

The pilot's neck was so stiff he couldn't turn his head. It got that way when he circled over the U-boat for three and a half hours after forcing its surrender by machine-gun fire at part of the crew trapped on deck.

"I kept my eyes on it every minute," the pilot said. "Then finally the Catalina flying boat we wirelessed for came and I turned the watch to them. They kept watch on the sub till the navy came."

U-Boat Just Breaking

[Air ministry rules prevented transmission of the names of the pilot and crew. The location and time of the attack were not given, but naval authorities in London said they doubted it was the submarine which attacked the United States destroyer Greer.]

The four crewmen and 32-year-old Yorkshireman captain of the bomber told this story:

Patroling far at sea the plane dive-bombed a submarine just as it was breaking the surface. A gunner shouted when he saw it rise to an almost even keel, surging up through a mass of whitecaps.

"Machine-gun them! Let's machine-gun them," he called to the rest of the crew.

Then the plane dived across the submarine, all guns blazing—front guns, the rear turret and the belly gun. As the plane dived the submarine's conning tower hatch was thrown open. About 12 of the submarine crew tumbled out and dropped on deck.

Keep Firing Hard

The men in the Lockheed thought the crew was manning antiaircraft guns, so kept their own guns firing hard. Red streaks of tracer bullets peppered into the conning tower and kicked up spurts of water all around the U-boat.

This was too much for the Germans. Those who were already on deck turned and ran back to the conning tower. They ran into a group coming up from below and trying to push out.

"There was an awful shambles," said the pilot. "They were all mixed up together. Some were trying to get in. Others were trying to get out."

The plane roared over the U-boat four times, guns streaming bullets, banking steeply each time to swing around into the attack again while the rear guns and belly guns kept up the fire.

Out of the Conning Tower

The rear turret was firing practically all the time. All the pilot remembered hearing besides the din of firing was the navigator muttering over and over:

"Look at those ——s coming out of the conning tower. I've lived all my life to see those ——s coming out of the conning tower."

When the Lockheed came round for the fifth attack the U-boat surrendered. One of its crew held a white shirt above the conning tower and waved it violently.

The Lockheed gunners ceased fire but continued to circle with their sights trained. The Germans' heads turned, eyes following them, as they banked around and the shirt kept waving.

The plane was flying about 50 feet above the water. The submarine crew, between 30 and 40 men, crowded into the conning tower.

"A glum lot they were," the pilot said. "We were close enough to see their faces and there wasn't a smile anywhere."

The U-boat was riding so low that the waves occasionally broke over the conning tower. The plane sent several wireless calls for relief and finally the flying boat arrived.

Just before dark a British warship steamed up. Men from the ship said that a fierce gale was blowing and the submarine couldn't be boarded. A relief Catalina flying boat came during the night. Now and then foam smothered the submarine's light.

When dawn broke the U-boat was surrounded by warships and her crew removed. The Navy took her to a British port.

Britons Going Via Reich

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 8 (AP).—A party of 61 Britons left Helsinki by train today for a rail and boat trip to Luebeck, Germany, where most of them will be locked in a special train to cross Germany on the second stage of their journey home.

They will embark at the Finnish part of Turku for the voyage to Luebeck. At Stockholm their ship will pick up 50 more Britishers who will make the trip across Germany.

The break in diplomatic relations between Finland and Great Britain made their departure necessary. A trip through German-held territory was the only practical route.

The Germans have agreed to provide a sealed train at Luebeck to take the group to Hamburg, whence they may proceed partly through German-occupied country to Lisbon and London.

U. S. Air Service Once Rejected Hero With R.A.F.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 8 (INS).—If a proud father's identification is correct, the American pilot who was cited for bravery in bringing a damaged plane to earth in England was rejected when he tried to enlist in the United States air service.

Forest P. Dowling, Oklahoma City insurance broker, said he was certain that the "Patrick" Dowling referred to in the London Dispatch was his son, who was nicknamed "Pat." Young Dowling enlisted in the R. A. F. at London July 3, and the father hasn't heard from him directly since.

What good is a BLIMP?

THE slow speed at which lighter-than-air ships can be flown is their outstanding advantage in coast patrol and convoy duty. Their ability to hover practically motionless in the air enables them to detect lurking submarines and mines—at depths invisible to swift-flying airplanes. At their slow speeds blimps consume far less fuel than five-mile-a-minute planes—can remain aloft hours longer. America today commands the most efficient and air-worthy of these aerial "spotters"—because Goodyear is the only organization on earth that has been continuously building, operating and improving its own fleet of blimps since the first World War.

Conference Battle On Tax Bill Seen

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LORRAINE MILLER, 19-year-old nurse from Flint, Mich., got a job in Hollywood as an assistant to a physician on a studio lot. House Committee Expected to Fight For Its Version

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A House conference fight on base-broadening provisions of the Senate tax bill was foreshadowed yesterday as Ways and Means Committee leaders studied Senate changes in the $3,216,400,000 House measure.

Conferences to iron out differences between the two bills will open tomorrow, with House conferees standing by their own stiffened schedule of individual surtaxes, without base-broadening features.

Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, who will lead House managers of the bill, meanwhile questioned whether lowering of exemptions to $750 for single persons and $1500 for married will defray Treasury costs of collection from the new group of taxpayers covered in.

Doughton said the bulk of the 303-million-dollar revenue estimated from the move would come from steeper charges against persons now taxed and not from the 4,911,000 persons in the lower base filing returns for the first time.

He said his committee, in starting surtaxes at 5 per cent on the first taxable dollar after present income tax exemptions, concluded this was as high as the present cross section of income taxpayers could equitably be expected to bear.

The Senate retained the House schedule, except for merging the 10 per cent defense tax into slightly higher surtax rates. In lowering exemptions, however, increased tax payments were automatically required of all taxpayers up the line.

Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee, who will lead Senate tax managers at the conference, said last night he considered the Senate's base-broadening action a "vital" contribution to tax policy.

George said it was true that only small assessments will be made against the new bloc of taxpayers brought into the structure, and that bulk of the new revenue would come from higher brackets. But he said that did not detract from the soundness of requiring contributions in the present emergency from all persons reasonably able to pay.

Another Senate addition to the bill, the Byrd amendment setting up a 14-man joint committee to effect nondefense economies, appeared certain of conference adoption.

Doughton Hails Move

Representative Doughton, who long has urged nondefense cuts, yesterday indorsed the economy move. Aimed at a slash of between one and two billion dollars in nonessential spending, the amendment puts representatives of taxing and appropriations committees in both Houses on a special committee with the Secretary of the Treasury and Budget Director to recommend the reductions.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, author of the plan, meanwhile was encouraging formation of citizens' club throughout the country to support proposed cuts.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, in Dallas, Tex., said there was little difference between the two bills and "a report should be ready during the first week of the renewed session."

force to the Arctic.

"In the course of operations which were carried out without enemy interference, a landing was effected in Spitzbergen by mixed Canadian, British and Norwegian forces under Canadian command. The main purpose of the landing was to prevent the enemy from utilizing for their own purposes Spitzbergen with its rich coal mines.

"Previously, a proportion of Spitzbergen coal had been at the disposal of the population of northern Norway, but it has become known that the enemy's plan was to sieze all coal available, including that from Spitzbergen, which would be used mainly for war transport to the Far North. This source of fuel has now ben denied to the Germans.

"An immediate result of the Spitzbergen landing is that a considerable number of Norwegian miners, with their families, have arrived in Great Britain to play a part in the Allied war effort here. Most of them will be joining the Norwegian forces or the Norwegian merchant service."

An immediate result of the Spitzbergen landing is that a considerable number of Norwegian miners with their families have now arrived in Great Britain to play a part in the Allied war effort here. Most of them will be joining the Norwegian forces or the Norwegian merchant service.

Spitzbergen is an Arctic archipelago, between Greenland and Novya Zemlya off the Russian mainland and not far from Franz Josef land, and has a total area of 25,000 square miles.

It comprises West Spitzbergen, 15,200 square miles; North-East land, about 6,000 square miles; Edge Island, 2,500 square miles; Barents Island, 580 square miles, and Prince Charles Foreland, the Wiche Islands, Hope Island and many smaller islands.

The sharp peaks which gave Spitzbergen its name rise to 4,960 feet in Horn Sund Tind in the South, 3,450 feet in Mount Monaco on Prince Charles Foreland and 4,770 feet in Mount Edisvoll in the northwest.

The sea around Spitzbergen is shallow and ice readily accumulates around the shores. Pack ice prevents access to most shores except for a few months in the year.

However, the warm North Atlantic drift sends a branch to the western shores of Spitzbergen, moderating its climate and leaving an open passage which permits vessels to approach the western coast during most of the months of the year. The fjords are frozen from October to May.

Coal is the principal product. The population in the winter of 1937-38 was 2653.

Nazis to Be Expelled In 1942, Says Envoy

Norwegian Minister Wilhelm de Morgenstierne last night hailed the seizure of Spitzbergen as "only the beginning," and expressed confidence that all German forces soon will be driven from Norway.

"For several reasons, I have reason to believe that we shall all be back in our native Norway, without a single German left in the country, in the next year, during 1942," the Minister said.

"Reports these past few weeks have been most encouraging. The Germans have already suffered a severe ideological defeat in Norway, with resistance of the Norwegians not alone being sustained, but increasing in strength daily.

"This new instance of British-Norwegian cooperation in the common war against the Nazis makes me very happy. I am particularly glad to know—though not surprised—that the Norwegian citizens wanted to go back to England and join our forces there for advancement of the Allied war effort."

Japan May Make Vital Declaration

by Japanese officials regarding such shipments.

Japan protested to Moscow and Washington against the shipments a fortnight ago, but apparently made no effort to intercept the first three tankers which, to reach the Russian port, had to pass almost within sight of Japanese territory.

Konoye's reported announcement, it was ventured, might be in the form of comment on his personal letter to President Roosevelt that inaugurated conversations between Mr. Roosevelt and the Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Nomura.

Since the initial publicly announced meeting last month the conversations have not been resumed. If President Roosevelt has made any reply to the message from Konoye, the public has not been informed of it.

The President might also insert some statement on relations with Japan in his Thursday night address, it was said.

Japan Weighs Greer Incident And Its Results

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Sept. 8.—The question of who fired first in the U. S. S. Greer-Nazi submarine sea duel assumed prime importance in the Japanese press today as leaders of public opinion weighed the chances of the incident involving Japan in war.

Article three of the tripartite pact among Japan, Germany and Italy obligates signatories to aid the others if "attacked" by an outside power.

Press opinion was divided between those blaming the United States for the incident and those professing ignorance as to who was the aggressor.

The army-dominated organ, Kokumin, led press comment on the Greer incident with the observation it meant Germany now felt able to take a positive attitude toward the United States. The newspaper added, however, that contradictory American and German versions of who began the duel made it doubtful what Japan's obligations would be if the incident were extended.

The Japan Times and Advertiser—foreign-office controlled—accepted the German version inferentially in recounting the combat.

Chugai Shogyo, an organ of big business, declared it was "impossible to judge which party fired first and advised Japanese to remember "the Pacific would actually be affected" if the United States were drawn into war with Germany.

The newspaper Hochi declared flatly that "regardless of assertions in the Greer incident, the whole responsibility must be placed upon the United States."

New York, Sept. 8 (INS).—The N. B. C. today picked up a British broadcast quoting the German radio in a home service broadcast as saying that "if America continues to ignore blockaded waters, war will be inevitable."

The Berlin wireless was further quoted by London as stating: "The shot which was fired by the Greer at the German submarine was the opening shot in a shooting war between Germany and the United States."

Iran Parliament Called To Hear Allies' Terms

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 8 (AP).—The hard-pressed Iranian government today called an extraordinary session of Parliament for tomorrow to announce Anglo-Russian occupation terms, the foremost of which is understood to require expulsion of all Axis nationals from the Teheran zone.

His Third Trip

Windsors Due Here Sept. 25 To Spend Day

The Duke of Windsor and his Baltimore-born duchess will spend 24 hours in Washington, arriving September 25, the British Embassy announced yesterday.

For the shy Duke, now Governor of the Bahamas, the visit will be his third, but the first since he ascended the British throne as Edward VIII, and later abdicated to marry the former Wallis Warfield.

No official program of entertainment has yet been arranged, but officials took it for granted that formalities would be held to a minimum, due to the brevity of the stay and in keeping with the wartime practice of the British royal family.

The couple will stop here on their way to the Duke's ranch in Alberta, Canada. They will stay overnight at the British Embassy.

The visit was certain to lack the glamour of the Duke's last appearances in the Capital when, as the young Prince of Wales, he charmed Washington debutantes and made blue shirts a national fad.

He first visited Washington in November, 1919, for a three-day round of strenuous official and social activities. President Wilson was ill at the time and the young Prince paid his respects to the statesman.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, whose husband was then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, sat next to the young Windsor at a dinner given for him here at the time by Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert Lansing.

The second visit was a brief one, in August, 1924. The prince called on President Calvin Coolidge, who relaxed his famous taciturnity to entertain the young heir to the British throne.

The visit of the Duke and Duchess will be the third occasion since just before the start of the present war that British royalty have visited the Capital.

In the summer of 1939 King George and Queen Elizabeth were the President's guests at the White House, while the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of Edward, stopped there a fortnight ago.

Norden Employe Told Nazis About Bomb Sight, U.S. Charges

ment in other departments of the company, it was acknowledged, experts might eventually have pieced the whole mechanism together and guessed the secret, but there was no evidence that this had yet been accomplished.

The Norden sight, developed for the Navy but used by both services, was still considered so secret last year that the American Government released to England only its No. 2 secret sight, the Sperry sight, developed for and used only by the Army. In Washington today War Department officials said the Norden sight is still looked on as the Army's No. 1 bomb sight."

Kennedy made plain that Lang had not supplied all the desired information on the Norden sight when he went to Germany in 1938.

"When he came back to his job at Norden's," he said, "he continued to feed out information about the sight. The oath of allegiance to the United States which he took in naturalization court didn't stop him."

Kennedy said that Lang, his 15 codefendants and 17 others who pleaded guilty rather than stand trial were supplied with plenty of money and used airplanes, secret ink, intricate codes, radios and micro-cameras in obtaining and reporting secrets which Germany wished to learn.

The prosecutor said the spy ring was operated with all the mystery and intrigue of the most lurid fiction. Few of the spies, he said, were aware of the identity of the others.

A code was used based on current books, each spy being given a different book. When a cable message was received by one of the spies, Kennedy said, the spy would add the date of receipt to the month of the year, plus 20, and then turn to that page in his book. He would work out the code then by an intricate system of counting lines and letters.

Kennedy said the book assigned to Alex Wheeler-Hill, one of the defendants, was entitled "Halfway to Horror."

Frederick J. Duquesne, a defendant who is a native of South Africa and is alleged to have been an anti-British spy in the first World War, was said by Kennedy to have operated so boldly that he wrote the chief of the United States Army Chemical Warfare Service for some secret information.

"Don't worry if this stuff is confidential," he was said to have added in a postscript to the letter, "'because it is in the hands of a good citizen."

First witness at the trial was Raymond Muir, of the State Department Protocol Division, who testified that none of the defendants had ever registered as agents of a foreign country. If convicted each defendant could be sentenced to 22 years in prison.

Held in Attacks On Eight Women

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HOY KENNETH HOUCK, 21-year-old former orchestra leader, charged with aggravated assault and battery, was held in Lock Haven, Pa., yesterday in connection with a series of attacks on eight young women. Police said Houck signed a statement admitting he slugged eight of the women.

Simple Rites Set For Mrs. Roosevelt

Roosevelt Library, near Hyde Park house, was the only visible evidence of his sorrow.

It was as Franklin D. Roosevelt, the individual, rather than as the President of a Nation, that Mr. Roosevelt bore his sorrow. Yet the duties of his office intruded into the privacy he sought.

White House officials placed before him, reluctantly, papers demanding his immediate attention. One official remarked, "His job goes on."

The Rev. Frank R. Wilson, rector at St. James', will conduct the services. A choir of eight voices will sing two of Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite hymns, "Abide With Me" and "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

The last request of the President's father was that men on the estate be his pallbearers. The decision to follow the same procedure again illustrated the love of the Roosevelts for the traditions of the family and their own Hudson Valley.

Grandmother 'Republican,' James Says

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 8.—Despite the fact her son was three times the successful Democratic candidate for the Presidency and she herself voted the Democratic ticket, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt was regarded as a Republican at heart by at least one of her worshiping grandchildren.

"At heart, grandmother is really a Republican and none of us is fooled," Capt. James (Jimmy) Roosevelt, named for his late grandfather, told me recently in relating the following anecdote:

"Her father and all the members of her family were conservative Republicans. When my grandfather Roosevelt asked my great-grandfather Delano for her hand in marriage, there was a family council.

"My great-grandfather was completely puzzled by my grandfather. 'He is well off and will be able to provide properly Sara,' he said. 'He is well born, well bred and well educated, but he is a Democrat!'

"Despite that almost insurmountable handicap, my grandfather had so many other redeeming qualities that the romance and subsequent marriage received the blessing of the Delano family, and grandmother—to all intents and purposes—adopted the political faith of her husband."

Perhaps You Remember

THIS IS NOT the first time that you have called upon Dodge automotive plants and men to meet a National Emergency. You probably remember that you called them to the colors once before; that you found their service good; that their dependability was not a catch-word, but a watch-word, in France and on the training fields at home, for the highest mechanical excellence.

Now again you have called Dodge to the National Defense. And Dodge has swiftly answered. Already many thousands of its highly trained men have been transferred from the work of building motorcars to the more urgent and crucial tasks of building army trucks, tanks, guns and airplane assemblies. Again Dodge is throwing its great industrial weight into your program of Defense. And, as you require, Dodge will again remain a defense force, with every ounce of its energy, every inch of the way.

You May Also Recall

You may clearly remember that the first time you called on Dodge for aid in National Defense, its motorcars were reaching the very peak of their first young success. Then suddenly, remember, there were fewer of them because there were fewer men to make them, and less material to make them with. Perhaps you also remember that it was these fewer Dodge cars, and the qualities inherent in them, that helped to lay the lasting foundation for a world-wide reputation for Dependability.

Later—A Quarter Century

Now again Dodge moves full speed ahead in the service of the Government of the United States. Dodge does this with full knowledge of its duty and full confidence in your own respect for the spirit that is Dodge. These cars will, of course, always remain at their finest. You may approach the purchase of your own new Dodge with complete confidence in its enduring value,—its ability to serve you extremely well for even more years than you would normally choose to drive it. It is a firm and final fact that these are the finest cars that Dodge has ever built.

There can be no curtailment of Dodge quality . . . no substitute for Dodge Dependability.

House to Take Up New Lend-Lease Bill on Its Return

The House will find its next big defense job awaiting when it returns from vacations next Monday—a new six billion dollar estimate for lend-lease aid to Britain.

Plans call for submission of budget figures on the second installment of British aid appropriations on Thursday, unless the President's message is delayed owing to the death of his mother.

Representative Woodrum, (Democrat), of Virginia, acting chairman of the deficiencies appropriations subcommittee, said hearing will begin on Monday and, predicted action by the House before the end of the week.

Woodrum expects passage by the House with a minimum of friction. He pointed out that aid policies were firmly established on passage of the original seven-billion dollar appropriation and said there was no reason to expect a repetition of that fight.

Main question before the committee, Woodrum said, will be justification of additional amounts needed.

At a press conference last week, President Roosevelt said nearly all of the original seven-billion-dollar appropriation had been allocated and orders have been placed for more than half of the total. The balance is expected to be allocated within the next two to three months.

Successor for Taylor

Ways and Means Committee Democrats, sitting as the House committee on committees, meanwhile are expected to nominate a successor to the late Representative Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado, as chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

The nomination is expected to go to Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri. Both Woodrum and Cannon were appointed to the Appropriations Committee the same day, but Cannon takes precedence, as his name was mentioned first in the appointment resolution.

Woodrum has seniority on the deficiencies subcommittee handling lend-lease appropriations and supplemental defense funds, but Cannon, as full committee chairman, would have the right to claim the subcommittee chairmanship. Friends expressed doubt he would do so.

Postal Workers Honor Rev. Winston B. Hill

The Rev. Winston B. Hill, of 416 D Street Southeast, who retired from the postoffice August 31, was presented with a watch, a gift from his coworkers, at his home Saturday night.

Mr. Hill, who worked for 34 years at the postoffice as a special clerk, received letters of praise from Postmaster General Walker, Postmaster Burke, Assistant Postmaster Bursly and Superintendent of Mails Bell.

After serving 21 years as pastor of the Northeast Baptist Church, Mr. Hill was forced to retire because of ill health a few years ago.

Now The Civic Launches Its Subscription Drive

You'll Be Hearing From the Committee Teams; Phil Hayden's Army Camp Revue Rehearses; Items of the Current Theater Scene

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

ANY DAY NOW you and you and you will be confronted by a zealous missionary for the Civic Theater's new season.

If ever the Civic is to hit the bull's-eye in the Capital, this, figure the powers that are, ought to be it. As already announced a 30-week production plan has been determined. Now comes news of how it is to be sold to the public.

INGRID BERGMAN

At a meeting over the weekend, a subscription committee was formed with Zella Mize, formerly of the Tulsa Little Theater, as chairman and coordinator. The drive will be carried out by ten team captains, all Federal employes, who will cover all the Government offices and be assigned to specific sections of the city. They will, one hopes, put on the Paul Revere act in a big way. So in case Lawrence Beckerman, Ed Stevlingson, Harrison Libby, Bob Willing, Maccubbin Waters, Geneva Helm, Bette Brady, Charlotte Armstrong, Ann Donaldson and Harriod Freeman come to call on you, give them a chance to tell you what it's all about.

Already the Civic is ready for rehearsals on the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart play, "The American Way," which will be the first in the series, opening early in October. Director Leon Askin's staff will include Bill Lawless, as stage manager, Dorothy Croissant, for the wardrobe, Gail Benedict and Bernice Krause in the business office. Ed Stevlingson, Ann Donaldson, Joseph Bourne, Mary Jo Day and Selma Klein also are on the staff. It looks as though those ambitious plans actually are getting started.

Phil Haden's Camp Revue Tomorrow Night

Phil Hayden's "Jest-Rite Jamboree," third of the Defense Council's efforts on behalf of entertainment in the Army camps, had its dress rehearsal last night in Central High School's Auditorium, where it will be given its "Public Preview" Wednesday evening. Harry Anger's "Marching Along" did so well last week—Mrs. Henry A. Wallace being one member of the audience who took time to write of her enjoyment of the revue—that tomorrow evening's offering should benefit from the high regard engendered by the Earle director's success. Hayden's revue has a cast of 25 including a handful of performers we saw at the early try-outs. And for them we'll vouch: Wilbur Hall and Phil Sack, rope-monologuists of the first order; Carl Mainfort, a Cardini in his own right; Ray Levy, whose aplomb should make him a smart m. c., and songstress Betty Raymond. The Hayden revue is smartly costumed and rarin' to go.

And speaking of the Defense Council attractions, despite the fact that some of the performers are professionals, they get not a cent for their services. That 25 cents you pay at Central goes—and not half far enough—solely for expenses of the units. Theatrical folk have always been generous to a fault and this is no exception. So if you hear some cynic remark on the presence of professionals in these units and hint of financial gain, bop him one. 'Taint so.

ϕϒϑ

Yes, those are new faces in the Capitol Theater Orchestra. You saw Morgan Baer conduct before Sam Jack Kaufman returned from his vacation and he'll be waving the stick again. Baer is N. B. C.'s music director in Washington, a big job in itself. At the piano is Burris Williams, back in the pit after two seasons at the Versailles. Jimmy Taylor's should be a familiar face, too. He's back with his trumpet after a couple of years with Irving Aaronson's Commanders. Charles Frankhauser is just a youngster, but he's had a year with Glenn Miller as trumpeter. This is his first theater engagement and it's likely you'll be hearing his arrangements as well as his trumpet.

ϕϒϑ

Sharkey, coming to the Earle Friday, wants to make a date with Ronnie Cunningham of Ed Wynn's musical at the National. They both were in "Higher and Higher." You may not know it, but Miss C. does—Sharkey's a seal . . . That "Intermezzo" really must have something. Tomorrow it begins a fourth week at the Little and over in Baltimore the Ingrid Bergman-Leslie Howard revival has already spun off two and a half months . . . The Blackfriars are having their final tryouts for "Ladies in Retirement," their first production of the season, tomorrow evening at the Guild Hall, 2115 Fifteenth Street Northwest, 8 sharp is the time . . . "When Ladies Meet" definitely succeeds "Dr. Jekyll &" on Thursday at the Palace.

HEDDA HOPPER

Turns New Leaves

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 8. It's grand to be back. Feel as though I could move mountains. Canada's tourist trade greatest they've ever had.

SPENCER TRACY

Had chance to catch up on my reading, "Keys of the Kingdom" by A. J. Cronin, which I understand has been bought for Spence Tracy, is grand. Had a note from Cronin some time ago saying, "I'm quite certain Hollywood will never have the courage to do this." You see, he's wrong. But it will take some doing. When you mix up with the church, you have to be mighty careful. While one character is Chist-like, others are not so saintly.

Movies should grab "School for Eternity" by Harry Hervey. Not in years have I read such word pictures of pleasant and unpleasant characters. He's a master craftsman, his book will be among best sellers. Eric Knight's "This Above All" is a searing story of England's war. And of course, Bill Shirer's "Berlin Diary." Had time to digest "Personal Exposures" by Rex Beach, and in these days of carping, was delighted to come across a compliment for the picture business and Sam Goldwyn.

ϕϒϑ

A new "discovery" story concerns the Peter Brothers, aged 11 and 14, signed for "Babes on Broadway" and "Panama Hattie," they'll do the hoe-down routine. Studio heard about them from Governor of Wisconsin and Mayor of Milwaukee. Boys' neighbors got together and collected money for their Hollywood trip.

ϕϒϑ

Am I flattered! While I'm in Milwaukee for the Legion convention Tuesday, September 16, world premiere of "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood," my first short, will be held there, with Bob Hope present and maybe Bill Hart, who's in the picture—and is he good! . . . 'Twas ever thus. Alfred de Liagre, jr., who's been here all summer helping David Selznick produce those plays in Santa Barbara, has offered me the starring part in his new Broadway play "The Walrus and the Carpenter." I'm tied up and can't go. I can hear some sigh, "What a pity!"

ϕϒϑ

The price of clipping has gone up so that Greer Garson is learning to use the shears on her French poodles. When graduated, suppose she'll turn them on herself . . . Now that the flower show is on here, lovely Irene Hayes famous florist, is on from New York, and that cosmopolitan man - about - town, Roland Young, is paying her marked attention. If he sends her orange blossoms, could it be construed as "Coals to Newcastle?"

ϕϒϑ

With so many people getting bouquets for things they didn't do, I'd like to credit Producer Bobby North with the success of "Icecapades," the Republic picture Warners bought before it was finished. Bobby's credit was a raise in salary . . . Don't understand why Hollywood allows Eddie Albert to go jobless. Every studio is howling for leading men, and he's one of the finest ever to hit this town . . . I loved Richard Greene in an interview saying that going back to England was a good thing for him. He was never mad to all that Hollywood means.

That Wynnsome Expression

ED WYNN,
whose "Boys and Girls Together" opened last night at the National for a week's engagement of The Perfect Fool's latest inventions. Among the boys and girls are Dave Apollon, Marjorie Gainsworth, the D'Ivons and two Washington dancers, Walter Long and Ronnie Cunningham

LEONARD LYONS

Long Remembered

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: Many years ago Gene Bedini, a juggler, came to America. On his first day here he attracted Nation-wide publicity by catching, on a fork held between his teeth, a turnip dropped from the top of the Flatiron Building. It established his reputation, and he became a star in the Nation's vaudeville houses . . . Among the young assistants he hired was Eddie Cantor and then, in 1910, George Jessel . . . Next month Bedini will return to Broadway. He has a walk-on part, in Jessel's forthcoming musical.

GEORGE JESSEL

BUSINESS DEPT: Seven years ago I reported that Harpo Marx, wearing a wig, beard and coat disguise, went to Tiffany's and, on his way out, tripped across the doorway. Countless diamond rings fell from his sleeves and pockets. The Tiffany guards detained him, until the rings were examined and proved to be of 5 and 10 cent store quality . . . During his recent visit to the East, Harpo, undisguised, went to Tiffany's again. As soon as he crossed the threshold, three guards started to follow him and observed him diligently while he selected his purchase. They were silent throughout their vigil—completely silent, except once when, as he entered, a guard tapped him and grimly said: "No tricks now, Mr. Marx."

ϕϒϑ

THEATER DEPT.: Last week Frank Craven and his son, John, opened the Broadway season in an amusing play called "Village Green" . . . The show first played Baltimore where, as has been his wont these past few years, Craven gave interviewers this weary lament: "The Theater isn't what it used to be. They don't do things the way we used to do them, when I first started. The Theater, alas, is vanishing" . . . An elderly lady, who had worked in the drama department of a Baltimore newspaper many years ago then brought to him a yellow, faded clipping. The news-story had been written in 1898. It was an interview with John T. Craven, father of Frank. "The Theater has changed," John T. Craven had told that reporter of the Nineties. "It's different now than when I was a boy. The Theater is dying" . . . Frank's son, young John, laughed when he was shown this faded clipping of his grandfather's, now being echoed by his father. "Don't laugh," Frank Craven told him. "Thirty years from now you'll be saying the same thing."

ϕϒϑ

Alice Duer Miller, whose "White Cliffs of Dover" still is a best-seller, was at a party where a young lady uttered objectionable phrases about every guest present . . . The young lady finally departed, without her escort—who entered the living room and asked: "Where'd my girl go?" . . . "Home," Mrs. Miller informed . . . "But how?" asked the escort. "I've got her car" . . . "She flew home," Mrs. Miller explained, "——on her broomstick."

ϕϒϑ

On Madero Street in Mexico City, two weeks ago, I met A. C. Blumenthal, who has been cited for contempt of court for failing to appear, in response to a subpena, in the trial of Joe Schenck . . . Blumenthal's plea to the court was that he is too ill to return here—and he really is ill. He will be operated upon at the Spanish Hospital in Mexico City . . . There is little legal precedent for his contempt citation, and so the United States Supreme Court will have to decide its legality. Blumenthal said that he could no have been of any assistance in the Schenck trial because—while he shared a New York apartment with the movie producer—he always left the room whenever Schenck transacted any business . . . Although no subpena fee was given him by the process server, Blumenthal will return to the jurisdiction at the end of the year.

Ed Wynn at His Incomparable Merriest in National Revue

By Richard L. Coe

"BOYS AND GIRLS TOGETHER." Ed Wynn in the musical revue he concocts, conceived, written and directed by himself, with Dave Apollon, Marjorie Gainsworth, The D'Ivons, Ivy Martin, Paul La Varre, Eugene Wills, Frank La Varre, Carol Parker, Walter Long, Ronnie Cunningham, Jack Williamson, Bert and Dick Kenny, Lucienne and Ashour, Gloria Geiger, the Cinque Girls, the Wynnsome Dancing Girls, Fred Hoff's Orchestra and many others. Lyrics by Jack Yellen and Irving Kahal, music by Sammy Fain. Additional dialogue by Fred G. Finch. Choreography by Albertina Rasch. Reviewed Monday evening, at the National Theater.

Ed Wynn, bless his immortal soul, is still the most comical man on earth. His triumphantly mad musical, "Boys and Girls Together," opened last night at the National and a revue with more laughs or as beautiful girls won't be around 'til the budget gets balanced.

"You won't," he warns as he watches an Apache duo knock itself out, "you won't be able to do that when this country is fully prepared." He goes duck hunting in a mandarin coat. He fondles a gorgeous red carpet for his dazzling showgirls to walk on. "It's 200 per cent wool," Wynn exclaims, "the sheep led double lives." "These guns are practically extinct now. We have some of them in the Army."

Mere quotations from his inspired remarks never have done justice to this incomparable wag. You have to see his happy gestures, his hesitant pauses, watch him explain a new invention to appreciate the unerring hold he has on his own peculiar comic muse. Radio only carried a portion of his wit and it's wonderful to have him back in the theater where he belongs. In last night's audience were many who had known him only on the air; even a myopic could see that these doubters had discovered something new and marvelous.

A Superior Cigarette-Lighter

His revue is much in the manner of those Parisian vehicles which used to exhibit the unique talents of Chevalier, Mistinguette or Josephine Baker, though of course there's not a dirty line in the script. There never was. Everything revolves around Wynn and though the principals are suave and capable and the girls more ravishing than any such collection since Mr. Ziegfeld triumphantly paraded them through his productions, Wynn is the show. Which is quite as it should be.

It is the comic's happy conceit that he never does get his play running. Calling on the Messrs. Shubert whenever he wants a curtain raised, creating the costumes for his showgirls himself, peddling a piano for Miss Marjorie Gainsworth to sing atop, juggling with people from vaudeville, drawing from opera and radio, three hours' merriment still finds him struggling when a union man orders the curtain down at 11:30.

Sprawled downside upon a stage staircase hammering in his precious carpet for the showgirls' parade, he asks, "Would Katharine Cornell do this?" But we'll spoil no more of his bon mots for you.

Of course, he has his inventions: A cigarette lighter with an arrow pointing to the nearest man with a match is but one of them. There are others, for what would a Wynn musical be without his gimcracks?

Performance Remarkably Fresh

For a production that's had its season of harvest in New York, "Boys and Girls Together" is remarkably fresh, both in its performance and production. As we've been saying over and over again in those preceeding paragraphs, the girls are the rarest bevy to come our way since we first took to shaving. And producer-director Wynn sees that you get plenty of time to see them.

Many of the supporting performers are familiar—especially to variety connoisseurs. Marjorie Gainsworth of the golden locks sings in her lilting fashion. Dave Apollon is on hand for a spot in the second act. The D'Ivons dance their ballroom turns with zest. And, bringing down the house in a violent apache, are Lucienne and Ashour, superbly realistic with Wynn sicking 'em on at a ringside table.

Two Washington dancers make outstanding impressions in important spots. Walter Long has developed into a facile, likable dancer and probably will become a celebrated personality. Ronnie Cunningham has a piquant, charming manner, gorgeous red hair and a way with her toes. There's a remarkable stout lass, Dot Remy who can do most anything her brother Dick suggests. Jaye Martin of radio is a pleasant singer and Eleanor Brown dances prettily.

Both settings and costumes deserve the applause first nighters lavished. Irene Sharaff's clothes are striking and varied; Oden Waller's settings make fine use of the National's full stage and Albertina Rasch's inimitable taste in routining is evident throughout.

Yes, the National's first musical of the season will be hard to beat. But lavish as it is, it's all Ed Wynn (plus, he says, a soupcon of Henry A. Wallace), as joyous an escape commodity as a weary world affords. Don't let it get away.

'Davy Crockett' Opens at Roadside

Bibi Osterwald and her quartet of sad young men stole the show last night as the calico curtains at the Roadside Theater rang up on the last production of the eighth successful season of the melodrammer specialists.

As the pitiful Bird in a Gilded Cage, the incomparable Bibi, abetted by Messrs. de Teal and Ted Tiller, James McKechnie and Dick Sykes, had the hayloft audience stamping and shouting for more of the tragic entr'acte song of the girl who sold her soul for an old man's gold. Miss Osterwald was never better.

The play, "Davy Crockett; or, Be Sure You're Right, Then Go Ahead," is a fitting vehicle to close the Roadside's eighth season. All the necessary elements are here—the hero, simple, stalwart and upright; the heroine, pure as the driven snow from which she is rescued, and as dastardly a villain as ever walked the boards at Offutt's barn.

The situations, too, are in the groove: A heinous villain holds the honor of our heroine's guardian in his grasp, and the guardian, cad that he is, gives his ward to the villain's snivelling nephew. But she's snatched from the very altar in the nick of time, a la Lochinvar, by our Davy. Then, there's a blizzard, a beautiful blizzard, with lots of snow and wolves howling at the cabin door. But here, too, the wolves are held at bay and the lady of the piece saved by the "stout arm of a backswoodsman" across the door in lieu of a bolt.

The cast is a familiar one to Roadside habitues. Dick Sykes, as Davy; Betty Gray, as (honest!) Little Nell; James McKechnie, as the wicked Oscar Crampton, and Jack Selamanca, as the cowardly Neil, all fall into accustomed roles and give their usual bright performances.

Ted Tiller, as the hounded guardian, slips in some of his familiar comedy touches and brightens up an otherwise dullish role. The supporting cast is adequate but not outstanding.

Nazis Round Up Hannover Jews For Eviction

By the Associated Press

Hannover, Germany, Sept. 8.—German authorities began herding Hannover's Jews into the Mortuary Hall of the Jewish cemetery here tonight following the mayor's order evicting them from their homes on 24 hour's notice.

Scores of men, women and children were conducted to this fast-crowding provisional abode. The eviction orders also provided for sale of their property, the proceeds to be turned over to them "at a given time."

The orders cited, as one reason for the ousters, a book written by "the Jew Kaufman in New York" (presumably "Germany Must Perish!" by Theodore N. Kaufman), demanding "sterilization of all Germans and employment of German soldiers as coolies in foreign lands."

[In Newark, N. J., Theodore Kaufman called the reference to his book "a flimsy pretext for another of the innate cruelties of the German people."]

100 Jews Reported Seized as 'Hostages'

Vichy, Sept. 8 (AP).—More than 100 Jews, including Pierre Masse, former minister of justice, and Theodore Valensi, a former deputy, today were reported arrested as hostages by German authorities at Paris in new reprisals for growing disorders against the occupying power.

Vichy no longer tried to conceal the gravity of strife in the German-occupied zone or the fact that reprisals seemed only to heighten it.

"We can expect to see street incidents multiply," he official news agency said. The agency likened the situation in the occupied capital to open warfare.

Vichy authorities have insisted that the increasing demonstrations, shootings and sabotage were a Communist plot designed to divert German military strength from the Russian front to France.

Reich Jews Must Wear Star in Public

Berlin, Sept. 8.—Effective this month, all Jews in the territory of the Reich will not be allowed to appear in public without a "star of Judah," according to a "police order" published today.

The hexagonal "star of Judah" is to be made of yellow cloth the size of the palm of a hand, the order states, with the inscription "Jew" in black letters. It has to be sewed on the clothes in a visible place on the left side of the chest.

His Book Cited In Evicting Jews

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THEODORE KAUFMAN, of New York, whose book, "Germany Must Perish," presumably was cited in the Nazi order evicting Jews in Hannover, Germany, from their homes yesterday. The orders gave as one reason for the ouster a book written by "the Jew Kaufman in New York." Kaufman called the reference to his book "a flimsy pretext for another of the innate cruelties of the German people"

Rockies Swept By Earliest Snowstorm

By the Associated Press

Denver, Sept. 8.—The Mountain West's earliest widespread snowstorm on record ranged down the Rockies today from Montana and southern Colorado.

Whipped by strong winds, the snow piled into drifts 5 feet deep on the trail ridge road in Rocky Mountain Park. Temperatures fell far below freezing at high elevations. Pikes Peak Highway was closed by snow.

Overtaken by the storm on the High Wild Basin Trail, George Potratz, 59, Chicago hiker, collapsed while hastening down. Park rangers carried Potratz unconscious on a horse 2 miles to a ranger cabin. Doctors said that his rescue came just in time to save his life.

Margaret Stuart, 19-year-old daughter of R. D. Stuart, a vice president of the Quaker Oats Co., was marooned overnight in the blizzard on the Red Lodge highroad to Yellowstone National Park with Dick Thompson, 20, of Cody, Wyo., and Gus Hart, 25, of New York City.

Rescuers found them, hungry, but uninjured in their stalled truck.

Overhasty Strike

Thousands of individuals and governmental agencies will be inconvenienced by the strike of freight truck drivers yesterday which led to an almost complete stoppage of railway freight movements to and from Washington. Delivery of some defense materials, including cables and conduits for telephone systems in Government buildings, has been held up. And even if the strike is quickly settled, it will take a long time to move the freight that has accumulated while the trucks have been idle. Certainly this is a case in which every effort to reach a settlement should have been made before a walkout was ordered. But no such consideration for the public interest was shown.

Spokesmen for the trucking companies report that the strike was called with "no warning whatsoever." Spokesmen for the union reply that negotiations had been going on for 45 days, that living costs are continually rising, and that their demand for $35 a week instead of the $31 now paid is reasonable. The union also demanded shorter hours, and before negotiations were broken off it rejected a company offer of $33 a week. Considering the sharp upward trend of living costs, the union's demand for a higher wage scale does not appear to be unreasonable. But the method used to attain it is certainly reprehensible. The union struck without even notifying the Conciliation Service of the Labor Department that a dispute was in progress. Moreover, the negotiators had agreed that no strike would be called and that any new wage scale would be made retroactive to August 31, the date on which the old contract expired. Only six working days had passed under this arrangement when the strike was ordered without notice and without giving the Conciliation Service an opportunity to bring about a peaceful settlement.

Such disregard of the public interest is an obvious disservice to the cause of labor and it once more points to the desirability of legislation requiring ample negotiations, with the aid of governmental experts, before strikes in strategic industries may be called.

Good Neighbors

Diplomatic negotiations between this country and Mexico for the settlement of pending questions are being conducted with an eye solely on the new needs of hemisphere defense. This, of course, is the only sound approach to problems of expropriation, of trade relations and of tariff and boundary disputes. That the approach is reciprocal was shown in the 3½-hour Labor Day address of President Camacho to the Mexican Congress in which the President took particular pains to stress "the spirit of real comprehension between the two governments." His point has been underlined by Mexican cooperation in our anti-Hitler policy. And the unity between the two countries is now emphasized further by the news reported by James B. Reston, that the United States will loan Mexico at least 50 million dollars, and perhaps a great deal more. The purpose of the loan is to help stabilize Mexico's currency and facilitate commercial and defense agreements.

It may be, of course, that some of the money will eventually go as a final cash settlement to American companies whose Mexican oil properties were seized in 1938. If so, we shall find ourselves in the position of paying Mexico for expropriating United States property. This might seem like one-way good neighborliness. Properly, however, the State Department takes a larger view. Without the loan American companies would get nothing, and defense arrangements would suffer without the improvement of economic relations between the two nations which the loan will assure. What we need by way of quid pro quo is something which will serve the hemisphere in this time of world crisis. The loan will naturally be contingent on Mexico's cooperation in hemisphere defense, including the withholding of war supplies from Axis powers. In fact, Mexico has already proved its willingness to cooperate in this direction, much to the discomfort of Axis businessmen.

We also have to remember that Mexican industry is largely dependent on United States tools. Without them Mexican plants would have to close, and President Camacho's middle-of-the-road policy would be endangered. In recent months our own production needs have complicated this trade with Mexico. Yet a sincere effort is being made to meet Mexico's most pressing requirements, even though that means increasing tightness of supplies north of the border. From January through May, for example, exports to Mexico were twice as great as in the similar period of 1940. Everything possible must be done to maintain and preferably improve this showing in an effort to help the Mexican President diversify the Mexican economy.

Mr. Dies Goes Astray

Representative Dies has once more stepped outside his proper role as chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities. His job has been from the beginning to expose Communist, Nazi and Fascist organizations and activities. It is no part of his responsibility to dictate to the executive branch of the Government as to the hiring and firing of its employes. Of course, when Mr. Dies has evidence bearing upon the fitness of Government employes to hold their jobs, that evidence ought to be submitted to the appropriate authorities. But he has no right whatever to demand the dismissal of any public servant outside his own office.

In many instances Mr. Dies has done excellent work in exposing the activities of subversive groups. His committee has been particularly effective in destroying the influence of Communist Front organizations. Thousands of Americans who had been duped into joining and supporting such organizations have Mr. Dies to thank for opening their eyes. It does not follow, however, that every person who has been associated with a group that has fallen under the sway of deceptive Communist leadership is ipso facto an enemy of democracy. If Mr. Dies intends to smear every official who has cooperated with Communists for any purpose, he ought to start with President Roosevelt and his Cabinet, who are aiding the Moscow dictatorship in its struggle to resist German aggression.

Price Controller Leon Henderson was undoubtedly prominent in the aid-to-Spanish-democracy movement a few years ago. According to Eugene Lyons, author of "The Red Decade," most of the money thus raised was taken over by Communists while the struggle against Franco, Hitler and Mussolini was going on. Mr. Henderson's cooperation in causes which the Communists tried to make their own scarcely testifies to his political beliefs. And it would be patently absurd to conclude from this that he is a Communist or that he has any sympathy with the basic aims of communism.

Whether Mr. Henderson has a number of party-liners in his office is a question of fact that cannot be left to determination by the crusading Mr. Dies. Applicants for jobs in the defense set-up are examined as a matter of routine by the Civil Service Commission. If the commission finds that a temporary employe is a Nazi or Communist or is engaged in subversive activities, his dismissal is recommended. If the employe has been or is a member of a "front" organization, the commission tries to determine whether he is an innocent victim of Communist deception or a masquerading party-liner. Its decision is based on the facts in each individual case. But if there is any doubt as to the person's loyalty to the United States, that doubt is supposed to be resolved in favor of the Government. This appears to be an entirely reasonable policy. Whether the investigations made by the CSC are sufficiently thorough is another matter. Here is where the Dies committee may properly come into the picture by supplying information to the CSC. But at the same time it should scrupulously avoid any effort to muscle in on the appointive function, which is entirely outside its province.

Tennis Champions

While Wimbledon at last report had been turned into a piggery, and tennis elsewhere in Europe has had to give way to sterner tasks, the national singles tournament at Forest Hills still keeps the traditions of this excellent game aloft. The fans no doubt miss the foreign contestants. Probably they wonder sometimes whether the native players would measure up to the best abroad. Yet the national singles tournament which ended Sunday wound up a season of tennis which in the circumstances was both varied and interesting. The new women's titlist is Sarah Palfrey Cooke, a player who is equally at home on foreign as on domestic courts. In singles she has hitherto had to contend with such women players as Helen Wills, Helen Jacobs and Alice Marble, but without success. She is probably the most graceful player in the game, but her victories till this year have been in doubles, and her reputation has been built upon her ability as a teammate. In taking the crown which last year was worn by Alice Marble, however, she showed that she has become a great individual performer, too. Robert L. Riggs, the new men's champion, also is used to laurels, for this is the second time he has won the cup. For a time it seemed as if the young Riggs was only a flash in the pan. He still lacks the finish to make him attractive to watch, but there is the stuff in Riggs of a great player, one to be put alongside Budge for skill and spirit. Forest Hills showed a good deal of promise among the newer players, and the keenness of the play throughout the season, coupled with the overshadowing of tennis abroad, assures America of an advantage when the international tennis is resumed. May that be soon!

Reaping The Whirlwind

It was just a year ago last Sunday that Marshal Goering's Luftwaffe carried out its first mass attack on London. The object was to destroy the British capital, shatter the morale of its population, and compel Great Britain to sue for peace. To those ends the metropolis within the next month was attacked no fewer than 38 times, and many lives and much property, including priceless architectural masterpieces of the past, were destroyed. But the people of London remained unbowed. Indeed, the indiscriminate raids of the Luftwaffe stiffened their determination to see the war through to the bitter end. So unbending was their resistance that by the first part of October the German losses of planes and fliers had mounted to such great totals that daylight raids had to be abandoned by the Luftwaffe.

Exactly a year to the day from the time the Battle of London began, Berlin was visited by the largest number of bombers yet employed by the R. A. F. in any raid on the German capital. Hour after hour in the bright moonlight the British planes flew over occupied Europe and raided Berlin. The bombs were lethal reminders to the German people that the war, which a year ago the Germans had assumed was on the verge of being won, has entered a new, and for them extremely unpleasant, phase. It is now Germany's turn to receive the same kind of punishment which was ruthlessly meted out to the brave people of London. So devastating was the Sunday-to-Monday raid of the R. A. F. that the Nazi press and radio could not, as they have done in the past, dismiss it as of no importance. Instead they have made the welkin ring with their denunciation of an attack which they characterized as "especially low-down and contemptible." A promise has been made to the Berliners that "this infamy will be avenged."

So a regime which was responsible for the deliberate and systematic destruction of Warsaw, Rotterdam, Belgrade, Coventry and countless other cities in Europe has the monumental effrontery to cry out against the raid on Berlin as "a species of warfare which shrinks back at no crime, no murder." Evidently the bully is getting a taste of his own medicine and obviously does not like it. And this was only a foretaste. With the nights lengthening, with a large part of the German air force tied up in the East, and with British and American production of planes beginning to catch up with German production, there is every likelihood that Berlin's experience of Sunday night will be repeated in stiffer doses, in an ever-widening circle. Having sown the wind, the Nazis are now beginning to reap the whirlwind.

Dvorak's Birthday

Yesterday was the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Anton Dvorak and, had Czecho-Slovakia been in command of her destiny, it would have been a great day in Prague. Probably it would have been a holiday. Flags would have been flying. The cafes would have been full of people listening to Dvorak's music. And at the symphony there would have been an all-Dvorak program. For Czecho-Slovakia claims the great composer as her own—though Czecho-Slovakia was not even a name 100 years ago. Not only in Prague but in every town large enough to boast a "symphony," listeners might have heard the popular Opus 95 in E minor.

This is better known as the "Symphony From a New World," and was largely inspired by thematic material developed by the composer during his stay in this country from 1892 to 1895. However, Dvorak was a firm believer in the use of native thematic material. He wove into his music the traditional themes of his countryside, and in recent years he was credited with immortalizing the stirring of his countrymen toward freedom. There must have been many Czechs who, though unable to celebrate yesterday because of the Nazi effort to suppress Dvorak, went about their work with some of his familiar music ringing in their ears.

OUT OF HATRED

No energy is lost, only transformed, the physicists say.
And who knows but the energy of human emotions is so transformed? Out of our hates and our despairs often beauty and happiness arise. I have built a dam when the fury of hate burned in my blood; the anger went out in the turning of rock and earth. Years later the pond is a jewel in the morning light; swallows skim its mirror surface, the willows are reflected there, water laps rock, people swim, and wild ducks sometimes settle like leaves that float down with no wind. The ugliness and the anger are forgotten; even I have left them in the past almost beyond recall, like flowers that grow about a garbage heap, and eat filth with their roots, and blossom in the sun.

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Protective Whistling

Now that the Washington public has become crime-minded, the writer would like to suggest a simple protective measure or device for women and girls who go alone afield, or who find themselves in isolated situations, indoors or out. It also would apply to those foolish females who accept auto rides with strangers.

If such persons would always carry a small, shrill whistle, and use it repeatedly when they first suspect trouble, someone—very likely a dozen men or boys, who happened to be in the neighborhood—might hear the appeal, and investigate.

But whether or not anyone came to the rescue, a screeching whistle would certainly deter or dishearten most would-be attackers and cause them to abandon or to delay their contemplated attack. And that hesitation might well mean the salvation of the women.

If the habit of carrying a whistle became universal and well known, that fact alone would prove invaluable in discouraging the crime of crimes.

In choosing a whistle one that is "earsplitting" would be best. Practice until its use becomes perfectly natural. It may be suspended by a small, very strong cord about the neck, or it might be carried in a small, handy pocket made for the purpose. In use, repeated powerful blasts of short duration should be blown. In marine usage four separate whistles means 'Danger!"

"Defense"

Our isolationists keep saying, "why do we have to send any aid to England, since it seems fairly obvious that the Nazis cannot invade."

If that is the case, just suppose the British borrow the same line of "reasoning" and say "the war no longer concerns us since we are safe. Let the continent worry about its own unending wars. We will fight if we are invaded."

Where then would be the security of the United States? Where would democracy and freedom and liberty go, if no one thought these qualities worth defending unless "invaded"? What a howl our obstructionists would put up, if Britain, by borrowing the isolationist advice, made peace and sidestepped the fight for freedom. How they would yell for "defense."

But as long as Britain stands they can keep up their little game of pretending that the war is far away and that democracy and liberty can be defended successfully against the totalitarian world alone and unaided.

Let us hope however, that this eventuality will never arise, and that the American people will not be influenced by the blind refusal to face facts.

HILDA EDMONDSON
Germantown, Pa., Sept. 5.

Act Now

If President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill actually have a plan to eliminate war, as was suggested in their recent eight-point announcement, why do they not try to promote that plan now? Why must they wait until millions of people more have been slaughtered, and billions of dollars of property and resources more have been destroyed?

It would seem logical that the time to help starving people is while they are starving, and not after they have starved. To my way of thinking, the welfare of the people on earth today is just as important as is that of the coming generations.

Better Pay

I was very much interested in your article in The Post of September 5, calling the attention of readers to the inadequate salary of the custodial force of Washington schools, and of the number of these men who are leaving present positions to accept more money elsewhere. Of all the District of Columbia employes, the men employed in custodial jobs in the schools alone have been forgotten, as the other branches of District of Columbia employes have been well taken care of financially.

In order to become an engineer, a man has to study and pass examinations in order to obtain his license and be able to take care of the high pressure plants, and the salary received is poor recompense for his efforts. I have been interested in this branch of the District of Columbia service, and this is, to my knowledge, the first time this deplorable condition has been brought to the notice of the public.

I trust sufficient interest may be aroused by the proper persons and efforts be made to have conditions righted, and the men be given a better salary.

S. ARTHUR SMITH.
Washington, Sept. 5.

Nymphs

Now that Washington has made the front pages all over the country for its "Bluebeard" and his many famous sex murders, the comments are flying. Some of them analyze things as follows: "This man claims indecent stories and pictures fired him on—they were too much for him; he was twice arrested for indecent exposure." "It wouldn't be a bad thing," say some of the commenters, "if some of our girls and women were arrested for the same thing. Some of their shorts have gotten so short that they may as well go back to didies"—yes, the word is quite "proper" nowadays as witness our radio advertising.

Man as a class won't go into shorts. Neither will older or stouter women, for obvious reasons. This puts those who do wear them in a class by themselves—virtually exhibitionists. Women are "taking over."

The drum major, for instance seems to have passed. We now have the almost nude "majorette" in his stately place. All men are not sufficiently "advanced" to be able to stand these sights. And so if the girls want to look like nymphs and angels they better wait until everyone has acquired a more angelic nature.

L. L.

Self Preservation

The writer's personal views are that we should give more aid to Russia and less to England, as England already has enough of our material to be able to defend themselves against Hitler. If, by any chance, he defeats England, his Luftwaffe would have to come nearly 3,000 miles over water before they could reach our eastern shores. If he should defeat Russia and make a contact with Japan, we would have to go to war against that combination. They could attack us on the Pacific at the Philippines or Hawaii or Siberia in the north, over the route that the Russian flyers are taking now to visit the United States.

P. W. GOUGAR.

Protection

How can you possibly write an editorial such as "The Public Can Help" in which you imply not only that the Washington Police Department—if it may be called such—was not really at fault in solving the Catoe murders but that it was really the contribution of the public—"the rank and file"—which caused the deaths of innocent women.

You say, "Law enforcement here had reached a low point of efficiency." You have your tenses mixed there—"has reached a low point of efficiency" would better state the case. Simply because there were two efficient, capable, wideawake men on the police force of New York City who found their man in Washington and then broke the case for the Washington police force should not lull the public here into thinking that the situation has improved. The New York men have returned and once again the Washington force is on its own.

Consequently, I agree with you that the public should realize "the dangers of 'taking a chance' in the Capital City" and until we acquire some men on that force who know something about their business besides tagging parked cars (one of them never killed a person yet) and having the cars of out-of-town visitors towed to the police station the public's chance of satisfactory protection does not amount to much.

We need more police and better police who are trained for their work—detectives who are equipped mentally and otherwise for that work, traffic police who can handle traffic as efficient police should (not from the curb), then leave the tagging of parked cars to the rookie flatfeet who are learning their beats, but let's not have to depend on those rookie ticket-writers for police protection.

Maybe the next time the murderer will not go to New York; then where will we be?

Seizures

As a clergyman of the Episcopal Church—sprouted from the Church of England and transplanted to Virginia—perhaps I might be expected to glorify all that the English Lords do today. Alas, it is not possible to either glorify them, or our own war lords!

Jesus Christ said: "Where the carrion is, there the vultures are gathered together." Whether it be England and the Soviet seizing Iran, or Germany seizing Belgium in the first World War or the second, it matters not to me. Oil is needed for tanks, planes, trains, ships, autos, trucks, busses and almost all else. So all nations alike try to get oil. Oil is the kind of carrion they crave just now. See how big oil men become filled with moral indignation. As to moral questions, an aim is moral for me, but the same is immoral for you—if you get first what I want!

The Germans think it very wicked for England and the Soviet to put their pincers on Iran. So England thought it most immoral for Germans to invade Poland even if some of the land in Poland was once in Germany.

The "Commonwealth of Nations" (i. e. "British Empire") was built in bloodshed, brutal onslaughts, seizure of lands—Canada and India, South Africa, Nova Scotia, etc. But Germany seizes, too, fast! And we Americans (who seized slowly all between Atlantic and Pacific and Cuba, Philippines, Canal Zone, Texas, Lower California, etc., too!) do not like the fast work of Hitler. So he becomes Satan! And all his hosts are demons! How wicked are big fighters if they get too much start!

Cutting The Laurels

The mountains of North Carolina are green with laurel. It grows thickly along the ravines and beside the streams and rushes in to compete with young pines for burnt-over soil. Ordinarily it is a shrub, but where it has space in which to grow it attains considerable size, growing as large as an apple tree.

The mountain people love the laurel calling it "calico bush," as New Englanders do. It is the rhododendron which they call laurel, and the rhododendron, like the laurel, may grow tall if allowed space in which to breathe. Some of the older rhododendrons are as tall as 40 feet.

In her book on the North Carolina mountains, Margaret Morley expresses her sorrow at the sight of a group of mountaineers burning rhododendron and laurel wood, cutting down great trees of both with trunks thick enough to be split into four sticks of wood, merely to make a fire. She would be more horrified today if she could see the gangs of workmen for the Burnsville plant trudging through the mountains seeking out great tough old trees of laurel and rhododendron and digging them out by the roots with mattocks. What for? To make briar pipes.

The laurel is not hard to find; it is everywhere. But it is very hard to dig. The roots intertwine, growing to enormous size; and they gather in rocks and plants and tough fibers of other tree roots. It is a man's size job "getting out" roots and when they are out, transporting them to the factory. They are very heavy, most of them, running from 25-pounders to huge 800-pounders that look like boulders.

The price is good, or so think the men who do the digging. They earn half a cent a pound for the rough root. Mountaineers all over western North Carolina are glad of an opportunity to earn extra money in this laborious way. It is war which has brought this new source of income to the mountains—war which in cutting off the usual supplies of briarwood from Italy and France, has demanded a substitute. Pipe wood must be very hard and it must be burled. Laurel and rhododendron roots, it seems, and laurel in particular supply this sort of wood. Hence the unusual hurly-burly with the pickaxe and the spade; hence the double shifts working at the Burnsville factory. By the time the demand is supplied it may be that some other use will be found for laurel and rhododendron roots. Meanwhile great earthy, fresh-smelling lumps are being piled outside the South Briar Pipe Co. plant at Burnsville, and the worn wallets (or more likely tobacco-pouch purses) of the mountaineers are fuller than usual.

Burnsville is one of the most important and interesting mountain villages north of Asheville. It is beautifully situated in an opening between surrounding mountains. From it can be had fine views of the high mountains. Margaret Morley predicted nearly 30 years ago that this charming village had a future, but a future of briar-pipe making from the roots of her beloved laurels was hardly what she had in mind. Yet it was she who told of the huge roots of the rhododendrons: "A stream of water trickles down a path which is half rock, half rhododendron roots. The limbs of the rhododendrons twist about you like enormous snakes . . . it is a breathless scramble and your arms ache from holding to the rhododendron cables . . . The path is over rhododendron roots which have fastened themselves to the cliff; behind their contorted limbs you creep along like an ant, hoping with every step that the roots will not give way . . . The edge of the abyss is hidden by impenetrable rhododendron jungles." Your heart aches to recall that this whole forge, one of the wonders of the mountains, has been bought by a lumber company. But looking at that tapestried wall falling sheer into the mountain torrent below your sympathy takes a humorous leap. Any tree they can get out of there they will have earned!"

After the roots, tons of them, have been dumped outside the South Briar Pipe Co., the next step is cutting the small branches and earth away. It takes three men working with hatchets to do this. Then the roots are ready for inspection before being sent into the factory to be cut into blocks. Thousands of tons of burls wait under sawdust at the plan until they can be sawed into blocks of pipe size and shipped north to Brooklyn, N. Y., where the pipes will be made.

The sawing sounds simple enough, but it is a complicated affair. The rough root burl is sawed into slices first. These in turn are sawed by a different and smaller set of saws into blocks convenient for pipe-making. There is more, however, to be done before the blocks are ready for shipment. The blocks must be hardened. To this end they are placed in boiling water and stored in completely dark warehouses with an even temperature. This treatment removes the sap from the blocks and gives them the extra-hard quality required for good pipes.

When the blocks have been hardened they are checked for flaws and packed in shallow crates for shipment to Brooklyn. The finished pipes will bring good prices if the best rhododendron root is used—as much as $10 a piece.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Ability To Make Peace

EVER since the fall of France the world has been expecting Hitler to make proposals of peace, and there have been many feelers and rumors put out by agents of the Axis. But as a matter of fact there has never materialized the great peace offensive, which so many dreaded as a devilish trap and others looked forward to as promising at least a temporary stoppage of the slaughter. Instead of an offer of negotiations which it would have been exceedingly dangerous to accept and very difficult to refuse, Hitler made his aerial attack on Britain which not only failed to give him mastery of the air for an invasion but, because of the assault on civilians, made the British and a large part of the American people implacable. This was followed by an alliance with Japan and the spread of Japanese aggression into Indo-China and the South Seas. After that came Mussolini's attack in Greece and Hitlers' conquest of the Balkans, and then the launching of the great war on Russia.

LIPPMANN

Thus, while there have been persistent rumors of proposals of peace, in fact the war has grown larger and fiercer. The war threatens to grow still larger and still fiercer. Why, we must ask ourselves, did Hitler not make a serious attempt to end the war last summer, last autumn, even this spring, when his armies had swept all before them on the continent of Europe?

THE stock answer to this question is that Mr. Churchill, aided and abetted by Mr. Roosevelt, insisted on continuing the war by rejecting out of hand, and before they could be formulated and presented, all proposals for a negotiated peace. But this answer, though it has been accepted by so many, is certainly no explanation of why last summer and autumn when Hitler was victorious in Europe, he did not launch a peace offensive designed to unseat Mr. Churchill and checkmate Mr. Roosevelt. After all, no one ever supposed Hitler could make peace with Mr. Churchill or with Mr. Roosevelt, and therefore it is no explanation to say that they refused his offers before they were made. The whole purpose of a peace offensive—that is to say, of an offer to negotiate which could not be refused—would have been to go over Mr. Churchill's head to the British people and over Mr. Roosevelt's, who was then running for election, to the American people.

The question, therefore, remains—why, having conquered France, Hitler did not make an offer which was sufficiently impressive to make it impossible for Mr. Churchill or Mr. Roosevelt to reject it summarily. Both those who dreaded and those who hoped for such an offer believed that Hitler had it in his power to make an offer. They thought he might make a prompt and reasonably chivalrous peace with France, and then in combination with France, Italy, Spain and the Danubian countries proclaim the new European order, asking the British and the Americans whether they wished to settle with or to go on fighting a politically united Europe. But in fact Hitler did not make peace with France, and the new European order was talked about, but never established, and instead of an attempt to end the war, gigantic preparations were undertaken to expand the war.

IT certainly was not due to any interference by Mr. Churchill or Mr. Roosevelt that Hitler did not make peace with France. Yet peace with France—a convincing and conclusive peace—was not only the necessary move to establish the so-called new order; it was the move which, had it been made, would have provided an immensely powerful leverage to compel the opening of general peace negotiations.

Since Hitler did not make peace with France and then found his new order,—since, instead, he antagonized France and expanded the war,—it is evident that there is some deep fallacy in the widespread notion that Hitler was able to make peace and that he would like to have made peace on terms which acknowledged his European conquests, but left intact the British commonwealth and the American system. From the fall of France in June, 1940, to his attack on Russia in June, 1941, the opportunity existed to propose such a peace. But Hitler never made the proposal, and never took the critical step—namely peace with France—which would have given substance to the proposal.

THE EVENT has demonstrated that in the nature of things Hitler is unable to make peace with anyone. The Allies insist that they will not make peace with Hitler, and they point to his unbroken record of broken promises. But as a matter of fact these broken promises are merely the outward manifestations of a deeper trouble—which is that Hitler cannot make peace even if he wanted to make it, even if he meant to make it, even if he tried to make it. The case of France proves it. For if Hitler has not made peace with a prostrate France while it has been under a government proclaiming its desire to be incorporated in the new order, it is because Hitler cannot offer a peace which anyone—even a disarmed nation—can possibly accept.

Hitler cannot make peace because he can never evacuate any occupied territory and because he can never demobilize the German army. This is the decisive inward reason why Hitler can never keep a promise of nonaggression and why he must go on making war.

IF HE had made peace with France, he would have had to release the prisoners. He dared not allow the young men of France to return home to a country which he had gutted. He would have had to withdraw his occupying forces. He dared not do this, knowing quite well what would happen to his agents and to the French collaborationists. Thus he can never withdraw from conquered territory without the certainty of the inhabitants turning violently against him. This is the reason why the new order has not yet been established anywhere, though its advent has so often been proclaimed.

But while the impossibility of evacuating any part of Europe renders a Hitler peace impossible, the problem of a demobilization inside of Germany is under Hitler utterly insoluble. To bring back into Germany the fanatic young men now spread over Europe from Narvik to Crete, to demobilize them and feed them and provide them with work and opportunity commensurate with what they have been promised or even with what they would need—this is something which Hitler can never do. No one can do it. The material, the jobs, the markets, do not exist in continental Europe for this mass of men, and so they must, if possible, conquer their subsistence outside of Europe, or at least be kept busy as long as possible, just making war outside of Germany.

THUS, Hitler's armies can return to Germany only after Hitler has fallen. They can return only under a German government which they will not hold responsible for the misery they will suffer. They can return only under a government which is capable, because it has made peace with the outer world, of obtaining assistance in relieving their misery.

That is why Hitler, when he had the opportunity, did not make the proposals of peace which were so generally expected. He cannot make peace, and he knows it. It is time that we knew it, not merely to have done with the illusions of the so-called appeasers but because the time is coming, if it is not already at hand, when the political initiative will be in our hands. We shall then be able to shorten the war by exploiting the fact that whereas Hitler can never make peace, the free nations can. That is a most powerful resource which we cannot afford to neglect.

OPM Starts Help Plan

To Aid Towns

The first test of the OPM's ability to meet the threat of "priorities unemployment" will begin today or tomorrow, when about 40 communities will be "certified" to the Army and Navy for special consideration in receiving defense contracts, it was learned yesterday.

The communities, the first of perhaps several hundred, have been selected as the hardest hit by the drought of critical raw materials—steel, copper, aluminum, zinc and the like—which formerly fed industries in the area, but which are now needed for defense work in other locations and factories.

Under a directive agreed to by the OPM Board, including the Secretaries of War and Navy, two weeks ago, the service departments are instructed to make special concessions to industires in the "certified" locations to facilitate flow of defense orders and thus keep the plants operating and the labor employed.

OPM Labor Division and Contract Distribution Division technicians already have left Washington for the localities specified to aid in planning the conversion of factories and machine tools and the retraining of labor.

In the Capital, meantime, it will be the job of Floyd B. Odlum, famous New York financier and utility operator, who was newly appointed as head of the OPM Contracts Distribution Division, to aid in "pumping" order and subcontracts to the affected plants.

Unless defense orders are spread to smaller factories, OPM officials believe, unemployment of from one to two million men will result in the next few months

Although the full list of the certified communities was not available, it was known that some of the cities include Meadville, Pa., a one-industry town dependent for employment on the Talon Co., factory making slide fasteners; Evansville, Ind., where washing machine factories are threatened with closure; Mansfield, Ohio; Quincy, Ill.; Newton, Iowa, also a washing machine center, and Jamestown N. Y.

If conversion of the factory and machines to defense work is not possible, OPM officials explained, the effort will be made to route the displaced workers to other factories.

Cooperating in the program is the Bureau of Employment Security of the Federal Security Administration, which is surveying labor supply and registering an glacing unemployed workers.

Army Training On Upgrade, Osborn Says

Brig. Gen. Frederick H. Osborn, tall, quiet-spoken chief of the Army's morale branch, yesterday described America's Army as the best trained the country ever had while at peace.

And when asked what can be done about soldiers who complain of their food and shelter, he advised asking them how they think the British and Russian soldiers are faring.

He was the principal speaker at the National Catholic School of Social Service's training course for United Service Organization club directors who are affiliated with the National Catholic Community Service.

"I can say that the American Army is the best housed army the world has ever known," he said. He described it as the best feed army the world has even known also, and called its physical facilities for recreation the best in history.

OF ITS TRAINING, the officer said the Army has shown marked improvement in the last six weeks. Deriding reports that some soldiers are drilling with wooden guns, he remarked that the real guns were now around Moscow shooting down Nazi planes.

He did not report on the condition of Army morale, but described morale as of two chief aspects, "the sense of belonging" and "the sense of high purpose."

Wars have been won with the latter, he said, pointing to the American revolution. Some think, he said, that the United States is divided because it has a variety of religious opinions and races. That condition, he said, is all right as long as all groups remember that they are part of a whole.

ASKED BY A delegate how the U. S. O. clubs could help instill "the idea of belonging," Osborn suggested that they would bring a "sense of warmth," to the service men which Government workers in the field probably couldn't bring.

The program today will include "The Service Man and the Camp Community," by the Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, secretary, National Conference of Catholic Charities, 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., and "Recreation in the Present Emergency," by Mark McCloskey, Office of Federal coordinator of health, welfare and related defense activities, FSA. The program will last through Friday.

Winning With Food

Farm Production Goals Set

THE Administration called on American farmers yesterday to help win the war with food by producing record amounts of hogs, eggs, milk cheese and chickens.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard made the appeal, asking for increases in production sufficient to assure greater consumption at home and to help feed the nations fighting aggression.

"Our farmers," said Wickard, "must raise more than they have ever raised in any one year before."

To prevent any sharp slump in prices, the Government promised to maintain prices until January 1, 1943, at not less than 85 per cent of parity. All are selling now above the parity price—that level at which a commodity has the same purchasing power it had in the 1909-14 period.

Wickard's ambitious program—which he termed "probably the most important announcement I have made as Secretary of Agriculture"—was planned to avoid mistakes made during the World War.

WHILE setting production goals for the essential products that will be 15 per cent higher than the 1924-29 average and 5 per cent higher than in 1941, the program asks farmers to hold in check their plantings of some crops of which there are ample reserves. In this latter category are wheat, cotton and tobacco.

The "war program" for farmers is geared, in the words of Wickard, to "improve nutrition in this country and meet the needs of nations that still stand between this country and Hitler."

Lease-lend demands are expected to take from 8 to 10 per cent of America's farm output in the 1942 crop year.

Great Britain, foremost recipient of lease-lend food, will rely on the United States for about one-fourth of its supply of animal protein food, or enought to feed 10 million people.

Wickard's announcement marked the first time that the Government has announced production goals for all essential farm commodities and as such constituted a virtual "M Day," or mobilization day, for American farmers.

WHILE he appealed for substantial increases in some categories, the goal for wheat was lower than the 1941 estimate and cotton was about the same.

State and county agricultural defense boards, representing Federal, State and local farm officials, will direct the vast farm effort.

So decentralized will it be that Triple-A committeemen will visit "every farm," according to Wickard, and will ask such practical questions as: Can you keep more chickens? Do you have a couple more heifers that will freshen next spring?

Explaining the undertaking, Wickard said yesterday:

"We are not going to repeat the mistakes of the first World War, which brought a long series of difficulties for farm people."

"Through the machinery of the national farm program farmers can produce what we need and avoid the bad after-effects of an over-expanded farm plant. The fact that we are asking for greatly increased production of some commodities does not mean that the lid is off on production of all commodities. It is just as important to national defense and our future national welfare that we hold production of some commodities in check as that we increase supplies of others.

"THE GOAL for 1942 calls for the largest production in the history of American agriculture but we are not going to have to plow up the hills and plains to get it. We have adequate reserves of feed grains for increased production of live stock products and it will not be necessary materially to increase total crop acreage next year.

"Farm production in general is in good balance but greatly increased supplies of some commodities will be needed. In this emergency I have found it necessary to encourage the expansion of the production of hogs, eggs, evaporated milk, dry skim milk, cheese and chickens, and accordingly I have today made a formal public announcement that the Department of Agriculture will support prices for these commodities until December 31, 1942, at not less than 85 per cent of parity. Increases in the production of other crops in 1942 are also desirable as indicated by the goals."

Japanese Ask Chiang to Yield, Free Far East Of White Men

By Otto D. Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Sept. 8.—Saying that irrespective of the consequences of the Greer incident Japan's main duty lies in defending East Asia from extension of the war and interference by third powers, in line with the "autonomous independent policy" of the third Konoye cabinet, the Japanese press is beginning to address itself to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, urging him to give up resistance in order to liberate East Asia from the burden of the white man.

Under the headline, "Chiang! Liquidate Yourself Manfully," today:

"As for you, Chiang Kai-shek! do you still mean to be the jackal of the British-American tiger while the landmarks of your country are razed and the nature of your motherland lamentably scarred?"

Although undoubtedly of Chinese blood, not crossed with British or American blood, Hochi continues, nevertheless Gen. Chiang is "shamelessly content to keep his fatherland as a semi-colony of Britain and the United States and dance their tune in a hopeless, desperate struggle against Japan."

"We point out," Hochi says, "that cooperation between Japan and China is necessary. For otherwise there is cause for fear that our conquest and the present situation of the establishment of the new order in East Asia will be obstructed by white interference."

In the same vein, Teiichi Muto, noted political commentator, writes in an open letter accusing Gen. Chiang of having transferred all his property to the United States and of keeping a plane ready to flee to America, and concludes:

"On Japan's shoulders hangs the destiny of all Asia, including China. A petty man of talent like you cannot understand the imposing figure of Japan guarding the north and protecting the south by way of removing the barbarians from the Chinese continent. Piteous fellow that you are, you may have a bit of a conscience. Don't you feel ashamed, playing the role of a puppet for Britain and the United States? We advise you with all our heart, but we are in a hurry. This is the time when you should liquidate your past attitude and policy. It's not too late for your to reconsider now."

Japan Urged to Adopt A Full War Economy

Tokyo, Sept. 8 (AP).—Vice Admiral Seizo Sakonji, minister of commerce and industry, appealed to the nation in a broadcast tonight for cooperation in building a full wartime economy.

He urged particularly reduction and elimination of small industries and restrictions on profits.

Japanese Discussing Remarriage of Widows

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Sept. 8.—Although remarriage of widows has always been frowned upon in Japan, substantial Japanese losses in the China affair have brought the question of remarriage of war widows to the forefront of public discussion and this discussion has revealed a widening cleft between generations.

In a poll taken among 15,000 young women students in the bigger educational institutions, 58 per cent were for remarriage and 42 per cent were against, the percentage of "yes" answers being higher among city than among country girls.

Expelled by U. S., Wiedemann Turns Up in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro (Tuesday), Sept. 9 (AP).—Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, former German consul general at San Francisco, turned up here today and said he was in South America "on a special mission."

Wiedemann arrived last Friday aboard an Italian transatlantic passenger plane. He declined to disclose the nature of his mission.

A close friend and World War commander of Adolf Hitler, Wiedemann was among 500 Germans and Italians expelled from the United States and taken to Europe last July aboard the United States Navy transport West Point.

Wiedemann said he would fly to Buenos Aires Wednesday.

Private Purkey's Papers

Dear Ma:

It is getting cold here nights now and sure am glad I did not get leased to Iceland but am still awful nervous as it is just my luck to wake up some daybreak and get a order to go there for the long winter darkness, witch I wood not like as it is plenty dark enuff for me here.

I got a letter from Joe McGoggin who is in Iceland. You remember Joe. He was an assistant golf pro and he used to go to Florida every winter on account of he hated cold weather. He says the weather ain't so cold up there but the natives are. He says the way they put the chill on the American soldier is something awful and he guesses that either Icelanders do not want to be saved or else they only want to be saved at the last minute. He says if a Iceland girl even returns a soldier's smile her old man yells copper. It is all pretty hard to understand but the world is so mixed up I don't try to understand nothing no more.

I serpose you seen in the papers about the Army trying out a new ration on us. We are getting five pieces of hard candy a day on hikes all of witch puzzled me very much at first as I had made no complaint about the regular Army food and could not see why a soldier should be given candy when he started on a hike unless the Army butcher shop had sent it by mistake.

But it seems the Army has found that candy is good for soldiers on a long hike. I ate my five lumps before I had walked five miles and told the sergeant my feet hurt just as much as without the candy. It was only just now I found out that the candy is supposed to be full of energy and peps us up on manoovers. It is all too deep for me. If sweet stuff makes a jeep energentic why can't we cut the gum drops and have ice cream sodas and French pastry?

I wish you wood not keep sending me newspaper clippings every time you read how some jeeps has broke out of Army guard houses and been caught right away. Do not worry. I am so sick of walking that if I get in a guard house I will think it a swell break. From your last letter I gess you got the idea the Army spends most of its time breaking out of guard houses witch is all wrong. There are a lot of screwballs in the service, of course, who have been so used to doing what they please all the time that they think it cramps their style to be confined in one spot more than 24 hours at a stretch, but only a few is nuts enough to break out of any guard houses. So do not worry. This will have to be all for this time.

Your loving son, OSCAR.

P. S.—I heard that that jeep who got the stiff sentence because he refused to stop spitting on the floor and boasted that he was getting $10 a day in civilian life and wood not work for no less in the Army has offered to compromise. He will come back and spit on the floor for $7.50 as a special offer.

Bonuses Raised For Marine, Navy Reenlistments

Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday notified the naval service that bonuses of from $200 to $600 will be paid to enlisted men who immediately reenlist for continued service in the regular Navy and Marine Corps.

The Secretary's message was directed to men whose terms are expiring and who may have jobs in prospect in civil life. Besides the new bonus that is double the usual reenlistment allowance, Knox enumerated the retirement, medical and other benefits provided and appealed to them to stay in uniform.

"The Navy and Marine Corps are expanding fast," he said. "The rate of advancement just has to increase; the Navy will double in a few years."

Fair Enough

A Justice From Louisiana

BY CHANCE it happens that an article by President Roosevelt in defense of his memorable court-pack bill appears in Collier's at the very time when one of the young and "forward-looking" judges selected to reanimate the Constitution and improve the general character of the Federal judiciary is sitting in New York where he may be scrutinized apart from the political jungles of Louisiana.

This Federal district judge is Gaston L. Porterie, who was the Attorney General of Huey Long's dictatorship and was nominated to the bench by Senators Allen K. Ellender and John H. Overton of Louisiana. Ellender, as few of us will need reminding, was the speaker of the Louisiana House of Representatives during the Hitlerian travesties which were enacted during the special session of the Legislature wherein the Kingfish contemptuously rescinded the political rights of the people of an American State. Day after day Ellender sat there on his puppet throne as Huey stalked the aisles roaring orders to his legislators of whom he had said, and truly, that he could buy and sell them like sacks of potatoes. Now, as his reward, Ellender is a member of the United States Senate with the power to suggest to the President judges for the Federal bench and Federal prosecutors. Senator Overton was elected to the Senate by fraud, a damned spot which will not out for it is woven into the record of the special committee of the Senate which investigated that incredibly corrupt and brazen farce.

JUDGE Gaston L. Porterie of the United States District Court for the Western District of Louisiana was officially involved in the fraudulent election, for it was he who as Attorney General simply overruled an injunction by a district judge of the State courts by which it was sought to frustrate the operation of the notorious "dummy candidate," device the crooked scheme which the special committee of the United States Senate denounced as "a vicious and abhorrent political practice." And, although the special committee admitted that Overton's opponent might have had the assistance of "dummies," the report nevertheless held that the device operated overwhelmingly in Overton's favor in New Orleans. After Porterie, as Attorney General, thwarted the injunction of the State district judge, this judge ordered the arrest of those who had defied the court. But Huey Long's Governor, who looked to Porterie for legal guidance in all official matters, again frustrated the law by issuing pardons to the conspirators by wire.

In another case, Porterie superseded a parish, or county, prosecutor who was pushing an election fraud case and, after several other developments of the same kind, was cited for explusion by the state bar association. Porterie attempted to resign but the bar expelled him nevertheless and Huey then procured from his legislators, including Ellender, a new bar association which, like Hitler's in Germany, was an integral part of the dictatorship, with Gaston L. Porterie as president.

AFTER Huey's death and the second Louisiana Purchase and after President Roosevelt's attempt to reanimate the constitution and purify the character of the court, Porterie was nominated for the Federal court. His appointment was rushed through without debate or question and the Judiciary Committee of the Senate held no hearings on the fitness of the man who had given official facility to the operation on behalf of Overton of a device already denounced as "vicious and abhorrent." Instead the appointment was referred to a subcommittee for consideration and the chairman of that subcommittee was Tom Connally, of Texas, who had been chairman of the investigation of the election frauds and had personally reported to the Senate that "vicious and abhorrent" fraud had been found. Out of his own official knowledge of the operations of the dictatorship and the fraud, Connally would not take it on himself, as chairman of the subcommittee investigating Porterie's fitness, to denounce or even oppose that nomination. So within a period of one week in 1939 and without debate and without even consideration by the Senate Judiciary Committee, Porterie's appointment was quietly put over on the recommendation of a subcommittee whose chairman knew all about Porterie's actions as Long's Attorney General in the perpetration of a fraudulent election by means of which Porterie's sponsor, John H. Overton acquired his seat.

Union Agrees To Stay St. Louis Power Blackout For 2 Days

Company and union officials, meeting in an eleventh hour conference, last night averted a strike which would have curtailed electric-power distribution throughout the St. Louis, Mo., area, when A. F. of L. operating engineers agreed to postpone work stoppage for 48 hours. Industrial firms in that area hold millions of dollars in defense contracts.

At the same time another power-strike threat loomed in the utility company's service areas in Missouri, Illinois and Iowa.

The St. Louis dispute centers on a demand by the A. F. of L. Operating Engineers for wage increases. The utility involved, the Union Electric Co., has offered a blanket 10 per cent increase.

The strike threat in the surrounding territory was made by the Independent Tri-State Utility Workers' Union, which announced it would take a strike vote among 2346 company employes. The independent union's attorney declared his organization was seeking wage increases averaging about 24 per cent.

After last night's conference in St. Louis with the A. F. of L. group a union official said:

"By a close vote the membership decided to back up the executive committee and allow the conciliation service another 48 hours starting at midnight tonight to mediate the wage differences."

This official credited a telegram from Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson and the efforts of three Federal conciliators with averting an immediate strike. The three are David W. Hill, jr., P. S. Lunt and William F. White.

Then he said:

"We're not giving the company anything but we're willing to give the Federal Government another 48 hours."

In other defense labor situations yesterday:

The Weirton Steel Co., Weirton, W. Va., signed a contract with the recently formed Weirton Independent Union, union spokesmen announced. They declared that the contract, which provides a minimum pay of 72½ cents an hour, vacations with pay, and a guarantee to selectees of jobs formerly held, was the best in the steel industry.

In Washington, the Defense Mediation Board announced that Owen D. Young, industrialist appointed as special board representative, would begin hearings today in New York in an effort to end a long standing dispute between the U. S. Gypsum Co. and the C. I. O. United Mine Workers chemical division.

Young is to investigate wage demands, vacations, arbitration of grievances and union security issues.

Other board panels began hearings yesterday on a strike at the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Co., Michigan City, Ind., and a dispute involving the Pacific States Cast Iron Pipe Co., Provo, Utah.

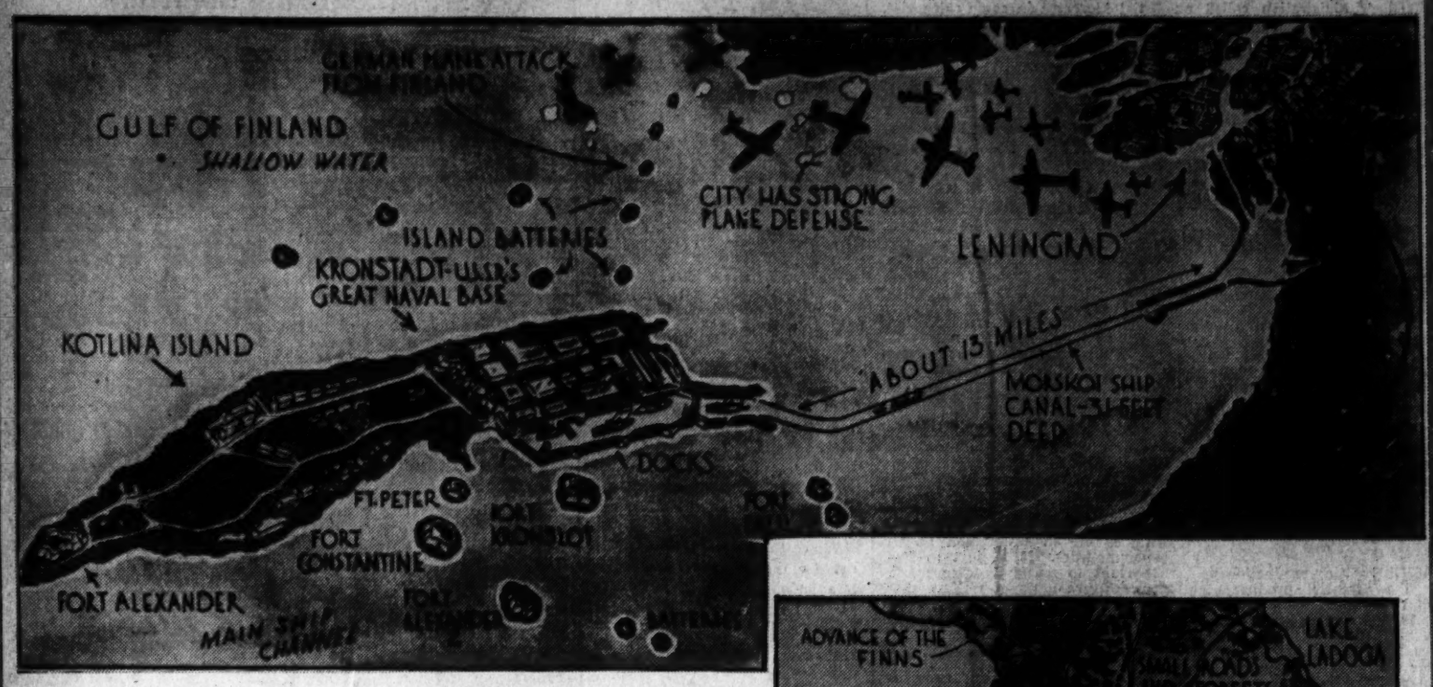
Amphibian Tanks Might Turn Tide at Leningrad



KRONSTADT NAVAL BASE PROTECTS LENINGRAD FROM SEA ATTACK

By Logan Reavis

New York, Sept. 8 (The Special News Service).—Leningrad, Russia's fortified seaport of the north, is menaced from land—its railroad link with Russia suffering the shells of Nazi guns, the city itself reported encircled by the Germans.

Thus, a city which remained secure for 238 years from attack by sea faces a threat from the rear, from the land side.

For generations, Russians had armed the city to beat off attack from the Baltic, through the Gulf of Finland.

Ships were built there, forts constructed and defense points established on the gulf's edge to make Leningrad impregnable to sea assault.

The long-range artillery and the long-range airplane of today have changed the picture.

Main defense of Leningrad against the mechanized power of modern armies is the marshy terrain which recurs around the southerly, westerly and easterly approaches to the city.

If the panzer units should bog down in the marshes, it might be that the U. S. S. R. could produce special tanks able to maneuver successfully in that soft soil.

It is known that the Soviets have employed Vickers and Ford tanks efficient for combat in water and on land. Whether a fleet of these tanks, able as they are to take streams in their stride, could perform in the marshlands remains a question.

But the success or failure of Leningrad's stand against her attackers may well prove a vital lesson for the cities of the world's seacoasts—cities like New York, Charleston, Boston and San Francisco, as well as cities in foreign lands.

For the harbor cities of the world have been fortified primarily against sea attack.

Leningrad was strongly fortified on the sea side by the island fortress of Kronstadt, by a chain of gun-bristling smaller islands, and by three-decker forts commanding the sea approach to the city. Her ships controlled the gulf.

But today the great menace has come to Leningrad through the back door—by land.

Scientists 'Etch' Metal for Planes

(This is the third in a series of articles about Washington industries that have adapted their methods and equipment to serve national defense.)

By George W. Thorpe
Post Staff Writer

Three floors above Fourteenth Street and New York Avenue, four scientists juggle test tubes and peer into microscopes.

The accent is on national defense in the Stewart Research Laboratory. And the personnel sees something symbolic in the fact the lab is just two blocks from the White House.

Most of the work carried on by the scientists finds its way into defense channels via private concerns which need laboratory assistance to turn out specially processed defense materials.

To illustrate: Once you have made your way through a formidable battery of test tubes, gauges and other scientific paraphernalia, you find hanging on the wall a dozen strips of metal.

The metal is aluminum but one section of the strip is darker and rougher to the touch than the natural aluminum.

"This is the stuff that goes into an airplane," an official said yesterday, pointing to a strip that bore the label "aluminum-magnesium alloy used for airplanes—Army specifications."

By a process called "etching" Stewart Co. workers roughen the smooth aluminum so that it will retain a coat of paint or enamel, protection for the warplanes against the elements.

In another corner of the laboratory are foot-high boxes holding quantities of the strategic war material, mica. In a ponderous apparatus known as a "micronizer" Stewart technicians break down already minute mica particles until they are invisible to the naked eye (in fact, they say, the finest powder in the world)—and try to find new ways to use it in defense items.

One specialty of this laboratory has its producers puzzled. It is "Glink," an ultra-indelible ink used on glass, porcelain, or any glazed surface. The Government is using "Glink" in connection with defense items, but for what specific purpose has not been made known to the Stewart Laboratory scientists. All they know is it is employed in marking some kinds of optical instruments.

Another thing about Glink: it is so impervious to wear that the Stewart researchers have yet to find a way to get it off a surface once applied.

They're working on that now.

Penny Arcades Thrive Again

Once it was fishing, 'cause that's all there was to do. Then came the medicine shows and the traveling circuses.

But they too fell by the wayside, and were followed by new forms of entertainment: mah jong, beano, miniature golf, jig saw puzzles, bingo, and scores of other games.

Today, one of America's national past-times is playing the coin machine. The Department of Commerce has estimated that from 1935 to 1939 alone, the annual number of machines manufactured jumped from 65,183 to 109,597, representing an increase in value of more than six million dollars.

To add to that, the national defense program has been an impetus in the mushrooming business of coin machines. All over the country, the old penny arcade is beginning to appear again, especially in the vicinity of Army camps. Here in Washington, more than 15 penny arcades now dot the city.

But they are much different from the arcades where Pa used to go. Those fascinating peep shows, "The Maid's Day Off," and "Susie's Secret," are no more.

In their place are kiss-o-meters, digger machines, pin ball games, foot vitalizers, bicycle trainers, chin machines, post card vendors, take-your-own-picture machines, and every whoosiz and whatsiz known to the Rube Goldberg version of science.

So, if you're looking for crowds, bright lights, plenty of noise, excitement, novelty, and you have a strong spirit, a steady eye, an inquisitive nature, and a fistfull of pennies, the modern arcade may suit you.

There you will find things which even nature has never been able to match in grotesqueness. You can live the life of Buck Rogers, Joe DiMaggio, Sergt. York, or almost anyone else with whom your admiration has mental acquaintance, just so long as your pennies last.

But once those precious bits of copper have been exhausted, the clock automatically strikes 12, and your coach and six horses will turn back to a pumpkin and six mice again. But should you keep changing greenbacks into pennies, remaining well supplied, the hours of magic will never end, and the pumpkin and mice won't have a chance.

In other words, there's lots of fun to be had at a penny arcade, providing you have the pennies.

For a cent, you can pull a lever on a strange looking machine, and an artificial creature behind glass, will shake her witch's finger at you, and out will come a card, with everything you wanted to know. Your personal faults, your mental attitude, what your best friends think of you, and related information will be yours.

Or, for an equal amount of money, you can squeeze a rubber bulb, and a flashing sign will tell you whether your kisses are romantic, fishy, or in the twilight zone.

That isn't all, either. For the athlete with pennies, there are builder-uppers and tearer-downers. A fifth of a nickel in the slot, brings you a punching bag, which upon meeting with your clenched fingers, either cheers or jeers at your strength.

You can go military with an electric-eye rifle or machine gun. In fact, coin machine manufacturers are now preparing a super bomber to distribute to the penny arcades. How it will operate is at present a "military" and trade secret.

Finally, there is the ordinary pin ball machine, perhaps the most popular of them all. It is a happy little gagget, active all day, taking pennies in here, and shooting little balls out there.

In all, there's a wide variety of thrills available—at a penny a throw.

A Buxom Girl Dances Way to Fame, Fortune

Reduced 20 Pounds In Three Months To Aid Career

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU are among the fat, jolly career women who are really discontented with your lot and looks, telling you about Lu-Cellia may make you actively dissatisfied. She is the new exotic "primitive" dancer who is coming into sudden fame and fortune.

Only a short time ago Lu-Cellia was a buxom young lady who, apparently, had every reason to feel rather pleased with her prospects as a designer—but wasn't. One fine day she decided that in spite of never having had a dancing lesson in her life, she was going to dance for a living.

Out of deference to her Spanish and Indian ancestry, she chose the Aztec and Afro-Cuban dances, which are about the most strenuous exercises ever invented. She practiced seven to eight hours a day and seven days a week. With such rigorous exercise program, it is not surprising that she lost 20 pounds in three months.

Can Change Looks

Not many of us would have the courage to make such a drastic change in our work. But Lu-Cellia said to tell you that any woman with a spark of determination can gradually bring about as great a transformation in her looks. If you do, you will certainly be a very different looking woman. She used to appear heavy-set and stolid. Now she is a vivid and fascinating personality You can see for yourself the improvement made in her figure—all by dancing. The bust measurement was slimmed down from 36 inches to 34, waist from 27 inches to 23, and hips from 37 inches to 35. For her height of 5 feet 3 inches and slight frame those are lovely specifications.

She looks several years younger, which proves that exercise pays, and, from her own experience, she is convinced that settling of the body is the first sign of age. Any woman who wants to keep looking young, she says, must take enough tioning properly so that her tisexercise to keep her body funcsues will be firm and he rskin good.

Advises Stretching

You are not likely to get enough exercise to reduce very much weight without also restricting your calories. But you will like this interesting career woman's tips on exercise. The main thing, she believes, is to stretch your body, lift the diaphragm and inhale deeply with each upstretch. Exhale as you relax and try to achieve rhythmic breathing along with your exercises. One of the simplest and best beginning exercises is to stand with hips squarely to front, stretch, inhale, lift the diaphragm high as you stretch slightly backward, straighten, and relax. Inhale as you stretch, exhale as you come back to starting position.

She especially likes wall-stretching exercises. In one she stands leg-length away from the wall, facing away from it, and with one foot firmly planted on the wall as high up as you can get it, while keeping knee and trunk straight. Then, very slowly and without straining in the least, stretch upward, lifht the diaphragm, and increase backward stretch by a slight arc. Another is to stand facing wall, both hands on wall about chest hight, one leg about 10 inches away from the wall, the other a full, long step away, and lift and stretch.

Besides a lovely figure, Lu-Cellie has startlingly blue eyes, black hair—and a new movie contract.

New Silhouette Requires Sleek Control of Figure

You will have no figure secrets from the world in this season's silhouette, as is evidenced in the snug-fitting dress below, typical of fall, 1941. This long torso silhouette, which plays up the uninterrupted outline from bodice to hipline, demands corseting for sleekness. To meet the new silhouette problems, this season's corset, according to Miss Helen Johnson, New York figure consultant for Warners Corset Co., emphasizes control from midriff to hipline. Miss Johnson, here to celebrate the opening of a new corset salon, advises one-way lastex stretch for control and two-way stretch for fit, as embodied in the La Gant style right. The "stay-up top" smooths the midriff and the lastex slims the hips for such dresses as the figure revealing one below, designed by Joseph Whitehead.

How to Work for Uncle Sam

EVERY YEAR Uncle Sam takes on thousands of workers. They come from the ranks of the unskilled as well as the skilled—and for women and men without training or experience there are "earn while you learn" jobs.

Is there an opportunity for you in the United States Civil Service? Read and see.

Q. I'm interested in the mechanical trades; could I get training?

A. If you're under 22 you can take an examination for a four-year "earn while you learn" course in a mechanical trade such as boilermaker, electrician, machinist.

Q. I'd like to study nursing; are there Government courses?

A. If you're a high school graduate between 18 and 30 you can take a test for a three-year course in nursing. Room and board and $288 a year are included. And from there you may get a post as junior graduate nurse, paying $1620.

Q. What chance has a high school graduate interested in science?

A. If you've studied your subject a year, you can take the test for minor laboratory apprentice in a field such as chemistry or physics. Pay is $1020. Then, with a year's college work or laboratory experience, try for the next grade.

Original Pine Paneling Can Add Old Home's Charm

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

"MANY HANDS have done many things to our old house, for it's over 100 years old," writes Mrs. E. B. T. "Right now I'm interested in doing over the living room and entrance hall. Originally, the walls and ceiling were of wide hand-planed pine boards. One of the past owners had part of the living room walls plastered, leaving the entire inside wall and below the 32-inch height molding finished in the wide boards running horizontally. A bay window with four narrow windows had been added. The fireplace chimney juts out into the room about 27 inches and it, too, has been plastered. The entrance hall has only the front and the back above the molding plastered.

"My problem is this—shall I have the entire walls of the living room and hall completely papered over with some attractive wall paper, or do you think it would be nice to expose all the old pine boards and have plaster papered over in a plaster-effect paper? Both the painter and I favor the idea of exposing the boards but I have wondered if this would be in good taste. What colors would you advise in the finish of my walls? I have a southern and western exposure. Should the entrance hall and living room be finished alike? What finish would you suggest for the old floors which are made of 6-inch pine boards?"

Would it be possible to uncover all the old pine panelling—even that which has been plastered over? If so, that would make a lovely wall, for the part that's been under the plaster would have a mellow natural pickled effect when the plaster is removed. If it isn't possible to remove the plaster, our next preference would be to paint it white or in a light pastel color, light blue or light green perhaps. If it must be papered, a small scale sprigged colonial pattern would be our choice. We'd do both rooms alike—Why not clean all the old finish off the floors and wax them?

Hollywood Stars Have Their Own Ideas About Modes

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 2.—Life for a Hollywood designer would be dull indeed if screen stars didn't have fashion minds of their own. Most of the girls have ideas they've nurtured since childhood and a costumer's best oratory won't sway them.

The only star ever known to change her mind is Bette Davis. When Bette first came to Warner Bros. she gave Orry-Kelly carte blanche on her clothes, except for necklines. Because her neck is very slender, Bette considered it her worst feature and shunned necklines of daring cut. Then came "Jezebel," with the script calling for a strapless gown. An important sequence of the story hinged on this certain type of decolletage. Bette gave in, wore the gown, won acclaim and no longer argues about necklines.

Ann Sheridan delivers herself into her designer's hands except for hats. She won't wear chapeaux that perch precariously on her head nor the style with brim or trim that interferes with her vision. Ann's one and only chapeau love is the turban which she can wrap a dozen different ways with the greatest of ease.

Priscilla Lane dislikes extremely tight skirts and more than one piece of jewelry at a time. She also has an antipathy to green. In "New Orleans Blues," Priscilla is happy because she has three different blouse and flared skirt combinations.

Olivia de Havilland plays in so many historical films that she puts a strict taboo on period-influenced clothes when she plays in a modern story. Olivia wints crazy 1941 hats and all the streamlined trimmings.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Divorcee, 25, Returns to Parents' Home, in Order To Claim Security for Her Two Babies; There She Is 'Slavey,' Denied Funds, Friends, Recreation

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 25, and the mother of two lovely children, aged 3 and 5. I got married seven years ago. Then, because my husband deserted us, I was advised by my attorney to obtain a divorce, which I did,—after 18 months' separation. During this time, my husband never came to see the children and, as a result, the court ruled that he may see them only twice a month.

Following the divorce, it seemed necessary for me to return to my parents' home—as I had no experience in being self-supporting. I receive $30 a month for the children, which I turn over to my folks, for food, clothing and whatever else may be needed. As for myself, I spend only $1 in two weeks—my allowance. I do most of the housework, all the washing and ironing; and, of course, take care of the children, in addition to driving my parents wherever they want to go.

Here is my problem: After putting the children to bed at 7 p. m., I feel that I should have the privilege of spending the remainder of the evening as I see fit. But my parents don't think so. They tell me I should be satisfied with what I have; and should go to bed every night at 9 p. m. Being the mother of two children, certainly I am old enough to know right from wrong, and to know how to conduct myself.

I know several nice men, with whom I would like to go out once in a while. On several occasions, I have done so, coming home never later than 11:30 p. m. But the results were awful. My parents sat up waiting for me, and raved for several hours afterward; in addition to embarrassing me in front of my friends and telling them never to come around again. Anything I do is all wrong, so far as my parents are concerned.

Next week, I start work for the telephone company and I am wondering how to cope with the situation. Should I get a small apartment? Or continue to live with my parents? They have already asked for my salary, all except transportation costs. I am losing all confidence in myself and I simply cannot hold up much longer under existing conditions. I sincerely believe I have a right to friends and happiness; but if you think my attitude is wrong, please don't hesitate to say so. I am more than willing to profit by my mistakes. Sincerely,

CONFUSED.

Cast-Off Parents' 'Wrong-Headed' Rule

DEAR CONFUSED: When your housewifely duties are done for the day and your children sound asleep in bed at night, it is certainly your well-earned privilege to enjoy some normal social diversion with friends your own age. It would be a mistake to "bury yourself alive," as your parents would have you do. Such a course, if long meekly pursued, would gradually reduce you to a neurasthenic state of mind and body; thus rendering you unfit either to support or personally supervise your children.

Your parents' attitude is most unreasonable; most unjust. Either they are very stupid, very short-sighted, or viciously selfish old-sters. What's the matter with them? Are they afraid you may marry again? Can't they see that a good second marriage would afford the ideal solution of the present vexatious situation? And don't they know that you cannot make that kind of marriage so long as you are denied opportunity of associating casually, on a self-respecting, happy hearted basis, with a assorted young men?

Are their minds so clouded by evil thoughts that they feel you cannot be trusted "out of sight" with a young man? Do they construe your every "date" as an assignation with sin? Are they so mean spirited, so ungenerous, as to taunt you with reminders of your initial failure to marry well and wisely? And to hold that this misfortune deprives you of the right to seek further for the true helpmeet?

Their attitude, which is worse than noncooperative, which is outrageously tyrannical, causes one to wonder, indeed, whether they may have been indirectly responsible for your premature, ill-starred marriage, made at the age of 18. Perhaps they drove you on so tight a rein, throughout your childhood and girlhood, that you jumped at marriage as a means of escaping their relentless "bossy" watchfulness. On the other hand, of course, you may have been a somewhat too self-assured youngster, and they may think, now, that they were too lenient with you in earlier years; and may be trying, in a wrong-headed sort of way, to prevent you (as they might say) "from making a fool of yourself over some no-account man for a second time."

In any event, whatever their motives, their policy is deplorable, and their manner of enacting it is insufferable. They are behaving disgracefully, in sitting up nights until you get home, for the purpose of berating you, insulting your friends and ordering them "never to come around again." They are behaving greedily and despotically, too, in snatching your alimony-income out of your hands, to spend as they please. If they were civilized persons, of humanitarian mind, they would put a price on your services to the household, and would adjust the bill for "board-and-keep" to a much lower figure than $30 a month. They would want you to have some money to manage on the children's behalf, as an aid to self respect. And they would gladly make many hidden sacrifices, rather than give you to feel (as they do) that you are alternately a slave and a nuisance.

In my opinion, their avaricious demand that you turn your salary over to them is the last straw. Since they can be such hard bargainers with their own daughter, at a time in her life when she sorely needs kindly cooperation and sympathetic encouragement, it seems to me they must be adjudged unfit to associate in domestic intimacy with growing children. Their meanness of temperament will be progressively reflected in the defenceless assimilative characters of your two babies; and the minds of the latter will be gradually poisoned against you, by the example of their grandparents' domineering contempt, until they, too, will deny you respect and cooperation, if you continue to live in this set-up.

So my advice to you is to move out of your parents' home as quickly as possible. A small apartment of your own would be the most comfortable arrangement, of course; but if that is financially unfeasible, go into so-called "light housekeeping" rooms; or into a suburban boarding house, where foster-mother care will be given the children in your absence. With $30 monthly alimony income, plus a weekly wage, you should be able to manage without further family help.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Camp Cookies

A BOX of food from home is about as welcome as an extra day's pay to some boys in camps. Uncle Sam can take care of the essentials very well, but those little homey bits that boys are fond of will have to be supplied by the home folks. Especially toward the end of the month, when pay day seem so far away, will a box of sweets be welcomed.

It is necessary to send food that will pack and carry in good condition. Honey Fig Crunches are cookies that will stay fresh and moist through hours of travel. Also these cookies are healthful because they contain rice flakes which provide the cereal cellulose that is an aid in digestion, and dried figs, which are a valuable source of minerals—especially iron—and vitamins too.

Here is a recipe for making the Honey Fig Crunches. These cookies are so easy to make that even kid sister, as well as mother or sweetheart, will be able to bake them.

Honey Fig Crunches

Sift together 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda and ¼ teaspoon salt. Prepare 1½ cups finely diced figs. Cream 1 cup butter, adding 1 cup honey and blending well. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, and 2 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add the sifted dry ingredients and figs with 4 cups rice flakes. Mix well and drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees, for 18 minutes or until light brown. Makes 8 dozen.

Relax Before Exercise

Hollywood, Calif. — Strenuous exercises are more beneficial if the exercisee is perfectly relaxed before she begins. This is the advice of Lew Hippe, physical instructor at Warner Bros., gives to all girls who come to him to be streamlined. Before playing any game or doing any energetic exercise, he says, warm up and relax the muscles first with stretching, bending and breathing exercises, all done slowly and rhythmically.

The McNutts Entertain Williamses

Colonel and Wife LeaveThis Week; He Takes Recreational Post in Louisiana

By Carolyn Bell

The answer to that all too frequent question "How's the Army morale?" might have been found last night on the Shoreham terrace. It was there that the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt entertained at a farewell dinner party in honor of Col. and Mrs. Kemper Williams who will leave the end of the week for New Orleans, where the Colonel will take over command of the Louisiana Recreational Areas. Having just completed a tour of duty with the Morale Division of the Army the Colonel should be well acquainted with the recreational problems of the soldiers.

It was a pleasantly informal dinner that took place on the lantern-strung terrace with its gurgling fountain. Ten guests were entertained by the silver-haired Mr. McNutt and his wife. Mrs. McNutt and her daughter, Louise, have just returned from a vacation in Gloucester, Mass. Louise is getting ready to resume her studies at George Washington University where she will be a junior this year.

Both Will Leave This Week

Since it was announced that they were to be transferred, Col. and Mrs. Williams have been entertained at a round of farewell parties. Although they have only been in Washington since last November, they have made a vast number of friends. They entertained often in their attractive home in Whitehaven Street, which they leased upon their arrival.

At present, Col. and Mrs. Williams have his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seyburn Williams, of New Orleans, stopping with them. The colonel plans to leave on Thursday for his new post and Mrs. Williams will follow him on Saturday.

They Have Beautiful House in New Orleans

Since her arrival here, Mrs. Williams has had a variety of interests. She has been very active in St. John's Church. When news that the colonel was to be transferred to New Orleans came through, Mrs. Williams was, nevertheless, thrilled, for the glamour spot of Louisiana is home the them. They have a beautiful house in that city which they are undoubtedly looking forward to moving into again.

Col. Williams will no doubt find quite a job awaiting him at his new post. Tented camps are being erected as fast as it is possible in vicinities where recreational facilities — such as swimming, shows, boating, etc.—can be reached with little difficulty. There is no reveille and a minimum of discipline, so that the soldiers on weekend leave may enjoy their time off.

CAPITAL CALENDAR: Lieut Col. and Mrs. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., will entertain at a party at the Army and Navy Country Club on Friday, September 19, from 5 to 7 o'clock. Honor guests at the affair will be Gen. and Mrs. Albert L. Cox. The general recently resigned as draft head for the District . . . Miss Elene Essary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, will be guest at a luncheon on Saturday that Miss Elizabeth Shepherd is giving. Miss Shephard, who attended Sweet Briar last year, will introduce Elene to a number of girls from Sweet Briar . . . Honoring bride-elect Sherry Biggers, Miss Martha Belle Moore will be hostess at a luncheon on Saturday at the Shoreham . . . Sherry and Dr. Sprague Gardiner will be married the middle of October . . . Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley and Miss Mary Jane Stanley will be hosts at a party on Sunday afternoon. It will be from 5 until 7 o'clock at "The Lawn," the Stanley's Laurel, Md., home . . . Former Senator and Governor of Kansas, Henry J. Allen, will be in town on a flying visit Thursday. That afternoon he will be guest at a party by the Washington committee of the British Child Aid Committee to be given from 5 until 7 o'clock at the Carlton. Mr. Allen, who is chairman of the committee, has been in London observing and is flying back to this country by clipper. Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, has been asked to assist at the party . . . Miss Joan McKenna, who has been summering in Nassau as the guest of her aunt, Lady Pascoe Rutter, is expected to return next week . . . Pretty, blonde, Marianna Evans will leave on Thursday for Simmons College.

When former Senator Howard Sutherland, of West Virginia, celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday at a family dinner here last night, his granddaughter, Miss Natalie Sutherland (above) was among those present. Mrs. Sutherland, wife of the honor guest, was hostess at the party, which took place at the Georgetown home of their daughter, Mrs. Sutherland Mayo. Others present included Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harris, Miss Sutherland's mother, Mrs. Richard K. Sutherland, and Kenneth Norton. Miss Sutherland's father, who is serving in Manila, recently was made a brigadier general and appointed chief of staff of the Philippines under Gen. Douglas MacArthur. His wife and daughter will spend the winter in Washington at the Kennedy-Warren. An accomplished portrait painter, Miss Sutherland expects to resume her studies soon at the Corcoran Art School

Marianne Bell Becomes Bride In D. C. Church

The St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon was the scene of the wedding of Miss Marianne Bell, daughter of Judge Robert C. Bell of the District Court of Appeals of Minnesota, and Mrs. Bell, of St. Paul, Minn., and Robert Kendall McConnaughey, son of Mrs. W. S. McConnaughey, of Dayton, Ohio, and the late Mr. McConnaughey. The Rev. John G. Magee officiated at the 4:30 o'clock ceremony.

Sister-in-Law Is Matron of Honor

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a princess style gown of white satin made with inserts of lace in the full skirt and sleeves and a long train. Her three-length veil was caught in a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of brides roses.

Mrs. Robert C. Bell, jr., a sister-in-law of the bride and the matron of honor, wore a dress of aquamarine crepe, trimmed in gold beading with which she wore a matching hat of aquamarine. Her arm bouquet was of yellow roses.

Robert Henry, of Dayton, Ohio, served as best man and the ushers were Travis Brown, of Charlotte, N. C., and A. T. Hobson.

Reception Held At New Home

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the new home of the couple in Forest Glen, Md. Later, Mr. McConnaughey and his bride left on a trip to Nova Scotia and Maine. The bride's traveling costume was a gray velvet dress under a matching coat which she wore with a black hat and black accessories.

The bride was graduated from the University of Minnesota and from the University of Virginia Law School. She is a member of the District of Columbia bar. Her husband is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School. He is assistant solicitor of the Department of Agriculture in charge of the legal affairs for the Farm Credit Administration.

Vice President and Family See Opening of Wynn Show

"Now this drama is one that Henry Wallace and I wrote together, back in Des Moines, Iowa, before he was so famous and a Vice President. Of course I really wrote it all myself, but I just like to give him a little credit, him being from Iowa and all." And in an upper left box, the Vice President and his party chuckled gaily at Ed Wynn's good humored heckling.

The Wallaces, as well as hundreds of other delighted Capitalites, had turned out last evening to fill the National Theatre to capacity for the opening of Ed Wynn's show, "Boys and Girls Together." As for the show, it, like "Hellzapoppin," defied description, but kept the audience roaring. A sally that seemed to particularly amuse the throng was —"Yeah, she's just crazy about soldiers, she's khaki-wacky!"

Taking time out for relaxation from "the crisis," Vice President Wallace had collected his family and enough other guests to fill two boxes. Mrs. Wallace had chosen for the occasion a soft blue and white printed chiffon, and her daughter, Miss Jean Wallace, wore a full length frock fashioned with a pepper-and-salt check skirt and a white chiffon waist. Mme. Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister and sister of Vice President Wallace, sat with her brother in the rear box. She was wearing a black taffeta bolero over a flower print taffeta frock. Others in the party included Senator Lister Hill and Mrs. Alban Barkley, the latter wearing a long sleeved crepe dinner frock in soft turquoise blue.

Others noted among the first-nighters were Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Grady, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, who set off her snowy hair with a flower print gown and pale blue jacket; Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, she in lemon yellow crepe, Mr. and Mrs. Barge Hartz and their daughter, Miss Janet Hartz, and hundreds more.

Dr. and Mrs. C. K. Leith Take Hotel Apartment

Dr. and Mrs. Charles K. Leith, who maintained a home in Wesley Heights last winter, have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for the coming season.

Dr. Leith, who is on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, was called to Washington by the OPM for the duration of the emergency.

Venezuelan Party Put Off Until Sept. 17

Due to the death of President Roosevelt's mother, the Venezuelan Ambassador and Senora de Escalante have postponed the reception in honor of Gen. E. Lopez Contreras, former President of Venezuela, and Senora de Lopez Contreras, for which they had issued invitations for tomorrow.

Gen. Lopez Contreras and his wife will come to Washington next week and the reception will take place on Wednesday, September 17.

Hurbans Return To Washington

The Minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Hurban returned to Washington last night to open the Legation for the winter.

The Minister, who has been in Chicago on business, joined Mme. Hurban in New York last week. She has been vacationing in New York and at Seabright N. J.

Mary Wilson To Wed Oct. 11

Miss Mary Wilson, whose engagement to Samuel E. Neel was announced recently, will be married on October 11 in the Church of the Epiphany at 4 o'clock. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederic Wilson.

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Richard Sutton, will come from Kansas City, Mo., to attend as matron of honor. Miss Helen Lippitt, cousin of the bride, will be maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Sylvia Szchenyi, Miss Louise Burke and Miss Neville Atkinson, of The Plains.

It is hoped that William L. Batt, jr., will return from London in time to serve as best man. Ushers will be Charles F. Wilson, jr., Richard Gannon, Lloyd Embry, A. Randall Elliott, of New York; Paul W. Adams, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Phil P. Claxton, and Dick Woods, of Kansas City, Mo.

The Bradfords to Make Their Home in Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Brainerd Bradford, who are on a honeymoon trip to Boston, will make their home in Washington. Their marriage took place Saturday, August 30, at Trinity Church, Upper Marlboro, Md. The Rev. J. M. C. Shrewsbury officiated.

Holcombs Visit Their New Place Over Weekend

The commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, and Mrs. Holcomb returned to Washington yesterday after a weekend at their newly purchased estate, Rose Croft, near St. Marys on the western shore of Maryland.

Their son, Lieut. Frank Holcomb, joined them for the weekend and brought a small house party group with him.

Maj. Gen. Gullion Back From Miami, Where Niece Wed

Maj. Gen. Allan W. Gullion, judge advocate general of the Army, is expected to return to Washington on Thursday after several days in Miami, Fla.

He went there for the wedding of his niece, Miss Frances Mary Gullion, and Ensign Morrison Ripes Brown. Gen. Gullion gave his niece in marriage.

The former Miss Gullion is the daughter of Mrs. Walter Gullion and the late Lieut. Col. Gullion. She was born in Washington and lived here for a number of years. Ensign Brown, a graduate of Duke University, recently finished the United States Naval Midshipman School aboard the U. S. S. Prairie State in New York. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Brown, of Miami, and is now stationed at Jacksonville, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans On Trip to Miami

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Maddox Evans, whose marriage took place Saturday, are now on their honeymood in Miami, Fla., and will make their home in Washington.

The former Miss Mildred Mary Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Fitzgerald and Mr. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Evans, were married at St. Gabriel's Church at a 3 o'clock afternoon ceremony with the Rev. William J. Sweeney officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory satin, fashioned with a long train. Her long veil was held to her hair by a halo coronet and she carried of bouquet of white orchids and roses.

Miss Dorothy Sheehan was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Leamans, Mrs. Ellen Gay, Miss Marion Meyer and Miss Lucille Milling.

Ralph Heitmuller was the best man and the ushers were Robert Fitzgerald, brother of the bride; Richard Farr, Howard Cromwell, Righte Turner and Joseph Guernsey. Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Cameron Roberts Heads Defense Coordination Committee

Mrs. Cameron Roberts has been appointed chairman of a new committee to coordinate defense activities in the various sections of the Alexandria Woman's Club, according to plans announced yesterday.

Mrs. Roberts' committee will keep in close touch with the program of the United Service Organizations, it was stated.

Mrs. Harry B. Caton, club president, has sent to every member a letter and a questionnaire on which the member may indicate the part that she proposes to take in defense activities.

"Ramparts We Watch" will be the club's slogan for the coming season. The meeting at 2 p. m. Wednesday, September 24, at Gadsby's Tavern will be addressed by Capt. Frederick P. Todd, secretary of the American Military Institute. He will speak on "What Threatens America?" Mrs. Luther Evans, vice president, is serving as general program chairman.

The new art section holds its first program tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in the home of Miss Nancy Lee Tucker, 211 South St. Asaph Street. Mrs. William P. Sadler will speak on "The Universal Appeal of Beauty." Mrs. Paul L. Miller, section chairman, will preside.

Other scheduled meetings for September include: Garden section, a tea, Mrs. R. C. Brehaut, chairman, Thursday from 3 to 5 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Perry L. Werner, parliamentarian; Mrs. Stella LeRoux, publicity.

The club at its first fall meeting last night discussed a proposed reorganization plan, designed to permit more cooperation by the club in national defense measures and to meet requirements of a State unit in the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Bomber Sinks American Ship In Red Sea

vessel was sunk by the submarine. All who took to the boats later were rescued, but only after many days of suffering from exposure to the tropical heat of the South Atlantic.

Germany has never given any satisfaction in reply to this country's protest over that attack.

The State Department's announcement of the new attack on United States shipping, issued at 11 o'clock last night, said:

"The department has been informed that an American freighter, the Steel Seafarer, was sunk in the Red Sea by an aerial bomb on September 7. All survivors are safe. The plane was unidentified."

State Department and Maritime Commission officials were unable last night to give exact information on the number of persons aboard, the character of the cargo, the ship's destination or the port from which she sailed. One report was that "about 20 persons were in the crew.

The Steel Seafarer was operated by the Isthmian Line, of New York. Lloyd's Register of Shipping lists her as of 5719 gros stons, 424.2 feet long. She was a two-decker powered by two steam turbines and was built in 1921 by the Federal Shipbuilding Co., at Kearny, N. J.

Officials said that the American Export Line, as well as the Isthmian Line, has been operating in the Red Sea trade.

The Red Sea itself has never been an American-proclaimed combat zone. Upon the outbreak of the war, President Roosevelt designated a strip of the Gulf of Aden, extending from the east tip of Africa to the tip of Arabia, as a combat area, thus plugging up the Red Sea from the southern entrance. His April 11 order removed the ban from the Gulf of Aden, thereby permitting American ships to pass through the gulf to the Red Sea.

Last week's attack on the Greer by a German submarine was followed by German charges that the Greer had fired first, an assertion promptly and emphatically denied by the Navy Department.

For Japan's Benefit

The attempt to make it appear that Germany had been attacked was seen by some as an effort on the part of Berlin to bring Japan into the war, since the Tokyo Government is bound by its agreement with the Axis to enter the conflict if Germany should be attacked by any power not a belligerent at the time the three-power Axis pact was signed.

It was pointed out, however, that it would be more difficult to indicate Germany had been attacked in the case of the Steel Seafarer, sunk from the sky.

There has been general expectation that President Roosevelt's Thursday broadcast postponed from last night because of the death of his mother Sunday, would express this country's determination to maintain freedom for its shipping outside the combat zones it recognizes.

The attack on the Greer took place while that ship was en route to Iceland, and Mr. Roosevelt grimly told reporters that the Navy had been given orders to seek out and "eliminate" the submarine which fired the torpedoes.

Whether the President's address would contain any suggestion for the convoying of American ships carrying aid to the forces fighting the Axis has been a matter of frequent speculation.

Lincoln Picture to Hang Beside That of Taney, Justice Who Wrote the Dred Scott Decision

The picture of Abraham Lincoln reading his proclamation of Negro freedom to his cabinet was headed yesterday for union with the bust of Roger S. Taney, the fifth Chief Justice of the United States, who held that the Constitution was made for white men only.

The Emancipation Proclamation is being moved at the Capitol to the old Supreme Court chamber. It will be the first—and only—picture in the long, elliptical room that also formerly served as the Senate chamber.

It will hang in the gallery, behind the old court bench, and facing a row of busts of Chief Justices.

It will face the bust of Taney, but the head of the author of the Dred Scott decision is lowered and his eyes study the carpet.

"So far inferior that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect," held Chief Justice Taney.

But the Civil War and Lincoln reversed him.

Gingerly, because the painting is more than 80 years old and the canvas is brittle, workmen yesterday removed the picture from its place over a landing on the east stairway on the House side of the Capitol. Its place is to be taken by the huge (30 by 20 feet) Howard Chandler Christy painting of the Signing of the Constitution.

Ten men working on a scaffolding with heavy ropes and other gear first removed the heavy gilded frames, two of which are nearly 18 feet long. Then the 14½-by-nine-foot canvas was slowly lowered to the floor.

Truck Strike Ties Up D. C. Freight

business agent for the union; Management was represented by E. B. Lackie, J. P. Faherty and Harry J. Kane, jr.

Meanwhile the city faces a stoppage of all railroad freight traffic. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yesterday afternoon clamped an embargo on the city. A. B. & O. official said no more freight except carload lots of building materials would be routed to Washington until the strike is settled. Other rail companies are expected to fall in line with B. & O.'s decision.

Grover Blackstone, freight agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad here, said a meeting would be held by company officials to determine what action should be taken. He said an embargo was expected to be announced today.

Platforms at freight depots were piled high with merchandise. A spokesman for the trucking companies said he had asked the union to permit perishables to be loaded at the depots but that the proposal was rejected.

It was learned that materials needed for national defense are among those held up by the strike. These include cables and conduits for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and the Western Electric Co.; material for two destroyers at the Navy Yard here and 32,000 pounds of coffee consigned to Fort Belvoir, Va. A high Government official said that if the strike is not settled soon, the Defense Mediation Board may be called in.

Yesterday the Teamsters' Joint Council in Baltimore refused to handle freight consigned here until the strike is over. William E. Humphries, a spokesman for the trucking companies, said that even if the strike were settled at once, it would take at least a month to bring the city's freight traffic back to normal. Freight tied up now includes, besides that mentioned, furniture, hardware and some grocery products.

his confession was false. He did not renew his previous claim that the confession was forced from him by brutality.

Alibi Breaks Down

Robinson attempted an alibi defense, but the witnesses he called failed to confirm his account of having been with them about the time of the rape.

Although both prosecution and defense were willing to have the jurors consider the whole indictment, which charged two instances of rape and two of carnal knowledge, Justice O'Donoghue ordered the jurors to confine themselves to the carnal knowledge counts. In law, carnal knowledge is a sex crime against a girl under 16, whether or not by force.

After 55 minutes of deliberation, the jurors found a verdict of guilty on both counts, with the death penalty on each. Justice O'Donoghue then ordered that "not guilty" verdict be found on the rape charges.

Meanwhile, Williams came to trial before Federal Judge Thomas B. Kennedy, of Cheyenne, Wyo., here on "loan" duty. On the jury were ten white men and two Negroes. Because he had no lawyer, the court had named Saul Lichtenberg to defend him.

Against him appeared a 17-year-old girl who said that on the night of August 1 she and her boy friend were in a car in a woods at Fifty-third and Fitch Streets Southeast.

Knocked Boy Out

The girl said Williams struck her boy friend on the head with a half brick and knocked him out. Then, she said, Williams hit her on the head with a brick and ravished her. She was positive of her identification, saying she could see Williams by the dash lights of the car.

Found near the scene was a blue cap which Williams later admitted was his. He denied the rape, and said he was peeping at the couple when the boy friend challenged him and they fought.

Prosecutor Allen J. Krouse branded the crime vicious and called for the death penalty.

The jury deliberated exactly an hour in reaching the verdict.

The men are due to be sentenced Friday. They are entitled to take their sentences to the United States Court of Appeals here for review. If they lose there, they might go to the Supreme Court.

Three Men Held

Dahlma Vincen Williams, 35, of Takoma Park, Md., and Byrd Mitchell, 22, of 4425 Fourteenth Street Northwest, are being held without bond in the Hyattsville jail on charges of rape. Both men are bus drivers.

Corpl. Lewis Mackall of the county police said yesterday the two men are accused of attacking a 40-year-old woman early Sunday on the Colesville Road near University Lane.

According to the story told police, the woman met the two men at a tavern on University Lane and accepted their offer of a ride home. Instead of taking her home both men attacked her, she said.

The men will be given a preliminary hearing Thursday morning in Hyattsville police court before Judge Alan Bowie.

Alfred Aquilino 28, of 1017 B Street Southeast is being held on an open charge by District police. A warrant charging Aquilino with the rape of a 23-year-old woman of Tenth Street Southeast was issued yesterday by Justice of the Peace George Phillips, of Berwyn.

Found on Highway

According to Officer Ed Cissell, of the county police, the woman claims Aquilino attacked her several times in a parked automobile on the Defense Highway near Lanham yesterday. The woman was found wandering along the highway in an hysterical condition by Fred Schenck, of Glenndale, a passing motorist.

Aquilino will be given a preliminary hearing in District police court tomorrow morning.

The jurors impaneled to try Robinson were James N. Allred, 53, bookkeeper, 4417 Burlington Place Northwest; Taylor H. Amiss, 36, construction company manager, 2710 Cathedral Avenue Northwest; Joseph C. Bacher, 46, furniture manufacturer, 1723 Irving Street Northwest; John W. Beckwith, 36, Social Security official, 2104 Huidekoper Place Northwest.

Also Earl W. Nunnally, 30, motor company official, 1816 Kalorama Road Northwest; Walter W. Roach, 59, finance company secretary, 1509 Sixteenth Street Northwest; Frank P. Crawford, 52, railroad accountant, 1327 Valley Place Southeast; Jacob Sperber, 60, realty salesman, 3840 Calvert Street Northwest.

Also Harry Gelfand, 52, tobacco dealer, 7523 Twelfth Street Northwest; Wilbert I. Yates, 29, salesman, 1204 M Street Northwest; Thomas N. Armel, 47, War Department employe, 1253 F Street Northwest; Clifford G. Needham, 30, insurance manager, 1000 Twenty-second Street Northwest.

Dr. Lawson Becomes Bride Of Dr. Reedy

MRS. HILDA LAWSON REEDY

Dr. Hilda Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lawson, 2717 Eleventh Street Northwest, was married Saturday to Dr. Sidney Joseph Reedy at St. Augustine's Catholic Church. Dr. Reedy is professor of education at Lincoln University, Missouri, where his bride has served as assistant professor in the graduate school. The Rev. Terence Evans officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who is on the staff of The Washington Post. Miss Lucile Baker, the bride's college chum at Iowa University, was her bridesmaid, and Walter Reedy, of Wichita, Kans., brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Mrs. Reedy is a graduate of Dunbar High School and Miner Teachers' College, where she was graduated cum laude. She attended Iowa University in 1935, and went to the University of Illinois as a Rosenwald Fellow in 1936, where she won her doctorate in English. She has taught at Bennett College, at West Virginia State University, and at Lincoln.

Dr. Reedy, a native of Natchez, Miss., is a graduate of Lincoln and Iowa Universities. He received his doctorate in 1939 at the Colorado State College of Education, and has served as professor of education at Lincoln since that time. He is a member of the Gamma Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi, and past polemarch of the Jefferson City alumni chapter.

A wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Lydia Freeman. Following the reception, the bride and bridegroom went on a motor trip to New York.

are going to see a chaotic condition."

Chairman Maloney, of the subcommittee, however, placed in the record a letter from Pelley, which said the railroads were moving promptly to have emergency rate reductions on petroleum shipments authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, as an incentive to rail movement of oil. Present rail rates are estimated to be six times those of tanker transportation.

Moreover, the Associated Press reported that preparations were being made to put thousands of rail tank cars into an East-West shuttle service for oil transportation, and in New York the Petroleum Institute asserted that a speed-up in the use of available transportation facilities had increased the gasoline stock in the Seaboard States by more than seven million gallons since August 23.

Pipeline Controversy

Still another controversy developed in the committee hearing over the proposed construction of an 1800-mile pipeline to connect Texas and Louisiana oil fields with the East. Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, argued that the project would require 750,000 tons of steel badly needed for defense purposes. On the other hand, Secretary of the Interior Ickes contended that the line would carry 250,000 barrels of petroleum a day to the East and end the shortage problem.

Other developments in the petroleum conservation program yesterday:

Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies stated that the public need not expect "anything beyond what we have now" in gasoline rationing, but added that "I cannot guarantee that there will not be a more severe curtailment."

Davies assured the Eastern States that they need not fear a curtailment of tax revenue from gas sales since the lowered 1941 gas sales were still up to September consumption for last year.

Jacoby, in his testimony before the Senate investigators, stated that retailers had been "entirely ignored" by the Petroleum Coordinator's office and termed this "dictatorship at its worst form." He testified that gasoline price standards, as fixed by Price Administrator Leon Henderson in 40 cities, "do not allow for a living profit" in some instances.

Senators Open Inquiry Today On Film 'Bias'

Senator Nye, in answer to Willkie's accusation that the investigation threatened freedom of speech, said: "I don't know what might be the outgrowth of this investigation. Certainly I am not wanting to visit censorship on the movies and radio, any more than the newspapers."

"I entertain the hope," he continued, "that the public can be offered such a demonstration of the unfairness of the moving picture profession as will put an end to the kind of productions which we oppose."

One of the productions opposed, Willkie said, was the box-office hit and best-seller, "Escape." Willkie maintained that "Escape" was a "dramatization and accurate presentation" of the workings of the Gestapo, the German concentration camp and "incredible cruelties of the Nazis."

Told that Senator Clark had said that Willkie would not be allowed to ask any questions during the investigation on the grounds that the committee had no counselor and therefore the industry's counselor, Willkie, could not take part in the proceedings, Willkie ran a hand through his habitually rumpled forelock and shook his head: "What an investigation!" he said.

Of the 1100 feature pictures produced since the outbreak of the war, Willkie claimed that some 50 have had any bearing on international affairs. "Some of these 50," he continued, "we are glad to admit portray Nazism for what it is—a cruel, lustful, ruthless and cynical force." To back up the industry's claim that its portrayal of Naziism was "accurate," Willkie asked in his answer to Clark that he be allowed to produce witnesses to testify to the facts of life under Nazism. Similarly Willkie offered to put witnesses on the stand to testify to "the magnificent courage of the English people under fire," as presented in Hollywood films.

C. D. Shackelford, Press Foreman, Dies in Hospital

Charles D. Shackelford, 69, foreman of the pressroom at the United States News and a past potentate of Almas Temple of the Shrine, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital.

Mr. Shackelford was a native of Washington and was educated in the public schools here. For many years he was a pressman on the old Washington Herald and later was employed by The Washington Post before joining the United States News.

Active in Masonic affairs for many years, he was a past master of Lebanon Lodge of the Masons and a past commander of the Knights Templar.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Shackelford, and a sister, Mrs. Lida Sandy, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Berlin Suffers Its Worst Raid

sergeant, describing how the moonlight threw the city into clear relief.

"Soon there were many fires, with one in particular blazing large and fiercely in the heart of the city as a further guide to our bombers."

Flames, by these accounts, were especially thick about a main Berlin railway station.

German antiaircraft fire was hot and unending, save when it abated at the approach of German night fighters.

[The Germans themselves made it clear beyond question that the raid wa sthe worst they have ever experienced. Berlin reported roofs were torn from buildings and streets were littered with debris.

[An official German announcement said at least 27 persons were killed and a "number" injured.

[Nazi newspapers took the extraordinary step of going far beyond German communiques to describe the destruction and to rage at the British attackers as "low down and contemptible."

Aside from these violent assaults on the Reich's capital, the shipyards at the Nazi naval base of Kiel and the docks at Boulogne in France were especially hard hit. German airdromes over a wide area also were assaulted.

So violent was the pounding of Boulogne that the sky over it was red all night and this morning fires in and about the city still were visible from the Kent coast.

Fires were lighted in all parts of Berlin, industrial suburbs as well as the central business district, returning British pilots said.

One immense blaze was said to have been sighted near the Alexander Platz, with a long smoke plume drifting miles eastward. A group of 50 smaller fires sent columns of smoke thousands of feet into the sky.

One pilot described how he watched bombs fall on factories, warehouses and railway yards, and another witnessed a combat between another bomber and a German fighter.

"We saw the twin-engined plane—one of ours—caught in the searchlights. Then we saw the fighter, its tracer bullets streaming into the cone of searchlights from the darkness outside.

"Then the fighter fell in flames. And the last we saw of the bomber it was going with one wing on fire.

"I hope the crew made it."

Bucharest Raided

Rome, Sept. 8 (INS).—The Rome radio tonight announced that Soviet bombers for the first time raided the Rumanian capital of Bucharest, damaging the huge textile works in Silva, on the outskirts of the city. Two Russian planes were reported shot down.

Nelson Blitzes Priority Backlog

said that new techniques were used to cut through normal procedure and that top members of the division staff worked until "early morning hours" several nights to clean up the accumulation.

One method used to cut through red tape, he explained, was to stamp applications with the priority rating which was determined on, rather than to fill out the usual cumbersome priority certificate.

Plan for Speed

To make sure that correspondence is handled within 48 hours, Nelson also prescribed colored routing slips, a different color for each day, so that, presumably, if a Monday's color slip is spotted on top of a desk on Wednesday the dilatory offender can be immediately brought to task.

Nelson said the special plan for granting priority ratings, plus the new routing system and correspondence technique which it is believed the Sears, Roebuck experts introduced, will bring all operations up to date this week and that future operations can be kept on schedule.

The new system will be guided by Nelson's statement that "when a businessman files an application or sends us an inquiry, he deserves a prompt answer."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Mitchell Praises A.F.G.E at Conclave

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 8.—Federal employe unions make mistakes when they dip into public questions that are of no concern to Government workers, the eighth convention of the American Federation of Government Employes was told here today at its opening session by Civil Service Commission President Harry B. Mitchell. The policy of an employe union, Mitchell said, should be to advance the interest of its members. The Civil Service president, who has carried a card in the Typographical Union for 40 years, paid his respects to the A. F. G. E. for its "most reasonable attitude" on employe questions and for its "very material help" in advancing civil service legislation.

Mitchell indicated he would seek a Government-wide policy on the rights of employe unions to distribute literature to Federal workers. The matter came up when Fred Fraser, president of the District department, explained that in some Federal agencies the distribution of union literature was permitted before official business hours. At the Navy Department, he explained, "Arbitrary administrators" had banned the circulation of union pamphlets on a public street in front of the Navy Building before official hours. Fraser didn't say so, but many agencies permit distribution of union literature on Government time. Fraser suggested an order from President Roosevelt would clear up conflicting departmental policies.

Mitchell warned the delegates that each employe whose job will be brought under civil service by the Ramspeck Act on January 1 will have to pass an exam before status can be given. Some employes, however, will be given noncompetitive mental tests. Others will be graded on their experience and education and they won't be given assembled tests. Assembled tests, he said, will be practicable and will relate directly to the duties of the employe.

The question of which employes shall be given written tests was answered in this manner by the Civil Service Chief:

"If the duties of the present position are such that a written examination would be required of it, then a written test will be given. But if the duties of the present position are such that a vacancy would be filled from a register established as a result of an unassembled examination, the exam will be unassembled." Which means that typists, stenographers, machine operators, clerks, and the like will be given written tests, while most professional and administrative personnel will be graded on their experience.

New Pension Bill Soon

Mitchell said it was his understanding that the new Ramspeck retirement bill would be favorably reported out of the House Civil Service Committee within a few weeks. He also revealed that the bill would bring under the Civil Service Retirement System all Federal employes, including members of Congress. But while Congressmen would have the privilege of being brought under the Retirement System, such action wouldn't be mandatory. Two years ago a retirement plan for members of Congress was killed in the House because the members feared it would be "political dynamite."

The drive for a pay raise for Federal employes is foremost in the minds of the delegates. The convention is certain to demand salary boosts to meet rising living costs, but the delegates are divided on the form action will take. Some delegates are promoting a flat 10 per cent pay increase. Others feel Congress would be more inclined to pay their employes bonuses as they did during World War 1. White collar workers at that time were given $240 annual bonuses. Still others want to dump the problem in the lap of the national officers.

Vice President James Campbell of Cincinnati has declined to run for the A. F. G. E.'s presidency against James Burns, but antiadministration delegates are trying to round up another candidate. Fraser will oppose Vice President G. Caroll Dimond for reelection. He will also seek to bring the 1943 convention to Washington.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen welcomed the delegates to St. Paul. He said he believed in the fundamental right of employes to join an organization of their choosing. The Governor explained he had replaced a "complete spoils system" with a complete merit system of choosing State employes since he became Governor and opined that civil service was here to stay.

Bomb Goes Off—Just Smoke

It sounded sinister yesterday when police were informed a bomb had exploded in the garage of Third Precinct Policeman Charles C. Johnson at 4510 River Road Northwest. It turned out to be a smoke-bomb—harmless but smoky. Johnson thought some of the neighborhood boys set it off—maybe accidentally, maybe not.

Jam—No Current

Traffic lights went out in downtown Washington yesterday morning just as thousands of workers were hurrying to get to their jobs on time. All available scout cars were summoned, and police pitched in at a dozen intersections to unsnarl the jams. There were no accidents. Just a few bad tempers. The control system technicians blamed it all on a short circuit.

Landover Man Killed In Traffic

Four Others Hurt In District Area; Two Boys Injured Riding Bicycles

One man was killed and four persons injured in traffic accidents yesterday in the Washington metropolitan area.

Carter L. Davis, 50, of Landover, Md., died in Casualty Hospital at noon yesterday from injuries received earlier in the day in an accident at Berwyn, Md. He was brought to the hospital by the Branchville, Md., Rescue Squad.

A coroner's jury, meanwhile, exonerated a taxicab driver in the traffic death Friday of Edwin A. Walker, 51, of 808 Nineteenth Street Northwest. Walker was struck last Tuesday near Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest. He died in Emergency Hospital of a skull fracture and hemorrhage. The verdict was accidental death.

Frederick Vassaw, 72, of 625 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, received severe injuries when struck by a street car near Connecticut Avenue and L Street Northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Van Duzer Wishard, 11, 3807 Ingomar Street Northwest, received a fracture of his left arm and knee abrasions when the opening door of a parked car threw his bicycle into the side of another automobile. The accident occurred in front of 4200 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

John A. Todd, 14, of 7 Fifth Street Southeast, suffered knee and elbow cuts and an eye injury when thrown from his bicycle in the 200 block of Nineteenth Street Southeast. Police said the boy was riding out from a driveway of the District jail when the front wheel of his bicycle was struck by a concrete-mixer truck. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital and admitted for treamtent.

Mrs Mildred L. Campbell, 40, of Richmond, Va., received a possible fracture of the left knee and other injuries, police said, when the cab in which she was riding collided with another automoble at North Capitol and E Streets. Mrs. Campbell was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Judge Lectures Public On Rise in Traffic Toll

Incensed over the rapid rise in the traffic fatality toll, Police Court Judge George Neilson yesterday took time out in Traffic Court to lecture court spectators and a radio audience on safety measures.

So far this month there have been five traffic deaths. There were three in February, five in March, seven in April, six in May, six in June, seven in July and five last month. And today is only the ninth of the month, Judge Nellson said.

Dramatically he interrupted handling of traffic cases while a clerk rapped for attention. He read from a table of statistics prepared by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer for the dates of January 1 to August 20, inclusive.

"Deaths on the streets and highways of the District are not at all necessary if we can only gain the obedience of the motorist and pedestrian to our safety regulations," he said.

He pointed out that during the period up to August 20 there had occurred 50 fatalities on the Washington streets. The count is now 57.

Woman Absolved In Spouse's Death

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Mrs. Ruth Foster in the death of her husband, Edward Charles Foster, who died Sunday in Casualty Hospital from a wound received from a blank cartridge.

Foster was injured in his home, 6713 Second Street Northwest, on July 20. He told police at that time that the blank cartridge was fired from a 38-caliber revolver held in the hands of his wife. Mrs. Foster said she had picked up the gun in fun and pointed it at her husband thinking the gun empty.

The verdict of the jury was accidental death.

A rabbit named Fingerprint was gray on Sunday. Yesterday he—or she—was white. In other words, it was a different rabbit.

Turning to the local page of The Post yesterday one finds a story describing how Jean Perry, 9-year-old daughter of Detective Walter Perry, obtained a rabbit she named Fingerprint from one of her father's friends, Detective Sergeant Curtis H. Trammell. Detective Trammell believed he had saved the rabbit from certain death when he rescued it from a dog.

Mrs. D. J. Saposs, of 1928 Belmont Road Northwest, noticed the story in The Post yesterday. She informed her daughter, Barbara, 12, who recognized the rabbit in Jean's hands as her own and went off to claim it.

She explained to Jean that the rabbit's rightful name was Carry, which rhymes with Jarry, the name of her red cocker spaniel dog. Furthermore she said that when Detective Trammell saw what he believed was a rabbit being hounded to its death, he merely saw Jarry chasing Carry home—an old custom of the two, apparently.

It was a happy ending for everyone because Detective Perry went out and bought Jean a new rabbit —"a bit wild, but he'll tame up." The new rabbit, incidentally, will retain the name Fingerprint.

Girl, 5, Takes Court Dispute Over Custody as a Big Show

To Elizabeth Mae Mason, 5 years old next week, it could have been a show there in District Court yesterday, with daddy and mamma having parts to say and grandma with the role of weeping.

She couldn't know the embittered talk and weeping was all over her and happily won't ever know what some of the talk implied. But after her daddy had said he wanted her; her mamma and uncle had said they wanted her; her grandma, her maternal one, had weepingly and in dignity told a few things, the court said her best interest was in keeping her with grandma.

This made three of them happy, apparently, because her daddy, Sergt. Edwin T. Mason, 38, a tall man, 703d Military Police Battalion, Arlington Cantonment, carried her in his arms in wake of grandma, Mrs. Bertha Cobb, 1102 K Street Southeast, from the courtroom. Mrs. Cobb still was saddened and said nothing, but the sergeant smiled broadly and Elizabeth Mae laughed.

Justice Jennings Bailey had discharged writs the father and mother entered seeking custody, but had permitted them "at reasonable times" to see the child. Mrs. Martha Louise Mason, 25, 139 Xenia Street Southeast, the mother, left with her brother, Horace Cline, with whom she lives and who said the child was welcome at his house. The sergeant had said he earned $90 a month and I'll give $80 of it to keep her somewhere in a school."

So while the family was having its say—the husband introducing a batch of letters alleging [illegible] by his wife; the mother saying she had a right to her friends; and the grandmother affirming that Elizabeth Mae had lived at her home all but four days of her life, the child crept from her grandma's lap and through the gates to sit in her daddy's lap. She put her arms around his neck and, when out of the room again, although she belonged in custody of grandma, her heart seemed pounding in time with daddy's.

Jenne Scheckel Is 'Miss Air Corps'

Miss Jenne Scheckel, of 6902 Glendale Road, Chevy Chase, Md., was chosen "Miss Air Corps of the District" last night.

An employe in the office of the chief of the Air Corps, civilian personnel division, she was picked from other members of the organization while the group enjoyed a moonlight sail down the Potomac aboard the boat Mount Vernon.

She was presented with a vanity case.

Citizens Ask Blinkers on Safety Zones

National Gateway Unit Says New Concrete Platforms Are Dangerous

Describing new concrete safety platforms on Bladensburg Road as "traffic hazards," members of the National Gateway Citizens Association last night demanded that blinking lights be erected on either end of the zones to keep motorists from speeding over them.

Careless drivers run right over the low platforms at present, irate members pointed out, and "anyone using the zones is just taking his life in his hands."

Lights for the safety zones were one item in a long request list approved by the association as it inaugurated its 1941-42 season in the Church of Christ. Important improvements wanted immediately include new streets and sidewalks, curbs and guttering, more fire-alarm boxes, and signal lights for the new traffic safety zones recently constructed on Bladensburg Road.

William P. Thomas, jr., a past president, was elected financial secretary. Alvin C. Minetree, new president, appointed the following committee chairmen: Mrs. Marie Cuthbertson Nold, lgeislation; N. M. Murray, use covenant; William P. Thomas, jr., streets and sidewalks; Dietrich Egbers, sewers and water; Everett Evans, parks and playgrounds; Walter S. Athberg, public utilities; Bennett G. Miller, firemen and police. L. M. Green and John Fairburn were chosen delegates to the Northeast Council of Citizens Associations; and Evans and Mrs. Nold will represent the group at the Federation of Citizens Associations.

West End

The West End Citizen's Association last night voted unanimously to send a message of condolance to President Roosevelt, over the death of his mother.

Meeting at the Third Precinct Police Station, the group was addressed by A. P. Bell, of the U. S. Public Health Service, who spoke on methods of rat control. Following his talk, the association voted to cooperate with the West End Business Men's Association in its rat control campaign.

Kenilworth

The Kenilworth Citizens Association went on record as opposing removal of the Police Boys' Club from the Kenilworth Recreation Center at a mass meeting last night. Mrs. Mabel M. Hubbel, secretary of the association, said she will turn the findings of the association over to a committee for further study.

The board of directors of the club, it was said, seeks to close the club because of purported lack of attendance.

Southeast Businessmen

The Southeast Businessmen's Association last night protested the recent elimination of five trolley stops on Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast by the Capital Transit Co., in the power-conservation program.

The meeting, held at the Donohoe real estate offices, also went on record as favoring a proposed South Capitol Street bridge, the construction of new roads in Fort Dupont Park, the construction of a new Hine Junior High School, and the immediate filling of vacancies in the District Public Utilities Commission.

Salvation Army Commanders

Called by Navy, Capt. Truscott Takes Leave From D. C. Police

Capt. Floyd Truscott, commander of the Tenth Police Precinct and an officer in the Naval Reserves, will leave September 18 for active duty as a lieutenant in the Navy.

The commissioners yesterday granted Truscott a two-year leave of absence, but gave no indication as to his successor.

At the same time, the commissioners designated Inspector Milton D. Smith, former commander of the Traffic Division as police property officer. Only recently named an inspector, Smith replaces Inspector William G. Scott, who retired.

In another appointment, Inspector Harvey Callahan, police executive officer, was named a member of the District Regulations Committee to succeed retired Inspector L. I. H. Edwards.

Three retirements also were approved by the Commissioners. They were Lieut. Eugene L. Eby, 61; Sergt. Clinton C. Humphries, 47, and Private Leslie I. Mason, 37. Humphries and Mason were retired because of disability incurred in line of duty.

Meanwhile, Capt. John L. Fowler yesterday took over official command of the police training school as a means of bringing more efficiency and better trained police to the Metropolitan Police Department. He will work under the direct supervision of Inspector Callahan, the department's sole graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Police Academy.

Traveler Lists 57 Articles— Just in Case—They Are Stolen

Clinton A. Berry, a Pasadena, Calif., citrus grower, is not one to take chances. So before he and Mrs. Berry left on an 8000-mile motor tour of the United States and Canada they listed every item they were packing with them . . . just for insurance sake.

There were 57 items, covering belongings from Mr. Berry's sport shoes to his wife's sorority pin and pink lace underwear.

Across country went the Berrys. The list was never used. Until yesterday.

In Washington the Berrys were staying at 1923 Park Road Northwest. Yesterday morning Berry stepped into his car parked outside to find it ransacked. Not a stitch of the 57 articles remained.

Berry got out his list, and showed it to police.

Then he wired his insurance company in Pasadena, informing them he had the stolen goods itemized and loss estimated.

Last night he had his reply—Sorry. Policy covers only car. No insurance on the goods.

Birth Rises Pose Problem For Schools

Number Born Here Indicates Figure Entering in 1946 Will Be Almost Doubled

An increased birth rate in the District, expected almost to double the number of white children entering first grade in the public school system in 1946 as compared with last year, was revealed in a study completed yesterday by Boice L. Bristor, statistician of the Board of Education.

A 2.2 percentage of Washington's white population and 2.4 percentage of the Negro population represented by births makes the Nation's Capital virtually the only city of its size in the country with increasing birth rates and at the same time means more problems for a school system already burdened by a defense population index.

Last year 4713 children entered first grade in the District, Bristor's report pointed out. Six years before—1934—there were 6592 children born here. Figuring on the same percentage basis, the 10,573 children born in Washington last year are expected to put the first-grade rolls in 1946 at 8279.

Population Increases

A total of 3,875 Negro children were enrolled in the first grade last year. By the same method of calculation as in the white division, the report announced an expected first-grade enrollment of Negroes in 1946 totaling 5,525.

Between 1930 and 1940 the District's white population increased 33.8 per cent and Negro increased 42.5 per cent. The percentage increase in births was 65.4 white and 51.6 Negro.

School officials stated that defense workers with families are settling chiefly in areas of the Southeast and Northeast. Slighter increases also have been marked in the Soldiers' Home area and in the section between Connecticut and Wisconsin Avenues Northwest.

Jameson, Bauer, Amory, Belanger Share Honors in Brookline Tourney

By the Associated Press

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 8.—San Antonio's attractive Betty Jameson launched her campaign for her third consecutive Women's National Golf championship by posting a 76 that gave her a quarter-share of the medalist honors in today's qualifying play at the Country Club.

Three serious Eastern contenders, Grace Amory, of Locust Valley, N. Y.; Jean Bauer, the Rhode Island titlist, and Alice Belanger, of Beverly, Mass., kept pace with the defending champion by matching her three-over-par round, thereby providing the tourney with its second four-way tie in its 47-year history.

One of the many capable Californian entries in the starting field of 116, Barbara Ransom, of Stockton, qualified for tomorrow's opening match play a stroke behind the deadlocked leaders.

Three more of Miss Jameson's threatening rivals were bunched with 78s—Mrs. James Ferrie, of Long Beach, Calif., one of last year's semifinalists; Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Greensboro, N. C., the 1937 victor, and Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Tex.

The only other to break 80, which she did by a stroke, was Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby.

Birdies A-Plenty

Miss Jameson got off to an amazing start, for she birdied three of the first four holes by sinking easy putts and reached the turn in 35, two under women's par for the 6090-yard layout. Coming back, however, she encountered trouble almost everywhere and she wound up getting trapped on each of the last three holes.

Miss Amory and Miss Belanger were steady throughout, but Miss Bauer tossed away a wide open chance to gain the medal outright, for the second time in six years, when she flubbed a 2-root putt while going for a birdie deuce on the 140-yard fourteenth hole.

The experienced Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., indicated that she would have much to say in this championship quest when she qualifies with an 80, along with Dorothy Germain, of Manoa, Pa.; Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Frederick Davis, of West Barrington, R. I.

Mrs. Vare Scores

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, who has triumphed six times before, survived with an 82 but a three-time winner, Margaret Curtis, of Manchester, who has been competing in this event on and off since 1897, carded a 94, which was four strokes over the deadline.

Long-hitting Clara Callender, of Pasadena, Calif., regarded by Miss Jameson as the most formidable obstacle in her path, gained a first-round berth with an 85, but last year's runner-up, Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., was among the casualties with a 90. She was not expected to make much progress, for a recent operation on her left hand has hampered her greatly.

Six owners of 89 cards had to play for the sixty-fourth match play berth, which was won by Marjorie Harrison, of Troy, N. Y., after going four extra holes with Mrs. John Pennington, of Williamsville, N. Y.

Mrs. Myron Davy, representing the District of Columbia, posted 48, 41—89.

Brother Rat:

WES FERRELL

Beats His Brother George's Team in Fast Class D Finish

By the Associated Press

Leaksville, N. C., Sept. 8.—Introducing Wes Ferrell, the youngest and most loquacious of the baseballing Ferrells in a brand-new role—Brother Rat.

Wes, who was released from the Boston Braves' pitching staff last May, has just succeeded in piloting the Leaksville entry in the Class D Bi-State League from the loop's basement to a pennant.

He accomplished this in the accepted Hollywood fashion, with a Whirlaway sprint and a photo finish which had the fans standing on the seats in the more advanced stages of hysteria.

And where does the Brother Rat stuff come in? Well, the guy from whom Wes filched the pennant was one of his older brothers, George Ferrell.

Once Led League

George manages the Martinsville, Va., Bi-State Club, and his team was leading the league when Wes kissed the Braves goodbye and signed up as Leaksville's manager.

Wes went into the Leaksville lineup as an outfielder, and stubbornly refused to behave like a broken down pitcher. At the plate, he smacked almost everything they served up to him; in the outfield he covered as much ground as Dawn Patroller.

Along came August 1, and George's club was still out in front with 80 games won and 37 lost. Wes' team had sneaked up to third, with 45 wins and 40 losses.

Then came that Whirlaway drive. Leaksville won 20 of its last 22 games. It copped the pennant in the final game of the regular season, by handing George's club a 12-5 beating.

The record shows that Wes was the big noise in that drive. For instance, he smacked homers in five consecutive games the week of August 10, and his batting average for the season was .340.

Wes and George are just a couple of hard-boiled managers when they meet on the ball field, but they're real buddies once they put away their uniforms and spiked shoes.

George says Wes is a right guy; Wes says that goes double for George.

There are five of the baseballing Ferrells of Guilford County, N. C. Only the two youngest, Wes, 33, and Rick, about 35, have made the big leagues. But all the Ferrells are natural ball players.

Rick, you remember, sold himself for $25,000 a few years ago, after he had been declared a free agent. He's catching for the St. Louis Browns now.

Wes still thinks he can pitch big league ball and is itching to return to the main tent. But his real ambition is to manage a big league team.

Boxers in Service Get Special Leave

Athletes who have enrolled in the United States Naval Reserve for duty as boxing instructors are now permitted to engage in professional boxing matches, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Officials said that men who are obligated to participate in professional matches should not be granted leave exceeding ten days, and should in no case conflict with the regular required duties of such men.

Boxing instructors also will be required to inform their commanding officers prior to contracting any such engagements outside the naval service.

Slugger White Wins Unpopular Decision

Baltimore, Sept. 8 (AP).—Slugger White, 137½, Baltimore, was awarded an unpopular split decision tonight in a slashing 12-round bout with Mike Evans, of Philadelphia.

Evans, who also weight 137½, defeated White in a 10-round match here recently.

Paralysis Sets Back Penna. Grid Openers

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—An outbreak of infantile paralysis, affecting two-thirds of Pennsylvania, has forced cancellation of early season football games for at least 20 colleges in the State and approximately 200 high school contests.

So far this year the disease has taken 25 lives in Pennsylvania. More than 300 cases have been reported, prompting the State Health Department to order schools and colleges in 11 eastern and central Pennsylvania counties to defer their openings until September 22 or later.

Major colleges affected by the cancellations include Lehigh University and Gettysburg, Albright, Dickinson, Franklin and Marshall and LaSalle Colleges. In addition, the State's 14 teachers colleges were ordered to discontinue practice until September 22 and most of them have canceled one or more contests.

None of the State's big three—Pennsylvania, Penn State and Pittsburgh—is affected, although beginning of classes at Penn State has been deferred one week until next Monday. The Nittany Lions' football squad had already reported for pre-season practice before the postponement, however, and continued its workouts.

Games already cancelled include: September 19—Mansfield Teachers at Albright; September 20—Blue Ridge (Md.) at West Chester Teachers; September 27, Dickinson at Lehigh; La Salle at West Chester Teachers; Providence at Franklin and Marshall; Bloomsburg at Millersville; October 4, Wooster at Gettysburg; Upsala at Franklin and Marshall. In addition, the Gettysburg-Muhlenberg contest at Gettysburg, annually an outstanding small college attraction, has been postponed from October 11 until Thanksgiving Day.

N.B.A. Opens Big Drive Against Fight 'Monopoly'

By International News Service

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 8.—The National Boxing Association, never very friendly toward Promoter Mike Jacobs, tonight issued what amounted to a formal declaration of war on Jacobs' alleged monopoly of the big-time boxing bouts.

Association President Joe Triner, of Illinois, called for open warfare against the "Jacobs monopoly" and then appointed a committee, headed by Abe Greene, of New Jersey, to map plans for the campaign.

The committee is scheduled to report at tomorrow's session of the N. B. A.'s twenty-third annual convention.

Earlier, Triner announced that California had joined the N. B. A., bringing the association's membership to 33 State commissions, besides 5 municipal or county groups and 7 foreign countries.

Veteran L. A. Times Sports Writer Dies

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (AP).—Bob Ray, 37, for 15 years baseball writer and sports columnist for the Los Angeles Times, died tonight. He had been ill since last February.

Ray was born in Red Bluff, Calif., and christened Robert Eugene. He is survived by his wife and two sons, aged 10 and 9.

Dodgers Off For Last Western Invasion

Weekend Series With Cards Most Crucial on 10-Game Schedule

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 8.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, riding with equal comfort the cushions of a special train and the "cushion" of a three-game National League lead, left late this afternoon for Chicago, first call on their final ten-game Western trip.

But to the players and the Flatbush faithful who gave them a noisy sendoff at the station, it really is a three-game trip—those three games with the Cardinals at St. Louis Thursday, Friday and Saturday which, any way you figure it, should decide this seesaw pennant race with all but mathematical finality.

The burden of proof, at the moment, rests mainly with the Cardinals. For Brooklyn has played two more games than the Redbirds, and by winning an even dozen of its last 19 contests (seven of which are with the last-place Phillies) would force the Cards to take 17 of their 21 to finish the season one game in front.

Final Standing

The final standings, in that case, would be 101 victories and 53 defeats for St. Louis, to 100 and 54 for Brooklyn.

Besides the bulge they get from those seven games with the Phils, who have managed to win only 2 out of 15 previous games from Brooklyn, respective performances of the last ten days also appear to give the Dodgers an edge.

On September 1 they were half a game back of the Cards, only to climb to the top by the biggest margin either club has had since July 30 through winning seven of their last eight games. On the other hand the Cards, who had earned their slim margin with a seven-game winning streak, proceeded to go into a tailspin that cost them four games out of their last five.

Pitchers Ready

Both clubs will have their pitching aces ready to go. The natural rotation of assignments will bring 20-game winner Kirby Higbe and 19-game winner Whit Wyatt to the firing line for Brooklyn. St. Louis will be able to counter with its star southpaws, Ernie White and Rookie Howard Pollett. For the remaining game the Cards will have no-hit Lonnie Warneke, who is slated to face the Phillies tomorrow but should be ready to go again on Saturday.

If Brooklyn uses stout Freddy Fitzsimmons and either Luke Hamlin or Freshman Ed Albosta in Chicago, Manager Leo Durocher still would have Curt Davis available for a starting call in St. Louis.

Bosox Stock Up On Shortstops

Boston, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox tonight announced the purchase of two outstanding minor league shortstops—Johnny Pesky, of Louisville, in the American Association, and Eddie Pellagrini, of San Diego, in the Pacific Coast League.

Both 22 years old, Pesky, a left-handed hitter, batted .321 this year, and Pellagrini's current average is .278.

Pesky, who lives in Portland, Oreg., led the American Association in hits, with 185, in his second year of professional baseball. Pellagrini, a native of Boston, has played professional ball four years.

Al Houghton And Baggett Win Pro-Am With a 65

Bogart and Coffey Low Scorers; Play Is Concluded With Aid of Match Light

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Never a dull moment in the pro golf tournaments in this section. After last week's delayed triple tie in the Washington Open the boys turned out in record numbers for a pro-amateur yesterday at Columbia Country Club which ended with the last half-dozen foursomes using matches and handkerchiefs to mark the cup in the inky darkness.

The winners were all early finishers, however. Al Houghton, the Beaver Dam pro and Jess Baggett, his winning partner in previous affairs this year, put together a best ball 65 to top the record field by a stroke. Houghton had a 72 and Baggett helped on four holes, plus using all three of his handicap strokes.

Ralph Bogart Low Scorer

Ralph Bogart, who begins defense of his District amateur title today, posted the lowest round of pros and amateurs, a one-under-par 34, 35—69, which easily won the amateur sweepstakes.

That little man from Hagerstown, But Coffey, was low scorer among the pros again, leading this time with an even par, 70. He was out in 37, two over par, but came back with seven pars and a pair of birdies for a 33.

The field totaled 26 professionals, including Pros Arthur Thorn and Harlan Will, of Lancaster, Pa., and Harry Haverstick, the quarter-finalist in the National Amateur Championship, plus 74 amateurs.

They all seemed to arrive at the same time and it was evident when they were still leaving the tee at 3 p. m. that the late starters would not finish before dark.

Al Jamison and George Vass, jr., played the last two holes in the dark and finished 4-3 when a birdie and par would have netted a second place tie. Vass took eight on the eighteenth, losing his second shot, when a bogey five would have given him low net prize among the amateurs, several dozen golf balls.

Spencer Sinks 30-Footer

Cliff Spencer, playing over his favorite course, had his partners mark the cup with a handkerchief and hold matches lighted on the eighteenth green, and he proceeded to drop a 30-footer for a 73. Four putts on the first green ruined his chances. Lew Worsham set fire to his score card and stuck it in, the

Montgomery's RallyEarnsNod Over Kaplan

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—After taking a savage beating during the first three rounds, Bob Montgomery cut loose with some of his own fireworks in the closing rounds tonight to gain a 10-round decision over Boston's Mike Kaplan before 12,000 at Shibe Park. The Philadelphia Negro weighed 136 pounds to Kaplan's 143½.

Kaplan battered Montgomery throughout the first five rounds and was ahead on points starting the sixth. Then, with a suddenness that amazed ringsiders, Montgomery knocked Kaplan down twice for no count and followed through with a series of punches that had Kaplan virtually out on his feet.

It was the same story in the eighth and ninth rounds, but somehow Kaplan managed to last the distance, losing an unanimous decision.

Lips Bleeding

The Boston welter drew blood from Montgomery's lips in the opening rounds, but before the end Kaplan absorbed a terrific beating.

Montgomery hit Kaplan virtually at will in the eighth and ninth rounds, bringing blood to Kaplan's lips and turning his face a brick red, but the Boston veteran kept retreating just enough to avoid the full power of Montgomery's punches. In the last round Montgomery, victory assured, turned cautious and stayed at long range.

Montgomery, a 6-to-5 favorite before ring time, won seven rounds in Judge Eddie Loughran's opinion, with Kaplan 2 and 1 even. Judge Harry Lasky ruled it 5 for Montgomery, 3 for Kaplan with 2 even while Referee Matt Adgie gave Montgomery 6 rounds and Kaplan 4.

In a ten-round semi-windup, put on after the main go, Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, former bantamweight champion, won a decision over Tommy Forte, of Philadelphia. Jeffra weighed 124½ pounds; Forte, 118¾.

Congressional Club to Revive Invitation Golf

In a surprise announcement last night Congressional Country Club officials announced the Invitation Tournament for the President's Cup would be renewed after a lapse of eight years October 1-2-3, Wednesday through Friday.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Ray Alvis, back in business with a two-tone job involving Joey Archibald and Colored Boy Chalkey Wright in the Griffith Stadium ring on Thursday night, was considering himself jinxed yesterday, but not for long.

POVICH

"That man in the White House," moaned Promoter Alvis. It's not bad enough that I have to put this fight in after the Eddie Blunt-Bill Poland mess almost ruins boxing here, but President Roosevelt stabs me in the back. He changes his radio speech from Monday to my fight night and murders my gate.

Somebody suggested that Alvis double cross the Nation's Chief Executive and make Mr. Roosevelt's hadio speech a part of his own show through the Griffith Stadium loud speakers.

A gleam invaded Alvis' eye, as an idea spawned. "I won't take this thing lying down, men," he said. "Know what I'm going to do? I'll interrupt the preliminaries to put the President's speech on the air. Any time our great President has anything to say of importance to the Nation, I'll help him say it. Where are my press agents? Tell 'em we're gonna air the President's speech."

Boxing Commission's Fight

Otherwise, Alvis is hoping the President's speech won't be the only thing in Griffith Stadium aside from himself and the fighters Thursday night. If we don't get $10,000 worth of customers in there, I'm going to feel hurt," Alvis was saying. "This is the fight the boxing commission wanted, and we'll see how much they know about what the public wants."

According to Alvis, the Commission was chiding local promoters for failing to put in shows with gate-appeal last spring, and suggested that some bright promoter might sign Archibald and Wright. "They thought they were asking the impossible," said Alvis, "but I've gone out and gotten the match. The money's on the line, the fight is in, and we'll see what happens."

His immediate ambition, Alvis says, is to stand at the Griffith Stadium exits after the Thursday night show and hold his chin high before the outgoing customers. "I want to show-boat around a little bit after putting on a good show. I don't want to see the kind of a fight that will make me duck under the stands and hide after it's all over. I've got to make my living in this town for a long while and I want to get along with everybody."

In the eyes of the Turner Arena hangers on who have been watching Archibald and Wright in their daily workouts for most of the week, Champion Archibald is being regarded as a man doomed to lose his title to the string-bean Negro featherweight. Odds are expected to go to 2 to 1 against the champion by ring time. Archibald, though, is acting like anything except a man who expects to lose his title.

Cockey as ever, he grins throughout his workouts, and swaggers and struts as if he were the 2 to 1 favorite. "Just another fight," says Archibald. "Every time I fight in Washington, somebody is supposed to lick me, and when it's over I walk out of there the winner. Wright's tough, but he's just another tough guy. I'm pretty tough myself."

Archibald Difficult to Hate

The evidence is, though, that Archibald is on edge for this one. When his trainers told him he had a half minute left of a training round, he walked out of the ring, saying "so what? So I quit a half minute sooner. "When the photographers asked him to move closer to the corner of the ring for a posed shot, he said, "Listen you guys, I've had pictures taken before. This angle's okay." When before a radio broadcast, he was being instructed how to stand before the mike, he rebelled. I'm an old hand at this. I've heard all that stuff before."

For all his winning habits in Washington, Archibald has been an unpopular guy here, but it is sort of hard to hate him. He has won screwey decisions, he has been knocked to the floor, he has been outboxed and outsmarted, but he has never put up a dull fight. "Naw, he never hurt me," Archibald has said in the dressing room after being belted for ten rounds. "Ask him how he feels."

In training, Wright has everything that Archibald doesn't seem to own—height, reach, quickness on his feet, a polished jab and ring generalship. He's a fancy stepper, but Archibald has beaten that kind before. They have to fight a rough fight when they're in there with Archibald. Harry Jeffra, the master boxer, ended up fighting the only kind of fighter that Archibald can win—a bruising one—the last time they met. Somehow the little Providence lad sets the style of his fights, and that's his big idea against Wright.

"I'm not going to be a dope and try to outbox this fellow," Archibald was saying. "I've got that title, and if he wants it he'll have to fight my way. We'll see how smart he is when the going gets rough. These boxers don't worry me. They usually end up fighting my way and when they do it's my own fault if I lose."

An Expensive Good Will Trip

Dear Boss:

Well, Boss, I just returned from a Good Will trip to Latin America. I didn't exactly want to go but then it is part of my education. Sometime when I'm sitting around the lobby of Jimmie Lake's Hotel and one of the dowagers starts talking of visiting France, Germany and Belgium she finally turns to me with her eyebrows arched and asks, "And you Mr. Haight, have you ever been abroad?"

HAIGHT

Now I can look her straight in the eye and take on my best bored expression and yawn "Oh, yes." Tell the truth I didn't get any farther into Mexico than the main street of Tia Juana, but it does give one a feeling of being worldly to be able to say that he has been through customs although in reality I didn't have to pay duty on my two purchases—a handmade belt and a pack of Mexican cigarettes.

But speaking of the belt there might be some complications, although I don't want you to think that I have caused any international incident. The belt is one of rancher model. It is one of those three section affairs with a big nickel right at each joint. It is hand-carved in the front and the assistant manager at the hotel here says it is definitely the kind worn by men who own big "ranchos," as they call the farms out here.

Now listen, Boss, I have the belt and I want to wear it. However, I do not want to go around with my stomach a living lie. Here's what I'm driving at. If I'm going to wear it, I must have at least a small ranch and say 200 head of cattle to go with it. The cattle don't have to be thoroughbreds. I can pick up the scrawny kind that will look good from say a distance of a half mile. I talked to an agent of Rancho Star X today and he said the whole layout could be handled for $8,000 and that he would throw in a ten-gallon hat.

Tell the truth, Boss, I didn't go to Mexico to buy that belt, honest. I went over there to spread some good will and what if I did spread more good cheer than good will? You can't hold that against me.

When you get my next expense

Leahy Optimistic As Notre Dame Gridders Arrive

By The Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 8.—Coach Frank Leahy, of Notre Dame, getting ready to issue uniforms and other equipment tomorrow to his first Irish football squad, departed from type tonight in a burst of optimism.

"They look fine," said Leahy. "The boys have been working hard this summer. They appear to be in great physical condition, and full of spirit."

Nats Meet Chisox in Final Night Game; Ortiz Makes Debut

Harris Enthused at Promise of Rookies; Anderson to Face Sox Under Lights

Home with a three-game winning streak and new ideas about finishing out of the cellar, the Nats tonight will exhibit themselves in Griffith Stadium's final night game of the season, with the Chicago White Sox as the party of the second part.

On display here for the first time in a Washington uniform will be Roberto Ortiz, giant Cuban outfielder from Charlotte, who now represents one of the chief reasons why the Nats may move out of eighth place. Ortiz comes back from Philadelphia after his first four games as a member of the Nats with a .467 batting average.

The big Cuban banged out seven hits in 15 times at bat in two doubleheaders at Shibe Park and included in these efforts was a home run that drew gasps from his Washington teammates.

Ortiz Shows Power

"The papers said Ortiz hit that homer into the leftfield seats, but it was more toward centerfield," said Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth. "It was a line drive, too. I thought for a moment that the shortstop was going to catch the ball. It was that low when it went over the infield. But it climbed all the way up into the seats. That big Cuban can cow-tail a pitch."

The Nats bosses have long visualized Ortiz as the one rookie in their farm system who might provide the club with the long-south climax hitter, and their enthusiasm is running high.

"He's going to get every chance to make good," said Manager Bucky Harris. "He's in our outfield to stay for the rest of the season. I want him to see some more big league pitching. He can go get a ball in the outfield, but we'll have to teach him something about picking up ground balls. He's pretty horrible in that respect, but if he can break up a few ball games for us, I'll forgive him."

Nats Enthused Over Wynn

The Nats' bosses are enthused, too, and logically enough, over the pitching promise held out by Rookie Early Wynn who held the A's to six hits in winning his debut game the other day. Wynn walked only two batters, and showed an adequate fast ball.

Coach Earl Mack, of the Athletics, labeled as "the finest rookie pitcher we've seen this season," according to Clyde Milan, who was acting manager of the Nats in the Sunday double-header at Shibe Park.

It was revealed at Griffith Stadium yesterday that Manager Bucky Harris left the team in Milan's charge on Sunday in order to make a scouting trip to Columbus, Ohio, to appraise an outfielder and infielder who had come to the notice of the Nats.

"I liked the outfielder I saw," said Harris, refusing to divulge his name, "but I don't know yet if he's for sale. The Columbus team is the property of the Cardinals and we'll have to talk business with them first."

Anderson vs. Smith

The Washington-Chicago series will be of importance to both clubs what with the Nats only a half game out of seventh place and the White Sox striving to regain second place from the Red Sox who are a half game in front. The difference between second and third-place money would mean approximately $400 to each Chicago player.

For tonight's affair, Manager Harris is expected to start his big right-hander, Arnold Anderson, on the mound. Ed Smith, who has beaten the Nats four times this year, will try it again for Chicago. All seats are reserved with no increase in prices. Tickets will be on sale at the Stadium throughout the day.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

What Interests You, Buddy?

BASEBALL?—That National League race is going to have everybody nuts before it's over. Only a few days ago the Cards were riding high on a seven-game winning streak, and it was with some justification that Sam Breadon conceded himself the pennant, because he had Howard Pollet, Ernie White and No-Hit Lon Warneke rarin' to go, and Enos Slaughter and Terry Moore about to return. Then the club began to founder, and a 4 percentage point lead over the Dodgers quickly melted into a serious three-game deficit.

CONSIDINE

We've just about given up trying to dope this one. But an angle seems to be that the Cincinnati Reds are going to fix the identity of their successors. Johnny Vander Meer's two-hitter against the Cards was a real dirk in the back, psychologically. The Cards are tough, physically, but the presence of so many young men on the team makes the club much more impressionable than the Dodgers. Vander Meer hurt them, we suspect, by making them doubt themselves just at a time when they looked invincible, and were.

The Dodgers are older, wiser, cagier than the Cards. They are less likely to crack up. At least up to press time it appears that way. It has become impossible to make a positive assertion about either the Cards or Dodgers without having your unrecallable words rear up and kick you in the mush.

However, we're not so discouraged that we'll refrain from predicting that it will be Curt Davis, who was tossed into the Medwick deal like a busted lamp shade, who will represent the Dodger's edge over the Cards and put an unhealable dent in the David Harum reputation of Branch Rickey.

P. S.—All these opinions, like refrigerators West of the Rockies, are subject to change without notice.

TENNIS?—Losing to Bobby Riggs in the finals of the United States championship at Forest Hills Sunday cost Frankie Kovacs about $50,000. Kovacs can change his mind quicker than he can change his grip on a racquet, but the consensus seems to be that if he had won he would have turned the rest of the way pro. Pro tennis, in desperate need of a new face, would have welcomed Kovacs, for he is the only amateur of any renown who has color. He was almost solely responsible for the near capacity crowds on the last two days of the tournament.

Fifty grand is not a wild estimate of the sum the refreshing-looking Kovacs could have made between next January and May, if he had won the title. Once free of the restraining hand of the U. S. L. T. A., which made him behave this summer, he would have become again a happy-go-lucky, racquet-biting, ball-kicking maverick who would have rescusitated pro tennis.

The pro game must have a new face in order to operate this winter. But it will lie dormant for a year rather than sign up a beaten amateur and put him against Don Budge or Fred Perry.

Riggs probably never will turn pro. He can make more money as an amateur.

BOXING?—Few fighters ever find a proper niche when their fighting days are done. More often than not they blow their ring earnings in some business wholly foreign to them. But don't put Former Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin in this category. The gay gob has come up with a job that fits him like a coat of tan. He is doing a Washington sports broadcast, sponsored by a wine company. The program's theme song is a hot conga, after which the announcer brays, "Here comes Conga Ken!!" Ken will branch out soon to broadcasts from a juke box night joint, but promises to be in the shape of his career when he tackles Billy Soose for the New York end of the middleweight title.

Ken's stable-mate, Bos'n's Mate Georgie Abrams, who has won permanent possession of Billy Soose by beating him three times, takes on the other middleweight champion of the world, Tony Zale, at New York's Garden Friday night in an overweight match. Zale has a wicked punch, especially around the body, but by midnight Friday Abrams should have joined that curious band of fighters who have whaled tar out of champions without ever winning a title.

A victory for Abrams will assure him of a crack at Zale's title in Chicago later. It is well within the realm of possibility that in a few months, Chris Dundee, manager of Conga Ken and Abrams, will own both middleweight champions of the world and will thus be forced, amid the shedding of buckets of crocodile teams, to "sell" one of them to a friend so they can fight each other for the undisputed (well, almost) middleweight championship of the world.

BEAR-BAITING?—Well, I'm not interested either. So let's blow.

Chicubs Purchase Toronto Hurler

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs announced the purchase today of Walter Lanfranconi, a right-handed pitcher, from Toronto of the International League.

Lanfranconi won eight decisions and lost 15 with Toronto. He will report tomorrow.

Wake Forest Opens Against Army Eleven

Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—Wake Forest will open its football season with a game against Camp Davis here the night of September 20.

Sammy Angott Beats Galiano

Washington, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP).—Making his first professional fight in his home town tonight, Sammy Angott, N. B. A. lightweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Pete Galiano, of Baltimore, in the sixth of their scheduled ten-round bout. Angott weighed 135 to 137 for Galiano. The contest drew 1,600 fans to the ball park.

G.W.'s Opening Football Drill Draws 35 Men

Though a week behind most other local colleges, George Washington University's first football drills of the season yesterday were as spirited as Coach Bill Reinhart could ask, with most of the Colonial squad of 35 in better-than-average shape.

Three stalwarts upon whom Reinhart has depended were absent as the squad went through workouts at 10 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. at the Polo Field. Sophomores Ted Hapanwicz, center, and Bill Brodbeck, fullback, along with Ed Robbins, a giant tackle, missed the first sessions but are expected to show up soon.

During the morning session players devoted their time to calisthenics, light passing and punting. The afternoon practice was taken up with light conditioning exercises and a few blocking drills. Reinhart will send his squad through two drills a day until school starts September 22 in order to get the team in shape for the opener with St. Mary's, September 27.

Three new players have been added to the squad since the roster was announced. They are Matt Zunic, Colonial basketball star; John Pollock, a halfback, and Myron Vleck, a tackle.

Zunic, trying to win an end position, has been a basketball star for two years, but this marks his first appearance in a football uniform. Using his basketball knowledge to advantage, he proved a good pass-receiver in the first practice. Since the draft has weakened the G. W. flanks, the coaches have high hopes for Zunic's possibilities at end.

Pollock, 175-pound triple-threat, is a graduate of Belmont Abbey Junior College, and will be a junior at George Washington. Vleck, a 210-pound lineman, is also a junior college graduate from Monmouth College, Oregon. He will see service at either guard or tackle.

Mike Monchlovich, regular center for two years, may be shifted to either a backfield blocking post or to end. Bill Bess, a soph center whom Reinhart has converted into an end, went through the first practice punting and passing, indicating that he may have backfield possibilities.

The squad will continue with light workouts until the end of this week when they will start scrimmaging. In the absence of Line Coach Gene Shields who will not arrive from Oregon until September 15, Ray Hanken has taken charge of the linesmen.

American University's promising squad staged its first contact work yesterday, most of the time being spent on timing and blocking.

Diehl Named Coach At Michigan State

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 8 (AP).—Athletic Director Ralph H. Young today announced appointment of David D. Diehl, 22, of Dansville, Mich., as Michigan State College end coach. Diehl replaces Tom King, who resigned earlier this year.

D. C. Amateur Golfers Open Tourney Today

With stories as to the depth of the rough at Kenwood ranging from six inches to three feet, the first-day qualifiers in the District Amateur Championship today at Kenwood may find the going tougher than expected.

Nearly half of the starting field of 85 will play their medal tests today, with the others taking a crack at the qualifying round tomorrow. Eddie Ault and R. W. Fleming were among the additional entries received yesterday. Match play will be Thursday and Friday.

Wiffy Cox yesterday sanctioned a match at Congressional in about three weeks between the top 15 pros and the best 15 amateurs of Washington and Baltimore. It will be held on a Sunday.

Leo Kernan, Green Spring Valley pro, announced the Baltimore Match Play Open this year would be thrown open to all. Dates are September 23-24-25-26. A pro-amateur on September 22 will precede the open.

Rockville Ten Upsets FBI, 9 to 2

The Rockville All-Stars outclassed Federal Bureau of Investigation in the opener of the Metropolitan Invitational Softball Tournament at Washington Softball Stadium last night, 9 to 2.

Young Bob Johnson, son of the Big Train, lived up to advance notices as a slugger by whaling the first pitch from Kenny Glennon far over the scoreboard for a home run. Later in the game he added a line-drive single.

Blondie Thompson held the G-Men to four bingles. Bill Anna, who relieved Glennon, stopped the Rockville scoring.

In the second game Greenbelt defeated Standard Linen, 4-1, behind two-hit pitching by "Subway" Barker. Tonight's program calls for a meeting of Kavakos and Manhattan Auto at 8 p. m. and Carr Brothers and Silver Spring All-Stars at 9:15.

Mount St. Mary's Squad of 35 Faces an 'Ideal' Schedule

Coach Draper Hopes to Beat Most of Eight Evenly-Matched Foes

By a Staff Correspondent

Emmitsburg, Md., Sept. 8.—Mount St. Mary's College which literally overlooks the State of Maryland from a mountainside near Emmittsburg, has an ideal football schedule. It's program contains neither a flock of setups nor any "suicide" games.

The Mounts' squad represents a mighty small school. But they have a reputation for knocking off some pretty important outfits. And they aren't fall guys for powerhouse teams just for the guarantee.

This year they have a squad of 35, including eleven lettermen. Coach Jim Draper allows: "About the same power we had last year." They meet G. W. U. at Griffith Stadium here on the 27th. (Remember last year they held G. W. scoreless at the half, lost by 12-0).

There isn't a real star in this outfit but Draper and Assistant Coach Wally Opekun—the great Penn back who now teaches economics at the Mount—hope they'll take maybe seven of their eight-game schedule.

Here it is in order: Potomac State (easy); George Washington (well?); Western Maryland (well?); LaSalle (we think); Elon (about even); Delaware (pretty certain); Upsala (fair-to-middlin' certain); Washington College (we think).

Draper has been pretty lucky in practice so far. He's had perfect weather, no draftees and only one minor injury. That was a sprained ankle belonging to Bill Flaherty, a promising freshman back.

Ellis, was well known here as a gridman at Gonzaga. Flaherty never played football until last year.

He took his coat off last September and booted a beautiful punt.

"Hey," said Draper, "do you play football?"

"No," said Flaherty, "I never have."

He is a triple threat man now: punting, passing and running.

"Didn't have to teach him anything," said Draper yesterday, "It was born in him."

Happy Lark, at 7-10, Breezes to Victory In Timonium Purse

Happy Time Gelding Wins By 2 Lengths

Myrtle M. Takes Opener, Figuring in $260 Double With Tar Anne in Second

By Clocker Mike

Timonium, Md., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Veader Leonard's Happy Lark, making his second start on the smaller circuit, scored as easily as he did in his previous invasion, when he raced the 6½ furlongs of the Essex Farm Purse in 1:21 1-5, to report two lengths in advance of the fast closing Sun Monia. The latter easily bested Flag Etta for the place.

The 5000 fans in attendance lost little time in showing their confidence in the son of Happy Time. When the first change of odds had been flashed, Happy Lark was made a 2-to-5 shot, with the next lowest price being the 10 to 1 quoted on Sun Monia. When they had reached the gate, he had been raised to 3 to 5. However, the fashion in which he performed suggested that he should have been even lower.

Crowded at First Turn

For a moment after leaving the gate, it appeared that the speedster would get shut off going into the turn, however, Wayne Weber hustled his mount and managed to get through and take command. Entering the backstretch Weber asked the sprinter for speed and the Happy Time gelding, trained by Don Yates, opened a five lengths lead, coasting the rest of the way.

The winner's time was just one-fifth of a second slower than the time hung up by Royal Business on opening day. The mutuel payoff was $3.40.

Evidently a change of riders was the right remedy for Myrtle M in today's opening race. Jockey Willie Kelly replaced Jockey Haber and the result was that Myrtle M led for most of the four and a half furlongs to win by a length over June Pennant. Ecoway, made a good thing for the second time at the meeting, wound up third.

There were many in the crowd who thought the winner's number would come down due to the fact she caried June Pennant out at the head of the stretch. Myrtle M drew out in the stretch run and hung up the time of 57 1-5 for the distance. Her straight pay-off was $27.80.

Double Pays $260.90.

Once again the long shot players got their turn in the daily double when Mrs. C. L. Larkin's Tar Anne reached the wire a length in advance of Pougetchie to hang up a $260.90 double price on the infield board. Dusty Miss held the show spot as they reached the wire.

Jockey L. Garrett did the honors aboard Tar Anne and although he was forced to take up to get racing room, he rode in excellent fashion to get the daughter of Katar home on the front end.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MYRTLE M., $27.80, $8.60, $4.20; JUNE PENNANT, $4.40, $2.90; ECOWAY, $3.20.

MYRTLE M. took command going to the turn, went slightly wide and led ECOWAY through, took the lead again when the latter weakened, carried JUNE PENNANT wide entering the stretch, and held on well. JUNE PENNANT challenged entering the stretch, but was carried wide. ECOWAY saved ground from the start, but was not good enough. SHINY DOME went wide at the first turn.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:41. Off at 2:31½. Winner, Mrs. C. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAR ANNE, $18.20, $9.80, $6.70; POUGATCHIE, $22.00, $11.90; DUSTY MISS, $5.50.

TAR ANNE was in a pocket while following the pace for a half, was taken up to get clear sailing on the outside and then went right to the front and won under a drive. POUGATCHIE was a trailer for a half, came to the extreme outside and was going best at the end. DUSTY MISS moved up boldly entering the stretch and then hung slightly. MR. JIMMIE was another that was in close quarters. SHOTAGIN tired after three-quarters.

Daily Double, MYRTLE M. and TAR ANNE Paid $260.90

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $600; claiming. Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 3:01½. Off at 3:02½. Winner, R. J. Kirkpatrick's ch. g. (5), by Rockminster—Chatterwood. Trained by H. Edwards. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 4:07 (16 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FOREST RANGER, $19.60, $6.70, $4.30; TAM O'SHANTER, $3.60, $2.70; ROUGE CATALAN, $3.20.

FOREST RANGER followed the pace of RUNNING FOOL while fencing well, took command when the latter weakened and drew out to be in hand at the end. TAM O'SHANTER was well handled from the start, but could not match the winner's speed on the main track. ROUGE CATALAN was just moving when he appeared to have knocked over a beacon. RUNNING FOOL fenced well while setting the pace, but tired in the last quarter. BAFFLER was going to the front when he cut a beacon after the fifteenth fence and was pulled up. CARRIE H. lacked speed at any stage and lost her rider at the twelfth jump.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:31½. Winner, Mrs. C. B. Inscoe's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCTOR'S NURSE, $7.20, $3.50, $2.90; SUN PAN, $4.80, $3.90; DRESSMAKER, $5.10.

DOCTOR'S NURSE was held in behind the pace until leaving the backstretch, went around the leader and drew out in the stretch run to be in hand at the end. SUN PAN took command at once, but was no match for the winner. DRESSMAKER came from far back while losing ground throughout. BEAMING LADY was shut off at every turn and didn't get a chance to run. GREAT SARAH had a flash of early foot.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:01. Winner, Mrs. Veader Leonard's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY LARK, $3.40, $3.20, $3.30; SUN MONIA, $5.40, $3.70; FLAG ETTA, $6.00.

HAPPY LARK was hard hustled to get through on the rail at the first turn, opened a long lead when asked and was an easy winner. SUN MONIA was outrun for a half and came well in the late stages. FLAG ETTA was unable to race with the leader, but caught tired horses in the stretch. TWO PLY also picked up tired horses. DIVIDEND was used up trying to run with the winner. MARANDAN had speed for a half. BUTTERMAN had a rough trip.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner, J. C. Crivella's br. s. (3), by Brokers Tip—Rough Sea. Trained by G. Mohr. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUGH GOING, $24.40, $9.90, $5.90; MATCH POINT, $4.70, $3.70; AGNES KNIGHT, $5.50.

ROUGH GOING was outrun early, lost ground while making his move and was up in the concluding strides. MATCH POINT was sent to the lead at once, held on gamely and just missed. AGNES KNIGHT saved ground while moving and then faltered in the stretch run. JOAN ASBESTOS weakened. WINTONA was off slowly. CORSICA tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:01½. Off at 5:01½. Winner, F. Davis' b. m. Columbus Faces Jinx In A.A. Opener

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 8.—The Columbus Red Cross, 1941 champions of the American Association, were confident tonight of breaking the three-year jinx that has dogged the trail of pennant winners in the loop's postseason play-offs.

Ready for the opening of the sixth annual Governor's Cup series against the Kansas City Blues here tomorrow, the Birds pooh-poohed the superstition against the flag winner's chances in the series.

That the 1938 champions, St. Paul, and the 1939-40 titlists, Kansas City, fell by the wayside in the playoffs doesn't mean a thing, said Manager Burt Shotton, pointing to the fact that the Birds copped the flag and the playoff series as well in 1937.

"Pitchin's more important in a ball game than superstitions," Shotton declared, announcing that big Johnny Grodzicki, who finished the season with 19 victories against five defeats, would be on the mound for the Birds. His opponent will be George Barley, the ace right-hander who helped the Blues to their third place finish.

Meanwhile, the Louisville Colonels took great stock in "precedent" as they prepared to open the other half of the League's semifinal series at Louisville against the Minneapolis Millers.

They won in 1939 and 1940, the only double winner since the Governors' Cup series was inaugurated in 1936.

Manager Bill Burwell of the Colonels nominated Emerson Dickman to start for the Colonels. Tom Sheehan, Minneapolis pilot, picked Elon Hogsett for his starting hurler.

Tigers Purchase K. C. Shortstop

Detroit, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers today announced the purchase of Shortstop Bill Hitchcock from the Kansas City Blues of the American Association. He will report next spring.

Hitchcock played on the Blues with Phil Rizzuto, Johnny Sturm and Gerald Priddy, now with the New York Yankees. He came to Kansas City direct from the campus of Alabama Polytechnical School at Auburn, Ala., three years ago. His current batting average is .304.

In return for Hitchcock, the Tigers will give Kansas City two players to be named later and an unannounced sum of cash.

Two Games Launch I. L. Play-Off Today

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Johnny Lindell, who won almost one-quarter of the 100 victories which carried the Newark Bears to the International League pennant, was named today as the club's starting pitcher for the opening of the Governors' Cup playoffs tomorrow.

With the weather man forecasting "cloudy and probable showers," a crowd of 10,000 is expected to see the Bears and fourth-place Rochester Redwings open a best-of-seven game series from which the winner will go into the Governors' Cup final against the Montreal-Buffalo survivor.

Lindell won 23 games and lost only four during the regular campaign, which closed yesterday. Two of those losses, both in extra innings and each by one run, were to the Redwings. Tomorrow Hank Gornicki, a St. Louis Cardinal farmhand, will be his mound rival.

At Montreal, it will be Frank Pearce for the Royals against Freddy Hutchinson, Buffalo's $75,000 wonder boy, who finished the season with a record of 26 and 7 and won his last five starts. A crowd of 7,000 is likely to sit in, with weather prospects the same as at Newark.

Newark and Montreal also will be at home for the second games of their series, which then shift to Rochester and Buffalo.

The winner of the final playoff will meet the American Association cup winner in the Little World Series.

Joe Boehling, Ex-Nat Dies in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Sept. 8 (U.P.).—J. J. (Joe) Boehling, 50, former Big League baseball player, died late today from injuries suffered when he fell from a porch at his home here last night.

Boehling graduated from sandlot ball here to the Virginia League and then went to the majors, playing with Washington and Cleveland. Later he was with the Pacific Coast League before retiring to enter business here.

He issurvived by his wife and two children.

GAO Mixed Bowlers Open League Season

The General Accounting Office Mixed Bowling League opened its fifth season last night at the new Hiscore Alleys, with 28 teams in action. Mrs. I. Riefenberg had high set, 361, for the ladies and Mrs. E. White's game of 138 was high. John Sullivan and Stevenson paced the men with 136 and 365, respectively.

Hanbury Awarded Amateur Bout in Near Free-for-all

A near-riot, instigated by the Petro Clan of Southwest Washington, climaxed the 10-bout District of Columbia A. A. U. boxing show at Turner's Arena last night.

The disturbance occurred just before the start of the fourth round of a five-round grudge fight between Charley Petro, Apollo, A. C. boxer, and Lou Hanbury, the clever slugger from Merrick Boys Club. The ten-second whistle had sounded and both fighters were starting from their corners when Danny Petro, a brother of Charley, who had already won a bout on the card, jumped into the ring and took a poke at Referee Ray Bowen. A group of the Petro henchmen clambered in behind Danny and for a few moments Bowen was having to fight the mob. Then other officials and the police swarmed in and quelled the disturbance.

Washington fighters took four of the five intercity bouts staged with amateurs from Baltimore, the only Baltimore victory going to stocky Dominic Baccala who won a split decision from Eddie Kane, of Apollo, in the welterweight division.

The Lou Hanbury-Charley Petro brawl, which was the nightcap, went to Larruppin' Lou on a TKO in the fourth. This was the second meeting of the two, Charley having won a close decision earlier in the summer. From the outset it was a rough affair. Heeling, butting, wrestling and enough other sins to make the good Marquis of Queensbury roll in his shroud, made up the first three heats and Referee Bowen warned both men repeatedly.

Lou was out front by a slight margin at the end of the third. Then, as the fourth was coming up the bedlam broke loose. During the alley fighting that took place thereafter Hanbury remained in his corner.

In the intercity competition, Dicky Mullins of National Training School, got Washington off to a win when he pounded out a decision over Joe Cammarata in the 112-pound class. Paul Coakley, a 126-pounder from Apollo A. C., followed with a one-round knockout over Jack Klebe. Coakley tore out of his corner at the bell and swarmed all over the Baltimorean. After 1:10 of the opener he shot a left to the midsection which floored Klebe for the count.

Preston Drew from Apollo took the third inter-city with a decision over Roy Claymore in the 135-pound sector.

Washington's fourth win was delivered by Danny Petro, of Apollo, who put the chill on Dave Wilson after 1:00 of the third. This bout was scheduled for five rounds, but the swarthy Petro, a savage southpaw carried the fight all the way, and Wilson was lucky to last as long as he did.

One of the best fights of the card was put on by Vernon Todd, Prince George welter, and Bill Ickes of Police Boys No. 4. Both lads worked well with both hands all the way, but Todd proved a bit the stronger in the closing moments.

147 pounds—Vernon Todd (Prince Georges B. C.) decisioned Bill Ickes (Police Boys' Club No. 4).

112 pounds—Dickie Mullins (National Training School) decisioned Joe Cammarata (Baltimore).

126 pounds—Paul Coakley (Apollo A. C.) defeated Jack Klebe (Baltimore). K.O. after 1:10 of first round.

147 pounds—Dominic Baccala (Baltimore) decisioned Eddie Kane (Apollo A. C.).

180 pounds—Cooper White (Merrick B. C.) decisioned Al Edick (St. Mary's B. C., Alexandria).

136 pounds—Lou Hanbury (Merrick B. C.) defeated Charley Petro (Apollo A. C.), technical knockout in fourth round.

account you will notice a little item of 356 drinks totaling $183.50. These were the result of my plan to further cement friendly relations between our two countries. I spent the whole night drinking toasts to President Roosevelt and to President—What's-hi-name of Mexico. I did my best to hold up American prestige.

I understand that Nelson Rockefeller is heading a Government agency to improve cultural relations between the United States and Latin America. Boss, this has got to do with education. So I took it upon myself to help out Brother Rockefeller by teaching all the fellows in my party how to speak Spanish, which is what they talk down in Mexico.

When we got back to the hotel, I checked and discovered that the other boys in our party had forgotten all the Spanish they had picked up except one word—that was "manana," meaning tomorrow, and pronounced like banana only there's an "m" on the front. But I was right there as usual, Boss. My Spanish vocabulary now consists of not one word, but of two words—pasado manana, meaning "day after tomorrow."

Your international ace,

AMBASSADOR HAIGHT.

P. S.—Having a wonderful time. Glad you can afford it.

Cavaliers Defeat King Pin Bowlers; Lou Jenkins Stars

Coming within 13 strokes of equaling the world record of 1318 for nine games rolled several years ago by Wally Pipp, former star first baseman of the New York Yankees, Lou Jenkins last night led the Del Ray Cavaliers to three victories over Jimmy Moore's King Pin team on the latter's alleys. Totaling 431 in the team match, Jenkins sparked an 1853-to-1728 victory. In the doubles match, Jenkins and Geib totaled 771 against 724 for Shreve and Stott, with Jenkins contributing 439. In the singles against Bob Miciotto, Jenkins posted 435 to the latter's 396, giving the Cavalier star a total of 1305 for the nine games. Jenkins is ranked No. 1 in the District and No. 10 annually.

6-Rounders Carded for Thursday

Theodorescu-Coates And Lind-Thomas Scraps Set; Eights Feature Good Boxers

Forty-three scheduled rounds are to comprise the boxing show headlining Joey Archibald, recognized world's featherweight champion in New York and Maryland, and Chalky Wright, the outstanding Negro contender from the Pacific Coast, over a scheduled 15-round route at Griffith Stadium Thursday night.

Promoter Ray Alvis yesterday rounded out his show by booking a brace of six-rounders pairing off Art Lind, middleweight protege of Ken Overlin, vs. Buddy Thomas, and Milo Theodorescu, Romania refugee and a welterweight, vs. Cowboy Coates, of Norfolk, Va.

Twin eight rounders are to bring together Oscar ("Thunderbolt") Wright, local Negro featherweight, vs. Jimmy Hatcher, stablemate of Joey Archibald, and Billy Banks, Negro protege of Billy Edwards, vs. Jimmy Collins, club fighting Baltimore featherweight.

Theodorescu was featured as a main eventer here previously and remains a top flighter in out-of-town points. The Rumanian refugee, a stablemate of Chalky Wright, will challenge either Phil Furr or Al Franklin to a showdown locally in the event he hurdles Coates.

Coates, a big favorite down Norfolk way, has gone undefeated in 21 professional starts. He has accepted a six rounder on the championship show in order to break in properly here.

Overlin, former world's middleweight boxing title claimant, discovered Lind on a tour of the Southwest two years ago. "Conga Ken" has every confidence that the youngster will go ahead in fistiana, and will go after better bookings for him if he gets over Thomas, a popular and willing local boy.

Retrocession Not a Bluff, Says McCarran

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, served notice last night that he means business when he says he intends to find a way to take a part of Arlington County, Va., back into the District.

"I am not in this thing to bluff," the District Committee chairman declared. "For that reason I want to be certain that we make no false steps. That's why I have asked Mr. Camalier (R. F. Camalier, committee adviser) to make a very minute study of the law and history of the boundary dispute and all matters related to retrocession of that part of the original 10-mile square of the District that lay in Virginia.

"When that study has been completed and when we know just where we stand, then we will go forward."

Virginians Opposed

McCarran, with the support of President Roosevelt, proposes to return to te jurisdiction of the District all Federally owned and contiguous property in Arlington.

He also is the Senate sponsor of a bill to declare all of the new National Airport at Gravelly Point within the District. Virginia authorities have asserted that a part of the airport, including the Terminal Building, is in the State.

In the face of opposition from the Virginia members of Congress—powerful Senator Glass (Democrat), called the McCarran proposal "silly"—the District chairman declared:

"The problem can and must be solved. The present lack of unified control (at the airport) is a loss to the Federal Government, a loss to the District and a loss to the airlines.

Bothered by Taxes

"They can't get control of the administration building. They are bothered by the question of taxes and some airlines won't land there because of the trouble.

"I don't see why the transfer of this Federal land should be any loss to Virginia. The State gets no taxes from it.

"Mr. Camalier's study is a tremendous job and will take some time, but we must solve the problem and it will be solved as soon as possible."

Girl Kills Self To Break News Of School Failure

New York, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Sixteen-year-old Janie Griffin, a high school sophomore, failed in her final examinations last June and was so worried she decided not to tell her parents she would not be promoted.

Although her school chums and neighbors knew, she succeeded in keeping the secret from her parents all summer.

But today was the first day of school and she knew she could keep it no longer.

On a piece of paper she wrote: "This is the easiest way out."

She stuffed the note into her pocketbook, then jumped from the second floor of her home. She died in a hospital a few minutes later.

Col. Hackett, Former PWA Official, Dies

Col. Horatio B. Hackett, 61, former assistant administrator of the Public Works Administration, died yesterday in a Chicago hospital.

Col. Hackett

A native of Philadelphia, Hackett was a graduate of West Point, where he was a star halfback on the football team, earning a berth on the varsity when only a plebe. Upon his graduation in 1904 he resigned from the Army to enter construction work in Chicago and Tennessee. He served in the Field Artillery in France during the World War, commanding a regiment in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations. Severely wounded, he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal, the Silver Star with two oak leaves, and the Order of the Purple Heart.

After several years in a Chicago architectural firm, he entered the Government service as general manager of the Emergency Housing Corporation in 1934 and several months later became director of housing for the PWA. In 1935 Col. Hackett was named assistant administrator of the PWA, a position which he held until 1937. Since his retirement he had been president of the Materials Service Co., in Chicago.

Commenting on Col. Hackett's death, Nathan Strauss, administrator of the United States Housing Autority, said: "Everyone in the public housing field will deeply regret the death of Col. Horatio Hackett. His great management and his warm personality contributed greatly to public housing progress. Few people had more real friends than he, and he will be genuinely missed."

A member of the American Legion and other veterans' organizations, he also belonged to the American Institute of Architects, the Army and Navy Club, the Masonic Order and other organizations. Since 1904 he had been an active football referee, particularly in the Big Ten Conference. He also had been a member of the intercollegiate football rules committee for several years.

He will be buried in Philadelphia. Hackett refereed Big Ten football games for more than 30 years.

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western Conference athletic commissioner, said Hackett was "one of the outstanding athletic men of the Nation and a topnotch football official all through the years."

Commodities Shoot Up On Need for Exports

Grains, Livestock Reach Four-Year Highs After Wickard Calls for Output Increases

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures prices shot upward again yesterday on virtual Government confirmation of a long-held market belief that the United States for many months to come would be called on for a huge volume of foodstuffs and raw materials as a result of the European war.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard called for increases in production of grains, dairy products, eggs, fodder and livestock to fill domestic needs and provide a surplus for export under the lease-lend program, chiefly to Britain.

Grains rose to four-year high levels at Chicago; livestock advanced to similar peaks, and butter and egg prices were just below four-year record highs. Soybeans jumped 8 cents a bushel, the trading limit, to the highest values since futures trade began in the oil-rich product.

Despite a Government crop estimate above expectations, cotton futures prices in New York sagged only momentarily, then surged ahead to the highest since 1929 in some deliveries.

Sugar at 2-Year Top

World sugar futures, scarcer since sale of most of Cuba's surplus to U. S. buyers, rose nearly one-tenth of a cent a pound to two-year highs.

At Chicago, soybeans for delivery next May were quoted at $1.84⅝ a bushel higher than Saturday's prices, September deliveries selling for 1.19⅜@1.19¼ a bushel. Corn gained 2½ to 2⅝ cents and ranged from 80⅝ to 90 cents a bushel at the close. Oats were up 1⅜ to 1¾ cents and rye advanced 1⅝ to 2¾ cents.

Cotton closed $1.10 to $1.50 a bale higher in New York, and cottonseed oil was up ¼ cent or more a pound.

Coffee futures were one-tenth of a cent or more a pound higher, world sugar held its gains and wool tops increased about a cent a pound in value. Cocoa rose more than ¼ of a cent a pound.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale commodities based on spot prices, jumped for the eleventh consecutive trading day and set another new four-year high at 93.96 per cent of the 1926 average. Saturday it stood at 93.61 per cent.

New Speculation Curb

Meanwhile the commodity Exchange Administration yesterday tightened its rules requiring large traders in oil and lard futures to report daily on the amounts of their holdings. The move was announced as a step to bring about closer supervision of future trading.

Under the new rules, all traders owning or controlling cottonseed oil futures amounting to 300,000 pounds or more in one delivery month on one market must report daily to the CEA. The former requirement affected only those traders with contracts of 900,000 pounds or more.

The new regulation extended the reporting requirement for lard to all holders of future contracts of 250,000 pounds or more in one delivery month compared with a previous level of 750,000.

The new regulations, affecting the New YoYrk Produce Exchange, the New Orleans Cotton Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade, cover all fats and oils but the CEA said cottonseed oil and lard are the only ones in which there is active trading at present.

Pepco's Gross Soars but Net Shows Slump

The Potomac Electric Power Co. earned less in 1940 than in 1930 despite record-breaking sales and revenues last year. This anomaly was revealed yesterday in figures compiled by the public utilities division of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The SEC survey showed that Pepco in 1930 netted $4,766,008 on gross revenues of $10,565,960. On the other hand the Washington utility in 1940 netted $3,964,010 on gross of $16,649,319.

An explanation was not given in the factual SEC study but observers pointed out that the lower ratio of net to gross was due primarily to two factors: (1) heavier taxes; (2) increased expenses including labor, material and operations.

The 11-year record of Pepco's operating revenues and net income follows:

	Operating Revenue	Net Income
1930	$10,565,960	$4,766,008
1931	10,857,476	4,583,225
1932	10,978,871	4,479,862

Defense Bond Sales Heavy

The Treasury Department reported yesterday that $3,995,000 worth of Series E defense savings bonds were bought in the District of Columbia during the first three months of their sale. In the same period (May, June and July) Virginia sold $3,970,000 worth and Maryland sold $4,392,000.

Throughout the Nation, there was $348,372,000 worth of the Series E bonds sold. This class of the defense issue is popularly known as "peoples bonds." Those sold to larger investors are the Series F and G.

C. & P. to Conserve Metal

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. is cooperating with the Bell System in a long range program to find substitutes for materials essential to defense needs. It is estimated the program will effect a saving during 1941 of more than 5,000,000 pounds of metals, including enough aluminum to build more than 275 fighter planes.

Made possible through long range planning, research and readjustments in manufacturing the substituting of materials in 1941 will divert for use in defense work nearly 1,700,000 pounds of aluminum, almost a third of a million pound of nickel, well over three million pounds of zinc and 8300 pounds of magnesium. Additional reductions are foreseen for 1942.

As an example: The Western Electric Co., manufacturing arm of the system, now saves 65 tons of aluminum annually by replacing aluminum with steel in the "finger wheel" on dial telephones.

A. T. A. E. Session to Open

Many officials of Government agencies are listed as speakers at the annual meeting opening Thursday of the American Trade Association Executives. The three-day parley will be held in Hershey, Pa.

Other officials of OPM, officials of Government agencies and industrial representatives will participate in a general presentation of various phase of the defense effort from the standpoint of its impact upon industrial operations and civilian economy.

Speakers include: John Lord O'Brian, general counsel; John H. Martin, priorities; Joseph Weiner, civilian allocatoin; Joseph L. Overlock, defense supplies rating, and maintenance and repair; Dr. Carl E. Parry, Federal Reserve Board; Dr. John Frey, fuel conservation; Robert E. McConnell standardization and conservation; Dal Hitchcock, Bureau of Labor Statistics; Ellsworth C. Alvord, chairman of the committee on Federal taxation of the Chamber of Commerce, and Pyke Johnson, executive vice president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Cotton Crop Estimate Down on Weevil Damage

By the Associated Press

Boll weevil damage in the central part of the cotton belt was reflected yesterday in an Agriculture Department estimate that the 1941 cotton crop would be 10,710,000 bales. This was a reduction of 107,000 bales from its forecast of a month ago.

Weather was less favorable than average during August in States from Georgia to Arkansas and Louisiana, the board said, and "boll weevils have caused serious injury to the crop throughout this area."

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 22 to 30 points higher today in active trading.

After the unexpectedly high Government crop estimate of 10,710,000 bales was announced at midday, prices soared as much as $1.25 a bale. Trade and mill buying forced values upward again, at one time to as much as 56 points above Saturday's finish.

Hedge selling was at a minimum, despite bigger ginnings figures, tending to confirm reports that some growers were holding off the market from 40 to 90 per cent of their production.

Aviation Stocks Surge Higher on Huge Orders; General List Holds Firm in Brisker Turnover

New York, Sept. 8.—Soaring commodities and strength of aircraft and specialty stocks held the play in today's financial markets. While many share leaders continued to exhibit a weary appearance, the aviation group jumped 1 to more than 2 points with a number of favorites scoring new tops for the year.

The run-up in staples, attributed partly to the outlook for exceptionally heavy export demand, tended to give a feeble twist to inflationary psychology although many stocks failed to make even the slightest response.

Historically huge backlogs for the principal plane manufacturers, together with an additional weekend War Department order to Boeing and Douglas amounting to $347,156,-674, stimulated a resumption of bidding in this division.

The war news was construed as more optimistic than otherwise and the business picture, despite taxes and Federal controls, provided inspiration for individual shares. In many cases, however, speculative inclinations were thought to have been restricted by the desire to await the President's broadcast which was postponed from today until next Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 43.4. It was the fifth successive session in which this composite had registered no progress. Dealings were lively at intervals and transfers totalled 617,350 shares compared with 574,610 Friday. It was the largest turnover since August 5.

Prices were the best in the majority of instances in the forenoon. Slipping tendencies were displayed here and there in the final hour. New 1941 highs were posted for Boeing, Glenn Martin, Consolidated Aircraft, Curtiss-Wright, Grumman Aircraft, N. Y. Shipbuilding, American Sugar Refining, International Nickel and Western Union.

Well in advance were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, United Air Lines, American Airlines, Studebaker, Montgomery Ward, Lockheed and Texas Corporation. Coca-Cola got up 4 points on a few trades.

Steels were narrow although this week's mill operations were estimated up moderately. Motors never got any place. General Motors' August sales showed a drop from July and August last year. Rails were fairly steady despite the wage controversy.

On the offside were J. I. Case, International Harvester, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Telephone.

Forward moves in the Curb were Beech Aircraft, Brewster Aero, Fairchild Engine, Gulf Oil and American Potash. Volume here was around 155,000 shares versus 148,000 in the previous full session.

A selected group of utilities, specialties and foreign dollar bonds rose major fractions to around 2 points today as the main division held in a narrow range in light trading.

Leading considerable stability to the over-all picture, however, was the fact that issues making the best showing were among the most active. International Telephone 5s closed up a point at 49 on sales of $171,000, par value. American Telephone 3s ended up ¾ at 112 on sales of $138,000. Baltimore & Ohio convertibles of '60 added ⅝ on turnover of $119,000 and New York Central 5s improved ½ on transactions of $106,000. There were others doing as well or better on good turnover.

Chinese Dollar Strengthened by New Control Step

Shanghai, Sept. 8 (AP).—Shanghai's foreign exchange "black market" disappeared today as the Anglo-American Chinese currency stabilization board took new steps to strengthen and control the exchange value of the Chinese dollar.

By agreement with the board, 14 American, British, Dutch and Chinese banks which were licensed to do exchange business under the recent freezing regulations have refused to sell foreign exchange pending clarification of the board's orders. They continued to buy American dollars, however, at the board's official rate of 18.82 Chinese dollars for one American dollar as against Saturday's black market rate of 20.50.

The board's action was apparently intended to prevent leaks to Japanese or Axis interests of stabilization funds and to make sure no Shanghai imports could be re-exported to Japan.

Fewer Varieties Of Men's Clothing Seen This Winter

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Wall Street Journal said today:

"Semistandardization of men's clothing is coming.

"This doesn't mean the Nation is going to be put into a sort of civilian uniform, or even that clothing purchasers will be rigidly limited in their choice of styles and patterns.

"It does mean, however, that there probably will be about 30 per cent less variety of wool cloth patterns and styles to choose from this winter. As time goes on, the option may be further narrowed.

"Textile manufacturers have long looked for the opportunity to bring production down to a relatively few variations of the types of cloth milled.

Canadian Auto Output Cut to 44% of 1940

Ottawa, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press). Munitions Minister Howe today announced an order-in-council curtailing production of passenger automobiles for sale in Canada in 1942 to approximately 44 per cent of the 1940 total.

The government reserved the right to restrict or prohibit entirely the production of automobiles.

In 1940, Howe said, production ran at an average of 11,000 cars a month for the first seven months, and at an average of 3,700 a month for the remaining five months.

Johns-Manville Calls Block of Preferred

New York, Sept 8 (AP).—The Johns-Manville Corporation announced today it has called for redemption 25,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock at $121.75 a share, being $120 a share plus an amount equal to dividends accumulated and unpaid at the redemption date, October 1.

Retail Credit Extent Cited

The Census Bureau's study of retail credit for 1939 shows that sales on credit constituted 34.2 per cent of all sales in retail stores that year, compared with 34.3 per cent in 1929 and 32.2 in 1939.

Foreign Trade Of U. S. Spurts In First Half

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department reported yesterday an increase in the dollar value of United States foreign trade during the first six months of 1941, but said that exports and imports had declined from May to June.

Exports during the first half of the year were valued at $2,085,000,000 as compared with $2,064,000,000 during the corresponding period a year ago, and $1,907,000,000 during the second half of 1940. Imports into the United States in the first half of 1941 amounted to $1,504,00,000, an increase of 23 per cent over the same period of 1940 and 20 per cent over the last half of 1940. The imports for the first six months of 1941, the department said, were the highest for any comparable period since 1937.

European Trade Dives

The increase in foreign trade values during the first half of the year was attributed to the increase of export and import business with British Empire and Latin American countries. Exports to continental Europe dropped sharply as a result of the spread of the war.

The department estimated that exports to continental Europe in the first six months of 1941 had dropped to $76,000 000 from $540,000,000 in the same period of 1940 and from $84,000,000 in the last half of 1940.

From May to June this year total exports dropped from $385,000,000 to $330,000,000 and imports declined from $297,000,000 to $280,000,000.

The outstanding change in trade in this two-month period, the department noted, was a decline of exports to Latin America and a decline of both exports and imports from Asia and Africa.

Max Marcin, author of "Crime Doctor," which you hear over WJSV every Sunday at 7 p. m., began his fifth year as a radio writer this week. He hasn't missed writing a broadcast a single week in all that time and has forgot what a vacation is. Marcin, former newspaperman, playwright and movie director, has written several other programs besides "Crime Doctor." One of his most successful was "The Perfect Crime," which ran on C. B. S. for years . . .

If the punning continues, Andre Kostelanetz, C. B. S. conductor, and his wife, Opera Star Lily Pons, have decided to find a new name for their French bulldog, "Piano." One day when the dog was extremely playful, a guest, Violinist Albert Spalding, remarked, "I see he's a player 'Piano.'" Another time, when the dog was walking around on his hind legs for Miss Pons, another guest cracked, "I thought he was a puppy grand, but now I see he's an upright 'Piano.'" The Kostelanetzes are tolerant folk, but . . .

Anyone with a name like Burl Icle Ivanhoe Ives, the folk-singing specialist whom you hear over WJSV and C. B. S., can't get away with it without some sort of explanation. His father's best friend was Burl Icle Steele, which accounts somewhat for the first part of the handle. And his father's favorite novel was "Ivanhoe." But Burl doesn't think his name is so peculiar. He has a sister named Argola and a brother named Artiemorris. . . .

Contract Bridge

Today's hand was not only daringly bid by one of the country's champions, but also daringly played. Oswald Jacoby started with one no trump, holding a 6-3-2-2 pattern. He made six by boldly leading to his king, guarded but once, tossing away a safe play for four-odd in a gamble for the maximum. He made six when a defender, trapped in a pseudo-squeeze, threw the wrong card at the end. Ossie brought in his little five of clubs. The deal was played at the national masters' pairs event.

Jacoby also profited by the opening lead, covering the heart six with the eight in dummy so that he could keep the lead there. He played a low club and finessed the queen, which held. Next he led a low diamond to the pace and played back the ten of spades. West jumped in with the ace of spades and returned a heart. Jacoby won the ace and ran his diamonds.

West could hardly be blamed for throwing his clubs and saving his spades, as he could scarcely believe that declarer would chance leading to his king of spades if it were guarded only once.

North made 12 tricks at three no trump, winning six diamonds, two hearts, one spade and three clubs.

He could not lead toward the king of spades later, as the long diamonds were in his hand.

It is obvious what would have happened to the leader of the four aces had the spade ace been located unfavorably. Risks like this, while foolhardy at rubber bridge, are sound tactics at tournaments, where one overtrick is as important as a slam bonus and often more so. The difference in match points Jacoby received for making 12 tricks as opposed to the 10 which were his upon the opening lead was sufficient to make his gamble worth while.

J.T. Doyle Dies; Retired Merit System Aide

John Thomas Doyle, secretary of the Civil Service Commission from 1886 to 1932, died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital. He was organizer of the Assembly of Civil Service Commissions of the United States and Canada, and acted as its secretary and treasurer for 20 years.

DR. DOYLE

A nationally known authority on the merit system, he served as chairman of the Committee on Model Civil Service Law for States and Cities, and led in the framing of civil service rules and procedure for the cities of Chicago, Kansas City and Philadelphia. He was a member of the Council of the National Civil Service Reform League, and vice president of the Federal Club from its organization until 1933.

Native of New York City

Mr. Doyle was born in New York City in 1859. He received his L.L.B. degree from Columbian, now George Washington University, in 1886. He was a trustee of the university from 1917 to 1920, vice president of the National Association of Retired Federal Employes, honorary president of the United States Civil Service Employes, and associate editor of the Annuitant. He also served on the board of directors of the Exchange Bank of Washington, now a branch of the Hamilton Bank.

Mr. Doyle was first appointed as secretary of the Civil Service Commission by President Cleveland, and continued to serve under succeeding Presidents until his retirement in June, 1932.

The Civil Service Commission said yesterday that Mr. Doyle "was probably personally known to more individuals in the Federal service than any other official or employe. His record of holding the same important Federal position for almost half a century is almost without parallel in the Federal service."

"Faithful" Administrator

In his book, "Fighting the Spoilsmen," William Dudley Foulke, former civil service commissioner, said of Mr. Doyle, "The competitive system has never had a more faithful or competent administrator."

Mr. Doyle leaves his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Dixon Doyle; a daughter, Mrs. William E. Moore, and two grandsons.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N Street Northwest. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Red Tape Cut To Speed New Africa Airline

Spurred by antional defense needs, the Government cut through formalities yesterday to speed establishment of a commercial airline to Africa.

Beginning of service in several weeks will enable a passenger, for $849, to leave Miami and land five days later in Leopoldville, in the heart of the Belgian Congo.

Pan American Airways, flying huge Government-owned Boeing Clipper planes, will operate the line, which is being set up mainly to enable Pan American pilots to ferry bombers from this country to fighting fronts in the Middle East.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, in executive sesison, heard secret testimony from Army officers yesterday and then refused to allow American Export Airlines, a rival concern, to intervene in hearings on Pan American's application to operate the proposed airline.

Under an amendment to original plans, Pan American proposed to begin its route in Miami, rather than in Baltimore or New York City as planned earlier.

From Miami the giant passenger planes would fly, stopping only for refueling, to Africa, via San Juan, Puerto Rico; Port of Spain, Trinidad; Belem, Brazil, and Natal, Brazil.

Their first African port would be Monrovia, Liberia, whence they would fly to Lagos, Nigeria and finally to Leopoldville, which is near Brazzaville, capital of Free French Africa. Other commercial airlines for Capetown, South Africa, connect at Leopoldville.

Pan American officials said yesterday that flights would leave Miami about once every two weeks. Key personnel and supplies are already on their way to the African landing fields.

The trans-Atlantic clipper service will connect with a trans-African passenger service, to be operated to Khartown by another Pan American subsidiary.

This commercial airline, on its return trips from Africa, will carry mainly pilots employed on the ferry service in flying military planes to the Middle East.

Shining Mark

School Bell Tolls, but Not For Carl

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 8.—Eleven-year-old Carl Mason faced a surgeon's knife tonight on the Monday he was to have answered a school bell for the first time in his life after being in hospitals since cradle days.

While thousands of American school children he had hoped to join recounted to parents the adventures of their first classes, Carl lay on a hospital bed, too ill to receive visitors, and blood donors stood ready to aid him for an abdominal operation that doctors believe may be necessary.

The boy, who learned to walk less than a year ago, and who was released from a hospital only six weeks ago, was taken seriously ill during the weekend and rushed to a Boston hospital.

He apparently had recovered from tuberculosis of the spine that had afflicted him at the age of 11 months and which for nine of the ten years he was hospitalized forced him to lie flat on his stomach.

His mother, Mrs. Leon C. Mason, wife of a Boston Navy Yard worker, who had been readying the boy for his first trip to school, said that recently the lad had been ill at home and for a time that it was believed he had intestinal grippe.

As lately as last Thursday, Carl played barelegged in the pine-needles near his home beside Oldham Lake, fondled a dog and cat and did other things in the newfound life which his mother had described as "just like a baby's—learning of many new things for the first time."

During his first summer with his family away from hospital beds, the boy has had the new experiences of bathing in outdoor water, climbing trees, and that all-American boy's summer nuisance—poison ivy.

A frail boy who underwent an operation in which a part of his shin bone was grafted to his spine, Carl was a hero among his playmates this summer because of a trick he learned while confined to the hospital—writing with his feet.

D. C. Laundry Accuses NLRB Of Threat

Agents and employes of the National Labor Relations Board have utilized contempt proceedings pending in the United States Court of Appeals against the Arcade-Sunshine Co., Inc., as a threat to compel the company to enter into an agreement with the Cleaners and Laundry Workers Union, Local 188 B, which the company is not required to make, it was charged in court yesterday.

The allegation was made in a motion filed on behalf of the company by Edmund M. Toland, Alvin N. Newmyer and Frank J. Buckley, jr., counsel. The motion asks dismissal of the contempt petition previously filed by the board.

Reviewing the lengthy labor troubles at the laundry plant of hte company, where a strike has been in progress for some time, the company's motion declares that the "board and its agents have nevertheless deliberately elected to prosecute this action in contempt before this court rather than dispose of the allegations in the proper and lawful manner" prescribed by the National Labor Relations Act.

After pointing out that the company has always been willing to submit the question of what agency should represent its employes as collective bargaining agent, but that the union and the board have thus far refused to hold an election, the motion asserts that "certain agents and employes of the board, in furtherance of and in order to assist the union in the conspiracy aforesaid, have utilized as a threat, the contempt proceedings herein, in order to force respondent company to enter into an agreement with the union, which agreement respondent company is not by law required to make."

It is asserted in the motion that if any of the acts complained of by the board had been committed they would constitute new violations of the law and should be tried in new proceedings by the board rather than to be made the basis for contempt proceedings under the order of the court.

Regulars Finishing Enlistment To Get Help in Finding Jobs

Men completing their terms of service in the regular Army, Navy or Marine Corps will be given the same assistance in finding jobs as returning selectees, William E. Leahy, District Selective Service head, announced yesterday.

Urging the cooperation of every employer in the Washington area, Leahy pointed out that although the Selective Service system, War Department and District Employment Office have worked out a program to obtain civilian jobs for discharged soldiers, the complete cooperation of employers is vital to the program's success.

"It is not merely a question of obligation imposed by law," he stated. "It is a moral and patriotic responsibility of all employers to make certain that these men who have made sacrifices to fit themselves for the armed defense of our liberties be protected themselves from any unnecessary hardships."

At the same time it was announced 276 men from the District are to be inducted today as part of the September quota of about 1000. Six more calls are expected during the month.

Best friends were amazed in woman's improved looks... new energy...pep!

A marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, underweight, sluggishness and loss of appetite—all by two important steps—

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood. Here's how!

If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries . . yet have no organic trouble or focal infection . . . and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number . . . if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength . . . to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Feel and look like yourself again

Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food . . . stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color . . . this makes for greater strength . . . color in your cheeks . . . resistance against disease attacks.

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Make the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.
